(17,586.)

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1899.

No. 472.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH, PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR,

vs.

EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND GEORGE INGERSOLL.

IN ERROR TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS.

INDEX.

	Original.	Print.
Writ of error	a	1
Clerk's certificate as to copy of writ of error	b	1
Citation	c	2
Proof of service of summons	d	2
Clerk's certificate as to copy of citation	e	2
Clerk's certificate and return to writ of error	f	3
Caption	1	3
Transcript from circuit court of La Salle county	2	4
Caption	2	4
Præcipe for summons	3	4
Declaration	4	4
Appearance for defendants	6	5
Hearing and submission	7	6
Judgment	8	6
Order filing motion for new trial	9	7
Order overruling motion for new trial	10	7
Order allowing appeal	10	7
Appeal bond	11	7

JUDD & DETWEILER, PRINTERS, WASHINGTON, D. C., JANUARY 10, 1900.

	Original.	Print.
Bill of exceptions	13	8
Stipulation waiving jury, &c	14	9
Agreed facts	15	9
Plat A	16	10
Act to authorize the State of Illinois to open a canal through the public lands to connect the Illinois river with Lake Michigan	21	13
Act to provide for the survey and opening of a canal between the Illinois river and Lake Michigan	23	13
Act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Co	27	15
Memorial by legislature of Illinois to Congress	35	19
Act to repeal act incorporating Illinois and Michigan Canal Co	40	21
Extract from message of Governor Coles, Dec. 5, 1826	41	21
Act of Congress, March 2, 1827	42	22
Act to provide for constructing Illinois and Michigan canal	44	23
Receipt for map, September 23, 1829	52	26
Exhibit B—Certified copy from General Land Office of map of Illinois and Michigan canal	56	28
D—Judgment in case of Thurston vs. Illinois	60	29
Deposition of Artemus J. Mathewson	62	30
Exhibit D—Map	75	35
Bill of Justus Post and receipt	77	35
Extracts from senate journal	78	36
Act for relief of Rena Paul et al	82	38
Extracts from house journal	84	38
Extracts from senate journal	93	42
Deposition of Erastus W. Willard	96	43
Exhibit C—Map	100	45
Defendants' requests	102	45
Judge's certificate to bill of exceptions	112	50
Clerk's certificate	114	50
Assignment of errors	114	50
Order taking cause under advisement	116	51
Judgment	117	51
Opinion	118	52
Order allowing writ of error	119	53
Petition for writ of error	120	53
Assignment of errors	122	54
Bond on writ of error	126	56

a UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, ss:

The President of the United States to the honorable the judges of the supreme court of the State of Illinois, Greeting:

Because in the record and proceedings, as also in the rendition of the judgment of a plea which is in the said court, before you or some of you, between Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith and Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, a manifest error hath happened, to the great damage of the said Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, as by their complaint appears, we, being willing that error, if any hath been, should be duly corrected and full and speedy justice done to the parties aforesaid in this behalf, do command you, if judgment be therein given, that then, under your seal, distinctly and openly, you send the record and proceedings aforesaid, with all things concerning the same, to the Supreme Court of the United States, together with this writ, so that you have the same in the said Supreme Court, at Washington, within thirty days from the date hereof, that, the record and proceedings aforesaid being inspected, the said Supreme Court may cause further to be done therein to correct that error what of right and according to the laws and customs of the United States should be done.

Witness the Honorable Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the United States, the twenty-second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight.

The Seal of the Circuit Court of the United States for the South'n Dist. Ill.

JAMES T. JONES,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Illinois.

Allowed by—
JAMES H. CARTWRIGHT,
Chief Justice Supreme Court, State of Illinois.

b In the Supreme Court of Illinois.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL. } Appeal from La Salle.

I, Christoper Mamer, clerk of said supreme court, do hereby certify that on the twenty-ninth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, a copy of the foregoing writ of error for the defendants was lodged in my office, at Springfield, Illinois.

Witness my hand and seal of said court this sixth day of December, A. D. 1899.

[Seal of the Supreme Court, State of Illinois, Aug. 23, 1818.]

CHRISTOPHER MAMER,
Clerk of Supreme Court.

[10-cent U. S. internal-revenue stamp, canceled 12, 6, '99. C. M.]

1—472

c UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, } ss:
The State of Illinois, }

Supreme Court.

To Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, Greeting:

You are hereby cited and admonished to be and appear at a Supreme Court of the United States, at Washington, within thirty days from the date hereof, pursuant to a writ of error filed in the clerk's office of the supreme court of the State of Illinois, wherein Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith are plaintiffs in error and you are defendants in error, to show cause, if any there be, why the decree rendered against the said plaintiffs in error, as in said writ of error mentioned, should not be corrected and why speedy justice should not be done to the parties in that behalf.

Witness the Honorable James H. Cartwright, chief justice of the supreme court of the State of Illinois, this 28th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

JAMES H. CARTWRIGHT,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

d STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

I have duly served the within summons by reading the same and delivering a true copy thereof to each of the within-named Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll this 1st day of Dec., A. D. 1899.

MATTHEW COULSON, Sheriff,
By WM. COULSON, Dep'ty.

Fees.

Service	$1.50
8 mil-age	.40
Return	.10
Total	$2.00

Rec'd costs.

MATT. COULSON, Sh'ff.

e In the Supreme Court of Illinois.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL } Appeal from La Salle.

I, Christopher Mamer, clerk of said supreme court, do hereby certify that on the sixth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, a copy of the foregoing citation and return was lodged in my office, at Springfield, Illinois.

Seal of the Supreme Court, State of Illinois, Aug. 23, 1818.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court this sixth day of December, A. D. 1899.

CHRISTOPHER MAMER,
Clerk of Supreme Court.

[10-cent U. S. internal-revenue stamp, canceled 12, 6, '99. C. M.]

f In the Supreme Court of Illinois.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL. } Appeal from La Salle.

I, Christopher Mamer, clerk of the supreme court of Illinois, elected for the northern grand division, and keeper of the records and files thereof, by virtue of the foregoing writ of error and in obedience thereto, do hereby certify that the following pages, numbered from one (1) to one hundred and thirty (130), inclusive, contain a true and complete transcript and copy of the record and proceedings had in said court in the case which is above entitled and of the whole thereof, including the opinion of the court, as the same remain of record and on file in my said office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of said supreme court to be hereunto affixed, at Springfield, this sixth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Seal of the Supreme Court, State of Illinois, Aug. 23, 1818.

CHRISTOPHER MAMER,
Clerk of Supreme Court.

[Ten-cent U. S. internal-revenue stamp, canceled 12, 6, '99. C. M.]

1 At a supreme court begun and held at Springfield on Tuesday, the seventh day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, within and for the State of Illinois.

Present: Joseph N. Carter, chief justice; Alfred M. Craig, justice; Jacob W. Wilkin, justice; James H. Cartwright, justice; Benjamin D. Magruder, justice; Jesse J. Phillips, justice; Carroll C. Boggs, justice; Edward C. Akin, attorney general; Edward A. Baxter, sheriff.

Attest: CHRISTOPHER MAMER, Clerk.

Be it remembered that heretofore, to wit, on the fourth day of February, A. D. 1899, there was filed in the office of the clerk of said court a certain transcript of the record and proceedings of the circuit court of La Salle county; which said transcript is in the words and figures following, viz:

2 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, } ss:
State of Illinois, La Salle County, }

Pleas, proceedings, judgments, and decrees before the Honorable Charles Blanchard, Harvey M. Trimble, and Samuel C. Stough, judges of the thirteenth judicial circuit of the State of Illinois, at a regular term of the La Salle county circuit court begun and held at the county court-house, in the city of Ottawa, in said county and State, on the second Monday (being the tenth day) of October, A. D. 1898, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-second.

Present: The Hon. Charles Blanchard, presiding judge; W. H. Stead, State's attorney; Matt. Coulson, sheriff; Henry Phillips, clerk.

Attest: HENRY PHILLIPS, Clerk.

Court opened by due proclamation according to law.

3 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the twenty-eighth day of December, A. D. 1898, there was filed in said court in said cause a certain præcipe in the words and figures following, to wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

In the Circuit Court of La Salle County, January Term, A. D. 1898.

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and GEORGE Ingersol vs. FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH.	Trespass. Damages, $1,000.00.

The clerk of said court will please issue summons, returnable as above directed, to the sheriff of La Salle county to execute, and oblige,

H. MAYO,
Attorney for Pl'ffs.

(Endorsed on back as follows:)

"11529. Circuit court. Emily Elizabeth Ingersol and George Ingersol vs. Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith. Præcipe. Filed Dec. 28, 1897. Henry Phillips, clerk La Salle Co. circuit court."

4 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the twenty-eighth day of December, A. D. 1897, there was filed in said court in said cause a certain declaration in the words and figures following, to wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

In the Circuit Court, to the January Term Thereof, A. D. 1897.

Emily Elizabeth Ingersol and George Ingersol, plaintiffs, by Henry Mayo, their attorney, complain of Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, defendants, of a plea of trespass, for that the defendants, with force and arms, on, to wit, the 13th day of November, A. D. 1897, and on divers other days and times between that day and the commencement of this suit, broke and entered certain closes of the plaintiffs situate in the county of La Salle aforesaid, and then and there forced, broke open, broke to pieces, pulled down, and destroyed, to wit, one hundred and fifty rods of fence, composed of posts, wires, and board, and the boards, posts, wire, staples, hinges, gates, and other material of which said fences were constructed broke to pieces, damaged, and destroyed, to the value of one thousand dollars, and other wrongs to the plaintiffs then and there did, against the peace of the people of this State and to the damage of the plaintiffs of one thousand dollars, and therefore they bring their suit, &c.

HENRY MAYO,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

5 (Endorsed on the back as follows:)
"11529. Circuit court. Emily Elizabeth Ingersol and George Ingersol vs. Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith. Dec. in trespass. Filed Dec. 28, 1897. Henry Phillips, clerk La Salle Co. circuit court. H. Mayo, attorney for pl'ff-."

6 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the tenth day of January, A. D. 1898, there was filed in said court in said cause a certain appearance in the words and figures following, to wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

Circuit Court Thereof, to the Jan. Term, A. D. 1898.

INGERSOLL
vs.
WERLING ET AL. } Action: Trespass.

We hereby enter our appearance for defendants in the above-entitled cause.

LINCOLN & STEAD,
Attorney- for Defendants.

Ottawa, Ill., Jan. 10, 1898.

(Endorsed on back as follows:)
"Gen. No., 11,529; term No., —. Appearance. January term, A. D. 1898. Ingersoll vs. Werling. Filed this 10 day of Jan'y, A. D. 1898. Henry Phillips, clerk. Lincoln & Stead, attorney- for defendants."

7 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the third day of December, A. D. 1898 (the same being one of the days of the regular October term of said court for the year 1898 aforesaid), the following, among other, proceedings were had and entered of record in said court in said cause:

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and George Ingersol vs. FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE Smith.	11529.	Trespass. Damages, $1,000.00.

And now, on this day, come the plaintiffs herein, by Henry Mayo, their attorney, and the defendants by Lincoln & Stead, their attorneys, and, by agreement of parties, by their respective attorneys, a jury herein is waived, and this cause is submitted to the court for trial without a jury.

And thereupon said cause coming on for trial before the court upon the pleadings and proofs, and the court, having heard the evidence adduced and the arguments and suggestions of counsel thereon, takes said cause under advisement.

8 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the eighth day of December, A. D. 1898 (the same being one of the days of the regular October term of said court for the year 1898 aforesaid), the following, among other, proceedings were had and entered of record in said court in said cause:

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and GEORGE INGERSOL vs. FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH. } 11529.

And now, on this day, again come the parties hereto, by their respective attorneys, as heretofore, and the court, having heretofore heard the evidence adduced and the arguments and suggestions of counsel, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds the issues herein joined for the plaintiff (to which finding the defendants except) and assesses plaintiffs' damages at the sum of fifty dollars.

Wherefore plaintiffs ought to have judgment upon the finding of the court. It is therefore considered and ordered by the court that the plaintiffs, Emily Elizabeth Ingersol and George Ingersol, do have and recover of and from the defendants, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, the sum of fifty dollars damages so assessed against them by the finding of the court, together with their costs and charges in this behalf expended, and that they have execution therefor.

9 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the nineteenth day of December, A. D. 1898 (the same being one of the days of the regular October term of said court for the year 1898 aforesaid), the following, among other, proceedings were had and entered of record in said court in said cause:

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and GEORGE INGERSOL
vs.
FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH. } 11529.

And now, on this day, come the defendants, by Lincoln & Stead, their attorneys, and move the court to vacate the judgment and findings herein and for a new trial.

10 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the thirtieth day of December, A. D. 1898 (the same being one of the days of the regular October term of said court for the year 1898 aforesaid), the following, among other, proceedings were had and entered of record in said court in said cause:

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and GEORGE INGERSOL
vs.
FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH. } 11529.

And now, on this day, come the parties, by their respective attorneys, as heretofore, and, the defendants' motion to vacate the judgment and finding and for a new trial coming on to be heard, the court, after hearing the arguments and suggestions of counsel and being advised in the premises, overruled and denied the same (to which ruling and decision of the court the defendants, by their attorney, except).

Thereupon the defendants pray an appeal to the supreme court of the State of Illinois, which is allowed upon the defendants filing bond in the penal sum of two hundred dollars within thirty days, conditioned according to law, with security to be approved by the clerk of this court; and thirty days is allowed to prepare and tender a bill of exceptions.

11 Know all men by these presents that we, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith and Charles J. Metzger, of the county of La Salle and State of Illinois, are held and firmly bound unto Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll in the penal sum of two hundred dollars; for the payment of which, well and truly to be made, we and each of us bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents.

Sealed with our seals and dated at Ottawa, Illinois, this 31st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight.

The condition of the above obligation is such that whereas the said Emily E. Ingersol and George Ingersol did on the 8th day of December, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, at a term of the circuit court then being holden within and for the county of La Salle and State of Illinois, obtain a judgment against the above-bounden Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith for the sum of fifty dollars and costs of suit, from which judgment the said Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith have prayed for and obtained an appeal to the supreme court of said State:

Now, if the said Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith shall duly prosecute said appeal and shall, moreover, pay the amount of the said judgment, costs, interest, and damages rendered and to be rendered against them — the said supreme court in case the said judgment shall be affirmed in the said supreme court, then 12 the above obligation to be null and void; otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

F. X. WERLING. [L. S.]
E. C. SMITH. [L. S.]
CHARLES J. METZGER. [L. S.]

Filed and approved this 4th day of Jan'y, A. D. 1899.

HENRY PHILLIPS, Clerk.

13 Be it remembered that on, to wit, the fourth day of January, A. D. 1899, there was filed in said court in said cause a certain bill of exceptions in the words and figures following, to wit:

Bill of Exceptions.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

Circuit Court of said County, October Term, A. D. 1898.

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOL and George Ingersol vs. FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE Smith.	11529.	Trespass. Damages, $1,000.00.

And now, on this day, comes the plaintiffs, by Henry Mayo, their attorney, and the defendants, by Lincoln & Stead, their attorneys, and by agreement of parties, by their said attornys, a jury herein is waived; and this cause is submitted to the court for trial without a jury, and thereupon said cause coming on for trial before the Honorable Charles Blanchard, judge of said court, the parties, in order to maintain the issues upon their respective parts, offered or introduced the following evidence:

14 The plaintiffs, by their attorney. offered and read in evidence a certain stipulation entered into between the parties to said cause, by their respective attorneys, and filed in said cause on the twenty-eighth day of September, in the year A. D. 1898, in the words and figures following, to wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

In the Circuit Court.

EMILY ELIZABETH INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL
vs.
FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH. } Trespass.

Stipulation.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the parties to the above-entitled cause that said cause shall be tried by the Honorable Charles Blanchard, one of the judges of said court, without the intervention of a jury, the trial by jury being hereby waived.

It is further agreed that all questions of pleading are waived, and that any and all evidence competent to establish a cause of action or a defense shall be treated in the same manner and shall be given 15 the same force and effect as though all proper pleas had been filed and properly pleaded.

It is further stipulated and agreed that said trial shall be had upon the following agreed statement of facts, together with such further evidence as either party may introduce upon the trial:

I.

Section ten (10), township thirty-three (33) north, range three (3) east, of the third principal meridian, in La Salle county, Illinois, was one of the sections of land reserved to the United States under the act of Congress of March 2, 1827, entitled "An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan."

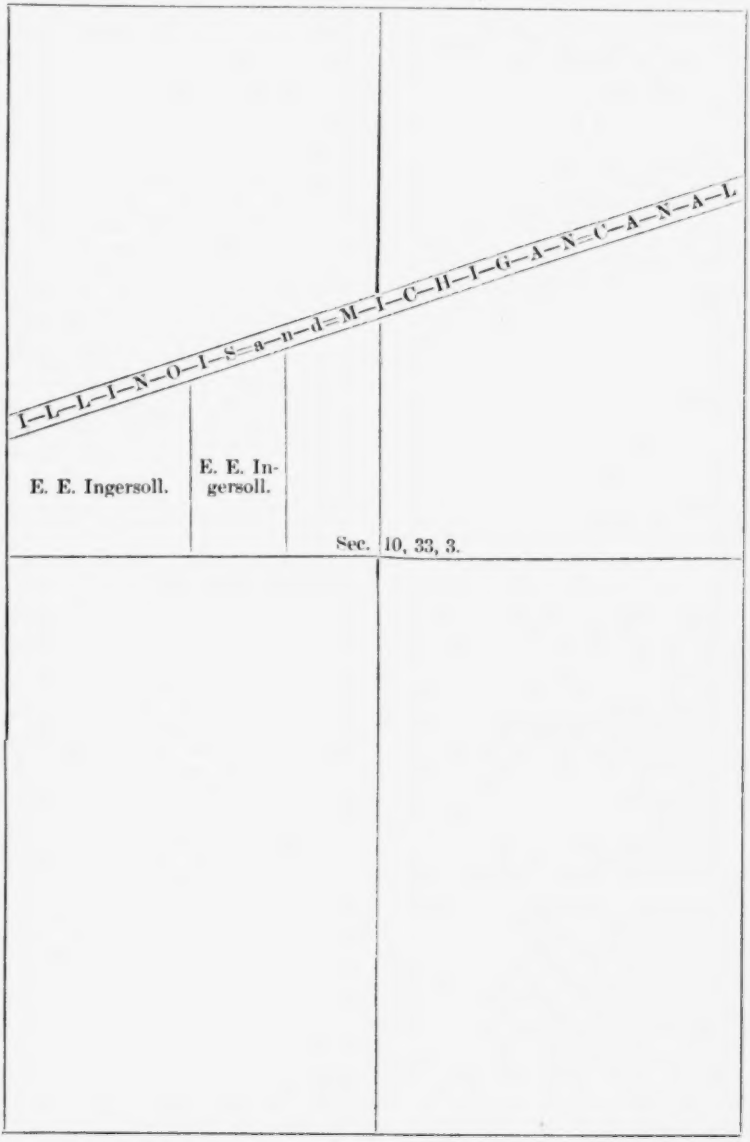
II.

The Illinois and Michigan canal, which connects the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, as located and constructed under the acts of Congress of the United States, extends in a northeasterly and southwesterly direction through said section ten.

The plaintiff Emily E. Ingersoll is the owner in fee-simple of that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the northwest quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$), and that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the southeast quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) of the northwest quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) of said section ten (10) which lie south of the right of way of said Illinois and Michigan canal.

16 The location of the plaintiff's said tracts of land with reference to the said Illinois and Michigan canal is correctly represented by the following plat, marked for reference "Plat A:

Plat A.



I—L—L—I—N—O—I—S=a—u—d=M—I—C—H—I—G—A—N=C—A—N—A—L
E. E. Ingersoll.
E. E. Ingersoll.
Sec. 10, 33, 3.

17 III.

The east half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of section ten (10) was entered by J. M. and W. M. Warnock on June 26, 1835, and through proper mesne conveyances was conveyed to John V. A. Hoes on December 27, 1841.

On June 1, 1867, John V. A. Hoes and Fanny R. Hoes, his wife, by their warranty deed of that date, conveyed to the plaintiff, Emily E. Ingersoll, all of the west half (½) of the east half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of said section ten (10) lying south of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

The west half of the northwest quarter (1–2) of said section ten (10) was entered by Henry L. Brush on July 1, 1835, and through proper mesne conveyances was conveyed to Henry F. Eames on August 9, 1858.

On May 25, 1859, Henry F. Eames and Emily S. Eames, his wife, by their quitclaim deed of that date, conveyed to Burton C. Cook the west half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of said section ten (10) excepting that part used by canal.

18 On February 8, 1862, Burton C. Cook and Elizabeth H. Cook, his wife, by their quitclaim deed of that date conveyed to Philo H. Lindley all that part of the west half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of said section ten (10) lying south of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

Through proper mesne conveyances from the said Philo H. Lindley, all that part of the west half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of said section ten (10) lying south of the Illinois and Michigan canal was conveyed to George H. Norris on August 4, 1869.

On June 7, 1870, George H. Norris, by warranty deed of that date, conveyed to the plaintiff Emily E. Ingersoll all that part of the west half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of section ten (10) lying south of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

IV.

The plaintiff claims that the right of way of the Illinois and Michigan canal through said section ten (10) and the title and rights acquired by the State of Illinois to lands therein under the various acts of Congress are limited and confined to the land used and occupied as and for the canal basin, and to a strip of land seventeen feet in width along and contiguous to the south margin of said canal basin used and occupied as and for a towpath;

19 that the south margin of said towpath constitutes the northern boundary line of her said lands.

The defendants claim that the State of Illinois is the owner of a strip of land ninety feet in width, extending through said section ten (10) along and contiguous to the south side of said canal.

If it shall be determined that the State of Illinois is not the owner and is not entitled to the possession of a strip of land ninety feet in width, extending through said section ten (10) along the south side of said canal, then it is hereby stipulated and agreed that the de fendants were guilty of trespass, as alleged in the plaintiffs' declaration, and that judgment may be entered accordingly.

If it shall be determined that the State of Illinois is the owner and is entitled to the possession of said ninety-foot strip of land, then it is hereby stipulated and agreed that the defendants were not guilty of trespass, as alleged in the plaintiffs' declaration, and that judgment may be entered accordingly—

It being the understanding and agreement of the parties hereto, and it is so expressly stipulated and agreed, that the sole question and issue for determination and decision in this case is and 20 shall be whether or not the State of Illinois, under and by virtue of the acts of Congress of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827, or either of them (which said acts of Congress are set out in this stipulation), became and is vested with the ownership and title of and to a strip of land ninety feet in width on the south side of the said Illinois and Michigan canal through said section ten (10) aforesaid.

V.

For more than twenty years prior to November 13, 1897, the plaintiff Emily E. Ingersoll was in the possession and occupancy of all that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the southeast quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) of the northwest quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$), and all that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the northwest quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) of said section ten (10) lying south of said towpath, and during said time the plaintiff maintained a fence along the south margin of said towpath, said fence being situated a distance of seventeen feet from the south margin of the basin of said Illinois and Michigan canal.

VI.

On November 13, 1897, the defendants took down the plaintiffs' fence and removed the same from said ninety-foot strip on the south side of said Illinois and Michigan canal in said section ten (10) aforesaid.

21 VII.

The defendants, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, were the duly constituted agents of the State of Illinois, and in taking down and removing the plaintiffs' said fence the defendants were acting for and on behalf of the State of Illinois and under and by virtue of its authority and direction.

VIII.

The act of Congress authorizing the State of Illinois to open a canal through the public lands to connect the Illinois river with Lake Michigan was and is as follows:

"An act to authorize the State of Illinois to open a canal through the public lands to connect the Illinois river with Lake Michigan.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled:

SEC. 1. The State of Illinois be and is hereby authorized to survey and mark, through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in cases hereinafter provided for, and the use 22 thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever—on condition, however, that if the said State does not survey and direct by law said canal to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passing of this act, or if the said canal be not completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years thereafter, or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by, and used for, a canal suitable for navigation, the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect; provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, that nothing in this act contained, or that shall be done in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed or construed to imply any obligation on the part of the United States to appropriate any money to defray the expenses of surveying or opening said canal; provided also, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said canal when completed, shall be, and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll or other charge whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same.

SEC. 2. Every section of land through which said canal
23 route may pass, shall be and the same is hereby reserved from future sale, until hereafter specially directed by law; and said State is hereby authorized and permitted, without waste, to use any materials on the public lands adjacent to said canal, that may be necessary for its construction."

Approved March 30, 1822.

IX.

The General Assembly of the State of Illinois, on the 14th day of February, 1823, passed an act to provide for the survey and opening of a canal between the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, which act is as follows:

"An act to provide for the improvement of the internal navigation of this State.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly That Emanuel J. West, Erastus Brown, Theophilus W. Smith, Thomas Sloo, Junior, and Samuel Alexander, be, and they are hereby, appointed a board of commissioners, to consider, devise and adopt such measures as shall or may be requisite to effect the communication, by canal and locks, between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan; and in the case of the death or resignation of any of the said commissioners, in the recess of the General Assembly, the governor, or the person administering the government of this State, shall appoint another commissioner or commissioners to supply such vacancy or vacancies; who shall continue in office until the end of the next session of the General Assembly.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That the said commissioners shall choose one of their number to be president of said board, who shall have power to call a meeting of the same, whenever, in his opinion it shall be requisite and necessary, and the said board may adjourn from time to time, to meet at any time and place they may deem most conducive to the public good; and further, the said commissioners shall have power to employ an engineer, and such other persons as may be necessary to enable them to fulfil and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act; and to allow and pay the said engineer and other persons, so by them employed, for their respective services, such sum or sums of money as may be adequate and reasonable.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners, as soon as may be, after the passage of this act, to cause that part of the territory of this State, which may lie open or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of the said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same, and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books and drafts thereof to be made; and further to adopt and recommend proper plans for the construction and formation of the said canal, and of the locks, dams, and embankments, tunnels, culverts, and acqueducts, which may be necessary for the completion of the same; and to cause all necessary plans, drafts and models thereof, to be extended under their direction.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to make, or cause to be made, with as much accuracy and minuteness as may be, calculations and estimates of the sum or sums of money which may or will be necessary for completing the said canal according to the plan or plans which may be adopted and recommended by them for the construction and formation of the same; and to cause the said calculations, and estimates, and all surveys, maps, field books, plans, drafts, and models, authorized and directed by this act, or so many thereof as may be completed, together with a plain and comprehensive report of all their proceedings, under and by virtue of this act, to be presented to the General Assembly of the State, at the commencement of their next regular session, or at the commencement of an extra session of the present General Assembly, should the governor convene the same.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That the said commissioners are authorized and required and required to invite the attention

26 of the governors of the States of Ohio and Indiana, and, through them, the legislatures of their respective States, to the importance of improving and connecting the navigation of the Wabash and Maumee rivers, by canal communications, and to recommend the adoption of preparatory measures to effect that object; and that the said commissioners report, as required in the preceeding section of this act, all their correspondence and proceedings in relation to effecting the aforesaid communication.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the auditor of this State, whenever a majority of said commissioners shall require it, to issue his warrant on the treasurer, to pay to the order of a majority of the said commissioners, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, any sum or sums of money, in the whole not exceeding six thousand dollars, and for which the said commissioners shall account to the auditor, on or before the tenth day of the next regular session of the General Assembly."

Approved, February 14, 1823.

X.

On January 13, 1825, an act of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois theretofore passed, entitled "An act making appropriations for the years 1825 and 1826," was duly amended by the said General Assembly by adding thereto the following sections:

"SEC. 6. That the sum of two thousand eleven dollars and 27 thirty-one cents ($2,011.31) be and is hereby appropriated to and for the actual expenditures made and liabilities incurred by the canal commissioners, to be paid to the order of a majority of the said commissioners at any time after the first day of January next.

SECTION 7. That Erastus Brown, one of the canal commissioners appointed by the last General Assembly to examine, survey, etc., the route for the canal between the waters of Lake Michigan and Illinois river, be paid the sum of three dollars and thirty-five cents per day for each day by him employed in that service; the number of days to be ascertained by his own oath indorsed on his account for services, to be filed with the auditor before obtaining his warrant."

XI.

On January 17, 1825, the General Assembly of the State of Illinois passed an act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company; which said act was and is in the words and figures following, to wit:

"An act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company.

Whereas, the improvement of the internal navigation of the State by connecting the waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, will greatly promote the best interests of our citizens, and facilitate and expediate the development of the recourses, wealth and importance of the State; therefore,

28 SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That Edward Coles, Shadrach Bond, Justus Post, Erastus Brown, William S. Hamilton, Joseph Duncan and John Warnock, and their associates who shall hereafter become subscribers to the capital stock, their heirs, successors, and assigns, shall be and are hereby created, made and constituted a corporation and body politic, by the name and style of the president, directors and company of 'The Illinois and Michigan Canal Association,' and by that name shall be and are hereby made able and capable, in law to have, purchase, and receive, possess, retain and enjoy, to them, and their heirs, successors, and assigns, any lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels and rents of whatever description, kind and nature, which by them may be considered requisite or convenient for the production and completion of the object of the association as hereinafter specified and declared, and the same to give, grant, bargain, sell, alien, convey, dispose of, and conform, to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, and defend and be defended in all courts of law and equity in this State, to make, have and use a common seal, and the same to break, alter and renew at their pleasure; and also to ordain, establish and put in force and execution such ordinances, by-laws, and regulations for the government, of the corporation, as the president and directors thereof may, from time to time, deem necessary and convenient; and the same to annually
29 revise, and alter as the said president and directors for the time being or their successors in office, may deem expedient; provided, that such by-laws, ordinances and regulations, shall not be contrary to the laws and constitution of this State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That the capital stock of said association shall consist of one million dollars (exclusive of such real, personal and mixed estate as the said corporation may deem it expedient for the prosecution of the business of the said association to acquire), which said capital stock shall be divided into ten thousand shares of one thousand dollars each; provided, however, that, in case it should be by the said president and directors be deemed requisite and advisable, that said president and directors for the time being, may at their pleasure increase the said capital stock from time to time by augmenting the value of the respective shares thereof.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That the president and directors, of said association, above named, shall at such time or times, and at such place or places as they may deem expedient and proper, cause books for subscriptions to be opened for the capital stock aforesaid, which subscriptions shall be paid at such time or times, and in such installments as the president and directors for the time being may, from time to time, prescribe and direct: and whenever a majority of the said capital stock shall have been subscribed, the 30 president and directors shall, as soon as practicable, call a meeting of the stockholders of said association, to be holden at such place as the said president and directors may conceive advisable, at which time and place the said stockholders either in person or by proxy (each share being entitled to one vote) shall proceed to elect by ballot five of their members to serve as directors till the first Monday of January next thereafter ensuing, or till such time as an election of directors shall have been made. And that when the election of directors shall have been closed the directors elected shall proceed to elect by ballot one of their body to serve as president of said corporation till the next ensuing annual election which in each year thereafter shall be holden on the first Monday of January in each succeeding year; but provided the said election should not be holden on the respective days herein specified, the corporation shall not thereby be considered dissolved, but shall on some other day not far distant, proceed to hold such election.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That, in a convenient time after ten per centum of the capital stock shall have been paid to the treasurer of said corporation it shall be the duty of the board to commence constructing a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, and proceed as rapidly to the completion of that object as may be deemed practicable, and expedient, 31 having in view the ultimate permanency of the work, and the facility and safety of the communications.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That the canal contemplated by this act shall have the following dimensions, to wit, at least forty feet wide at the summit water line, twenty-eight feet wide at bottom, and of sufficient depth to contain water at least four feet deep; and be furnished with such locks, aqueducts, and dams as may be required as to ensure a safe and convenient navigation for boats of at least twenty-five feet long, thirteen feet six inches wide, drawing three feet of water; and that the rate of tolls to be established by said corporation shall not exceed for boats constructed particularly for the canal navigation, one-half cent per mile for each ton of the capacity of said boat; on flour, meal, all kinds of grain, beef, pork, tobacco, and all other articles the growth and produce of the State, on merchandise of domestic manufacture, six cents per mile per ton; and on all other articles not herein enumerated, a sum not exceeding eight cents per mile per ton. And for the purpose of collecting such rates or tolls, it shall and may be lawful for the collector or toll-gatherer of said company to stop and detain all boats or crafts intending to pass any such lock, until the rate or toll shall be paid; and, if any such boat or craft having passed any such lock, shall afterwards refuse to pay the toll or rates established as afore-32 said the person having charge of such boat shall forfeit and pay to such company triple the amount of such toll or rates, to be recovered by action of debt or otherwise, before any justice of the peace; and the property of such boat or craft, and the loading of the same, shall be liable to execution on any judgment so recovered whether it belongs to the person so refusing or not.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That, to enable the said corporation to advantageously effect the canal navigation, and objects contemplated by this act, they are hereby authorized and empowered to employ at their office and on their work, and in and about the business of said corporation, such engineers, subofficers, clerks, laborers, servants and domestics, as they may from time to time require; and all persons employed in the service of said corporation shall at no time (the invasion of the country by an enemy alone excepted) be liable or subject to perform military or militia duty; and in all respects to manage their business and conduct their operations as in their opinion may be conducive to the interest and benefit of the corporation.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That, all cessions, grants and transfers made, or that may hereafter be made by the Government of the United States, by an individual State, or by any person or persons, to this State, or to the said corporation, of any lands, stocks, tenements, or hereditaments for the purpose of promoting the 33 completion of the internal navigation contemplated by this act, shall pass to and be vested in the said corporation, together with all the right, title and interest, property, estate and demand, and also all the profit and emoluments thence arising, as fully and effectually as the State could, by virtue of the gifts, grants and cessions, as aforesaid, occupy, possess and enjoy the same: Provided, however, that the said company shall have begun and completed said canal, previous to the first day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, That at any time from and after the expiration of fifty years from and after the entire completion of said canal, this State shall have the right and privileges to become possessor of said canal, together with all the privileges and emoluments thence arising and also of all the grants, cessions and privileges given, granted and made and created by this act, to said corporation, by refunding to the president and directors thereof in lawful money of the United States of America, the absolute costs and charges by them incurred in and about said canal together with the interest computed on the whole, semi-annually, from the time of expenditure to the time of payment by said State, at the rate of six per centum per annum. Provided, always, that the said corporation shall and may, at all times, peac-ably and quietly 34 have and hold, occupy, possess and enjoy the said canal, together with all the privileges and emoluments thereunto belonging and therefrom arising until the State shall absolutely and after the expiration of the fifty years aforesaid, pay or cause to be paid as aforesaid to the said corporation, the costs and charges of said canal, together with interest on the same as aforesaid.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That after the expiration of the said period of fifty years as aforesaid, whenever the said State shall pay or cause to be paid to the said corporation, with interest as aforesaid, the absolute costs and charges of said canal, then the said corporation shall be obliged to transfer, alien, release, and convey to the said State, all right, title, interest, estate, property, claims, and demand it has in and to said canal, together with all the privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging; also all such parts of real estate as are hereby, or may hereafter be ceded by said State to said corporation, as may or shall at the time remain unsold or undisposed of by said corporation, and for such part or parts of real estate, ceded as aforesaid by the State, as may have been sold or disposed of by the said corporation, the said corporation shall refund to the State the amount received therefor, together with interest on the whole from the time of payment, computed semi-annually at the rate of six per centum per annum. And the said 35 company shall at every session of the General Assembly, until the completion of the work, report a certified statement of the aggregate expense by them incurred on said canal."

XII.

On January 18, 1826, the senate and house of representatives of the State of Illinois adopted a memorial to the Congress of the United States, which said memorial was thereafter and during said month of January, 1826, transmitted to and received by the Congress of the United States; which said memorial was and is in the words and figures following to wit:

United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois respectfully represents that the construction of a canal uniting the waters of Lake Michigan with the Illinois river will form an important addition to the great connecting links in the chain of internal navigation which will effectually secure the insoluble union of the confederate members of this great and powerful Republic. By the completion of this great and valuable work the connection between the North and the South, the East and the West, would be strengthened by the ties of commercial intercourse and social neighborhood, and the union of the States might bid defiance to internal commotion, sectional jealousy, and foreign invasion. All the 36 States of the Union would then feel the most powerful motives to resist every attempt at dissolution. To effect so great and desirable an object your memorialists believe to be of sufficient importance to engage the attention and awaken the munificent patronage of a government whose principle of action is the promotion of the general welfare. Your memorialists are sensibly alive to the spirit of improvement that manifests itself in almost every section of our extensive country and would fain lend a helping hand in so great and good a cause. Their situation, however, forbids their doing much without the aid of the Federal Government, into whose Treasury almost all the funds, whether brought hither by emigrants or earned by the industry of their citizens, are paid for the purchase of the public lands. While this state of things shall continue and the money thus paid into the Treasury of the Union is taken out of our State our people will not be able to engage in the glorious work of improving our common country. Ought the people of this State to stand by with folded arms and behold the great work of internal improvment progress in other States without making an effort to improve their own conditions and at the same time advance the interest of our beloved country? A condition thus paralized is at war not only with our interests, but with the best feelings

37 of our hearts. Did this State possess the public domain lying within its bounds as in the case with the older members of this Confederacy your memorialists would not appear before your honorable body to solicit aid in this important work. If, as your memorialists believe, the construction of this canal would be highly beneficial to the Union at large, if the receipts into the treasury of the United States would be augmented by the increased sales of public lands, and if the interest of this State would be also advanced thereby, is it unreasonable to apply to a paternal government for assistance in the promotion of such beneficial ends? It is unnecessary for your memorialists to enlarge on the great advantages of this canal to the Union in the facilities to be afforded in the event of war either with the Indian tribe- inhabiting our frontier or the British nation. Your honorable body is aware that this State is situated on the borders of an Indian country filled with numerous and powerful tribes of the sons of the forest. If our country should be again engaged in war, the saving of expense in the transportation of munitions of war would alone defray the expense of the contemplated canal and justify the United States in making a liberal appropriation for its construction. Your memorialists do not, however, ask your honorable body to appropriate money out of the Treasury to aid them in this work. They only ask for a track of land
38 through which the contemplated canal may pass and which for a series of years will be wholly unproductive to the Government unless the canal shall be commenced under auspices favorable to its completion; in which event all the land in the vicinity would immediately become available to the United States. Your memorialists sincerely believe that a liberal appropriation of land for this object would, even in a pecuniary point of view, be of immense importance to the Treasury of the Union. The public lands in the vicinity would not only sell, but at a considerable advance upon the minimum price. Should this opinion be correct (and does not experience justify it?), the United States would be gainers by the proposed donation to the State. Your memorialists further state that at their last session they passed an act of incorporation, upon very liberal terms authorizing a company to construct the projected canal; but the remoteness of the country from the residence of capitalists has prevented them from engaging in the work. At their present session your memorialists have repealed the charter, and their only hope of soon beginning the work depends upon the liberality of your honorable body. Your memorialists have caused the route to be explored and estimates to be made of the probable expense of the work; from which it appears that the cost of constructing the canal will not be less than $600,000, 39 and may possibly amount to $700,000. To the end, therefore, that your memorialists may be enabled to commence and complete this great and useful work, we pray your honorable body to grant to this State the respective townships of land through which the contemplated canal may pass, the avails of which to be appropriated exclusively to the construction of said canal upon such terms and conditions as to your honorable body may seem proper.

DAVID BLACKWELL,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
RAPHAEL WIDEN,
Speaker of the Senate pro Tem.

40 XIII.

On January 20, 1826, the General Assembly of the State of Illinois passed an act repealing the act incorporating the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company; which act was and is in the words and figures following, to wit:

"An act to repeal An act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company, and for other purposes.

"Whereas, the persons named in the first section of an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company,' have not performed any act by which the right of the General Assembly to repeal their charter could be taken away; and whereas it is believed that the highly important object of the above-cited act can be promoted with greater advantage to the public, by having the contemplated canal constructed under the direction of the State; therefore,

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company,' approved January 17, 1825, and the act entitled, 'An act to provide for the improvement of the internal navigation of this State,' approved Feb. 14, 1823, be and the same are hereby repealed.

41 SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the governor of this State to endeavor to ascertain the best terms on which loans can be obtained on behalf of the State, for the purpose of constructing a canal from Lake Michigan to the Illinois river, and to report the same to the General Assembly at their next session."

XIV.

On December 5, 1826, Edward Coles, governor of the State of Illinois, delivered to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois a message, a portion of which said message was and is in the words and figures following, viz:

"In the fulfillment of the duty imposed by the legislature, the executive has endeavored to ascertain the terms on which a loan could be procured by the State for the purpose of constructing a canal from Lake Michigan to the Illinois river; but, owing to the great fluctuation and depression of the money market and the uncertainty of the situation during the next year, capitalists were reluctant to commit themselves to any specific terms on which they would be willing to make a loan at so remote a period. From the best information, however, which has been received, it is confidently believed that if Congress should make a liberal grant of land, there will be no difficulty on the part of the State in obtaining a loan at six per cent. per annum. Considering the 42 favorable manner in which our application for a grant of land was received by Congress at its last session, would it not be wise in the legislature to adopt at its present session preparatory measures to commence this great work of improvement, predicated on the liberal grant of land by Congress previous to the meeting of the next General Assembly?"

XV.

On March 2, 1827, the Congress of the United States passed an act to aid the State of Illinois in opening a canal connecting the waters of the Illinois river with Lake Michigan; which act was and is in the words and figures following, to wit:

"An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be, and hereby is, granted to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United 43 States, to be selected by the commissioner of the land office, under the directions of the President of the United States, from one end of the said canal to the other; and the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the legislature of the said State, for the purpose aforesaid, and no other: Provided, that the said canal when completed, shall be and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll, or other charge, whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same: Provided, that said canal shall be commenced within five years, and completed in twenty years, or the State shall be bound to pay to the United States the amount of any lands previously sold, and that the title to purchasers under the State shall be valid.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That, so soon as the route of the said canal shall be located and agreed on by the said State, it shall be the duty of the governor thereof, or such other person or persons as may have been, or shall hereafter be, authorized to superintend the construction of said canal, to examine and ascertain the particular sections to which the said State shall be entitled, under the provisions of this act, and report the same to the Secre-
44 tary of the Treasury of the United States.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said State, under the authority of the legislature thereof, after the selection shall have been so made, shall have power to sell and convey the whole, or any part of said land, and to give a title in fee-simple therefor, to whomsoever shall purchase the whole, or any part thereof.

Approved March 2, 1827."

XVI.

On January 22, 1829, the General Assembly of the State of Illinois passed an act providing for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal; which said act is in the words and figures following, to wit:

"An act to provide for constructing the Illinois and Michigan canal.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the governor shall biennially nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to consider, devise and adopt, such measures as may be required to facilitate and effect the communications, by means of a canal and locks, 45 between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, and in case of the death, resignation, or refusal to act, during the recess of the legislature, of either of said commissioners, the vacancy thereby occasioned shall be filled by the governor.

SEC. 2. The said commissioners shall choose one of their number to be president of the board, and shall appoint some [illegible]ble person or persons to be their secretary and treasurer, who shall be allowed and paid quarter-yearly, such compensation, out of the canal fund, as the said commissioners shall deem reasonable and just. And the president of the board shall have power to call a meeting of the commissioners whenever, in his opinion, the public interest requires it; or a majority of the commissioners may request it. And the said board may adjourn, from time to time, to meet at any time and place they may deem most conducive to the public good. And the said commissioners shall have power to employ such agents, engineers, surveyors, draftsmen, and other persons, as in their opinion may be necessary, to enable them to fulfil and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act; and to pay them such compensation for their services as they may think them justly entitled to; provided that if the Government of the United States furnishes an engineer, it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to 46 accept of his services, for the purposes contemplated by this act.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the said canal commissioners before they enter upon the discharge of the duties imposed upon them by this act, to take an oath, well and faithfully to execute the duties of their office, and severally to enter bond to the people of the State of Illinois, to be approved by the governor, with at least two good and sufficient securities, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, faithfully to account for all moneys that may come into their hands, by virtue of their office, and they shall respectively receive, as a compensation for their services, three dollars per day, for each day they may necessarily — engaged in discharge of the duties imposed by this act, out of canal fund, and the treasurer shall pay the same.

SEC. 4. The treasurer, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, shall take an oath, well and faithfully to execute the duties of treasurer, and shall enter into bond, with two or more good and sufficient securities, to the canal commissioners, to be approved by them, conditioned for the faithful discharge of all the duties imposed upon him by this act, or shall hereafter be imposed upon him by law, and to account faithfully for all sums of money and effects that may come to his hands as treasurer. And it shall be the duty of the canal commissioners, whenever the 47 money in the possession of the treasurer or to be received by him, shall exceed the sum in which he shall have given bond, to require him to give additional bond, with additional security, sufficient to cover the amount received, or to be received by said treasurer; and for a failure to give such bond, or for any culpable neglect of duty, said commissioners may remove him from office, and may appoint another in his place.

SEC. 5. It shall be the duty of the canal commissioners, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act; to cause those parts of the territory of this State which is upon, or contiguous to, the probable course or range of said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same; and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books, and drafts to be made; and as soon thereafter as they may be able to command sufficient funds, and deem it expedient, shall commence the work by opening a canal, and constructing locks, aqueducts, and dams and embankments, to effect a navigable communication between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river.

SEC. 6. The canal commissioners shall select, or cause to be selected, as soon as practicable, in conjunction with such 48 commissioner as shall be appointed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, under the direction of the President of the United States, the alternate sections of land granted to this State by the provisions of an act of Congress, entitled 'An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding her in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan,' approved 2nd of March, 1827. And if no commissioner shall be appointed on the part of the General Government, the said commissioners, or either of them, shall proceed to make such selections; and shall, without delay, forward to the governor a duplicate copy of the list containing the numbers of each section by him or them selected, who shall forward a copy of the same to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SEC. 7. As soon as said lands shall have been selected, and a duplicate list thereof furnished as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of said commissioners to give the necessary public notice, and proceed to sell the same, at any place, either in this State or elsewhere, as they may think best, in half quarter sections, quarter or fractional sections. The sale shall be conducted in the same manner, and the land sold upon the same terms and conditions in all respects, as the lands of the United States are now sold. Any or either of said commissioners may superintend said sales, and the treasurer shall have the same power, and perform the same duties in the disposal of said lands, that are exercised by the receivers of public moneys of the United States. And it shall be the duty of the said superintending commissioner or commissioners, to grant to the purchaser or purchasers, a certificate of purchase, containing a description of the number of acres purchased, and the price for which the same was sold; duplicates of all which, said commissioner or commissioners, shall forward to the auditor of public accounts, who shall record the same. And the person holding such certificate shall, upon presenting the same to the governor, receive a patent for the land described in the same, signed by the governor, and countersigned by the secretary of state, with the seal of the State annexed thereto. The said commissioners shall have power to pay off such parts of said donation into town lots, as they may think proper; and to sell the same at public sale, in the same manner as is provided in this act for the sale of other lands. No sale shall be made otherwise than for cash. No land shall be sold at private sale, until the same shall have been offered at public sale.

SEC. 8. The treasurer at all times (except the times of public sale) shall keep an office open at some point on the route of said canal at which persons may enter any of the lands included within the said donation, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, in cash, in the same manner in which lands may be entered in any of the land offices of the United States. And at such private sales the treasurer shall grant a certificate of purchase to the purchaser, containing a description of the quantity of land, and the price for which the same was sold; upon presenting which to the governor, the party shall be entitled to receive a patent for the same, as above provided. It shall be the further duty of the treasurer to make entries of sales of land made by him, in book or books, to be kept by him for that purpose, containing a faithful description of the quantity of acres, in each tract sold by him, and the price at which the same was sold, and shall make monthly returns therefor to the auditor of public accounts.

SEC. 9. It shall be the duty of the commissioners (a majority of whom may act in all cases whatever) to draw upon the treasurer in favor of all persons to whom the board may become indebted; and said treasurer shall pay out no money except upon the order of said commissioners, or as in herein expressly provided for; and he shall take receipts therefor. Duplicates of all orders shall be kept by said commissioners, and it shall be the duty of said commissioners, and treasurer, to furnish duplicates of all orders and receipts, and a complete detailed statement of the amount of sales and receipts, the quantity of land sold, the prices for which the same was sold, and of all their proceedings, to each called or regular session of the General Assembly, accompanied with such plans, remarks and observations, as they may be enabled to make, respecting the further progress and execution of said work.

SEC. 10. Said commissioners may sue and be sued, and defend in the name of 'the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal.' And to enable said commissioners to accomplish the object herein contemplated, it shall be lawful for them to enter and take of and use, any lands, waters and streams, necessary for the prosecution of the work intended by this act.

SEC. 11. The canal contemplated by this act, shall have the following dimensions, to wit: At least 40 feet in width at the summit water line, twenty-eight feet wide at the bottom, and of sufficient depth to contain at least four feet of water. And it shall be furnished with such locks, aqueducts and dams, as may be required to insure a safe and convenient navigation for boats of at least twenty-five feet long, thirteen feet six inches wide, and drawing three 52 feet of water. The reasonable expenses incurred by said commissioner-, in carrying the provisions of this act into effect, shall be paid out of the funds arising from the sales of the aforesaid lands.

Approved January 22, 1829."

Under the provisions of the last above act the governor of the State of Illinois, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and on, to wit, the month of March, 1829, appointed Edward Roberts, Gersham Jayne, and Charles Dunn canal commissioners.

XVII.

On September 23, 1829, the canal commissioners appointed under the act of the General Assembly of January 22, 1829, by their agent and representative, Elijah Iles, obtained from the secretary of state of the State of Illinois the certain map of the route of the Illinois and Michigan canal made by J. Post and R. Paul, and at that time said Elijah Iles, for and on behalf of said commissioners, executed to the said secretary of state a receipt for said map; which receipt was and is in the words and figures following:

"VANDALIA, Sept. 23, 1829.

Received of the secretary of state, for the use of the com-
53 missioners appointed by the General Assembly at the session of 1828 and 1829 for the purpose of locating and examining the canal route from Lake Michigan to the falls of the Illinois river, the map of the surveyed lands lying on said route and the profile of the survey made by the former commissioners appointed to locate said route.

ELIJAH ILES."

XVIII.

During the years 1823 and 1824 the State of Illinois surveyed and marked through the public lands of the United States the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan, but did not return a map thereof to the Treasury Department within three years from March 30, 1822.

XIX.

The State of Illinois did, in the year 1829, return a complete map of the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan to the Treasury Department of the United States; which said map was filed in said department in said year, a duly certified copy of which said map, with endorsements thereon, is now on file in the office of the canal commissioners of the State of Illinois, at their office in the city of Lockport, Illinois, and is marked 54 for identification "Exhibit B," and is made by reference a part of this stipulation.

It is agreed that said certified copy marked "Exhibit B" shall be introduced and considered in evidence upon the trial of this case without further identification or proof, and that said certified copy shall be given the same force and effect as would be given the said original map if offered and admitted in evidence.

The State of Illinois commenced the construction of the said canal connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, the name thereof being the Illinois and Michigan canal, in the year A. D. 1837, and completed the same in the year A. D. 1847, upon the route as indicated by said map marked Exhibit "B."

XXI.

The said Illinois and Michigan canal from the date of its completion to the present time has been suitable for navigation, and has been used as and for a canal for the purpose of navigation.

XXII.

It is not the intention of the parties hereto or of either of them to submit this cause or the matters in controversy between said
55 parties for determination under an act of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois entitled "An act to enable parties to avoid delay in the administration of justice," approved June 17, 1887, in force July 1, 1887.

It being the intention of the parties hereto by this stipulation to waive a jury and submit the cause to the court for trial, and that said trial shall be had in the same manner as common-law causes are tried by a court without the intervention of a jury and upon the facts as hereinabove stipulated, together with such further evidence as either party may introduce upon the trial.

(Signed) HENRY MAYO,
Plaintiffs' Attorney.

(Signed) LINCOLN & STEAD,
Defendants' Attorney-.

(Endorsed on the back of which stipulation is the following:)

"11529. Emily E. Ingersoll vs. Frank X. Werling. Stipulation. Filed Sept. 28, 1898. Henry Phillips, clerk La Salle Co. circuit court."

The plaintiffs, by their attorney, offered and introduced in evidence the map marked Exhibit "B," referred to in the said stipulation, in the words and figures following, to wit:

56 I, F. M. Ryon, secretary of the canal commissioners, officers of the State of Illinois, and keeper of the records and seal of the canal commissioners aforesaid, do hereby certify that the annexed and foregoing tracing copy of map of the Illinois and Michigan canal, filed under the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 2, 1827, and also of the letter transmitting said map to the General Land Office by the governor of Illinois, under date December 25, 1829, and the certificate of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, under date of November 23, 1882, are true and literal exemplifications of the originals now on file in this office.

Witness my hand and the official seal of the canal commissioners aforesaid this sixteenth day of June, 1898.

[SEAL.] F. M. RYON, Secretary.

H. F. (4–207.) T. C.
J. D. S.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 23, 1882.

I, N. C. McFarland, Commissioner of the General Land Office, do hereby certify that the annexed tracing copy of map of the Illinois and Michigan canal, filed under the provisions of the act of 57 Congress approved March 2, 1827, and also, hereto attached, the letter transmitting said map to this office by the governor of Illinois, dated 25 December, 1829, are true and literal exemplifications of the originals now on file in this office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused the seal of this office to be affixed, at the city of Washington, on the day and year above written.

[SEAL.] N. C. McFARLAND,
Commissioner of General Land Office.

(2470–500.)

BELLEVILLE, ILLINOIS, 25 Dec., 1829.

SIR: I have the honor herewith to transmit to you a map of the route which has been selected for the canal to connect the waters of Lake Michigan and the Illinois river, with the selection of lands granted to the State which has been made by the canal commissioners of this State, according to law and as nearly agreeable to your instructions as was practicable.

If these selections should be approved by the President, it 58 is hoped that patents will be transmitted as soon as practicable.

Wishing to avoid delay, I have no time to have a copy taken of

19661

No. 4
ERLING
VS.
INGERS

FOLD OUT IS TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

X

the map herewith sent, and should be very glad if you would send it back after you are done with it.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, sir, y'r mo. ob. s't,

NINIAN EDWARDS.

(Here follows map marked page 59.)

60 It esd then and there stipulated and agreed by and between the parties to said cause, by their respective attorneys, that the Illinois & Michigan canal passes through section 18, township 33 north, range three east, of the third principal meridian, in the county of La Salle and State of Illinois.

The plaintiffs, by their attorney, then and there offered and read in evidence Record "D" of the circuit court of La Salle county, at page 25 thereof, in the words and figures following, to wit:

La Salle Circuit Court, November Term, 1839.

SATURDAY, November 16th, 1839.

61

BENJAMIN THURSTON	)	No. 20. Claim for Damages to the Southeast Quarter of Section 18, Township 33 North, Range 3 East, of the 3d P. M.
vs.	(
THE STATE OF ILLINOIS.	)

The board of assessors, A. R. Dodge and William J. Mix, having filed in the clerk's office of the circuit court of said county a copy of their report in this matter, containing an account in writing of said claim, the manner in which it arises, and the testimony taken by them in relation to the same; containing also an assessment of damages awarded to the said claimant, amounting to four hundred and fifty dollars; also a description of the land to be surrendered by said claimant to the State; and the said report and assessment of damages having been returned and presented to the court, and the same having been examined and considered by the court, and no exceptions being taken or objections made to said report, it is ordered by the court that the board of canal commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal be directed to pay to the said claimant, Benjamin Thurston, the said sum of four hundred and fifty dollars for his damages aforesaid as awarded by the said assessors, and that they also pay to the said claimant his legal costs by him expended in the defence of his said claim.

62 To the introduction of which in evidence defendants, by their attorney, objected for the reason that said record does not pertain to section ten, township thirty-three north, range three.

Which objection the court overruled; to which ruling — the court defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

It was then and there stipulated and agreed by and between the parties to said cause, by their respective attorneys, that in case the court finds the issues herein joined for the plaintiffs that plaintiffs are entitled to damages in the sum of fifty dollars.

Thereupon the plaintiffs rested their case.

And the defendants, in order to maintain the issues upon their part, offered or introduced the following evidence:

Defendants, by their attorney, offered and read in evidence the deposition of Artemus J. Mathewson, taken by agreement of parties November 16, 1898, at Lockport, Illinois, which is in the words and figures following, to wit:

63 The deposition of Artemus J. Mathewson, taken by agreement between the attorneys in the case of Ingersol vs. F. X. Werling and others, in the circuit court of the county of La Salle and State of Illinois, viz:

By agreement between Henry Mayo, attorney for said plaintiff-, and Messrs. Lincoln and Stead, attorneys for said defendants, waiving notice for the purpose of taking said deposition, but reserving the right to object to any and all such parts of said testimony as may be incompetent or immaterial, deposition taken on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1898, at the office of the Illinois and Michigan canal, in Lockport, in the county of Will, in the said State of Illinois.

ARTEMUS J. MATHEWSON, being duly sworn upon the part of said defendants and examined in chief by Mr. Lincoln:

Q. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Artemus J. Mathewson; am 82 years old; my residence is Lockport, Illinois.

Q. What has been your profession?

A. Civil engineer and surveyor.

Q. How long have you been a resident of the State of Illinois?

A. Since 1837, inclusive. I came here in 1837; has been my home ever since.

Q. Have you resided all the time in Lockport?

A. No, sir.

Q. How many years have you lived in Lockport?

64 A. I can't remember just how many years. While the canal was being constructed I worked for William B. Ogden, of Chicago—perhaps three or four years. The balance of the time my home has been in Lockport.

Q. Do you remember what year the canal was completed?

A. No, sir. I think it was about 1867 or '68.

Q. In what year did you first become connected with the Illinois and Michigan canal, or in what year were you first employed, if you were employed, by the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company?

A. 1837.

Q. In what capacity?

A. As rodman.

Q. Where did you work?

A. We worked in western Indiana, easter- Illinois. The locality was the Calumet river and Sauganosh, down the Desplaines valley and Illinois valley to Marseilles. We were then ordered to return to Chicago, where the canal office at that time was located, and proceeded to the north line of the State, or what is called Fox river. For that season our work was done, so far as I was concerned.

Q. At the time you were first employed the canal office was at Chicago?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was in 1837?

A. Yes, sir.

65 Q. How long after that was it that the canal office was removed to this place, Lockport?

A. I can't state exactly.

Q. With the exception of the three or four years that you mention having been employed by Mr. Ogden, of Chicago, have you been since 1837, the most of the time, connected with the Illinois and Michigan Company?

A. I was employed by the State or the officers of the State about twenty-seven years since 1837.

Q. Look at the map that is now shown you, the same marked Exhibit "C," and state whether you ever saw that map before today.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first see that map?

A. Well, I could not state exactly, but many years ago.

Q. How many years, in your judgment, after you were first employed by the canal company did you first see that map?

(I object to that question.)

A. That I could not state, but it was a long time ago, in the early part of my service.

Q. For the canal company?

A. For the canal company—the State.

Q. Where did you see it?

A. In the canal office, in Lockport.

Q. What do you know about that map?

66 A. Very little except its name.

Q. What is its name?

A. The Post & Paul map; that's the only name I have ever heard for it.

Q. Where has that map been since, do you know, the first time you saw it?

A. I can't say.

Q. How many times have you seen it or had reason to refer to it?

A. I never had any occasion to refer to the map. Others were examining the map at the time I saw it.

Q. Have you any judgment as to about the year you first saw it?

A. Well, I should say in the early forties; I can't state the date.

Q. Do you know whether it has been a part of the records and filed in the canal office ever since?

A. I have never saw it anywhere outside of the canal office, to my recollection.

Q. Could you give any idea as to the number of times you have seen it since the time you first saw it?

A. Perhaps three or four times, half a dozen times; I can't state that.

Q. Where have you seen it?

A. Always in the canal office, as far as I recollect.

Q. Did you have any acquaintance with either Post or Paul?

A. No; never saw them.

67 Q. Did you know them by reputation, either of them?

A. Only through this map. I have heard their names spoken frequently, but never saw them to my knowledge.

Q. You think it was some time in the forties that you first saw this map?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether it was before or after?

A. After what?

Q. The completion of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

A. Must have been before.

Q. Do you think the canal was completed in 1867?

A. I think so.

Q. And it was some time before 1867 that you saw the map?

A. Yes, sir; a long time; that's my recollection.

Q. You do not know of your own knowledge where the trustees got this map, do you?

A. No, sir; I don't know whether it was them that did get it.

Q. Were you in the employment of the canal trustees or the canal commissioners?

A. The canal commissioners.

Q. Did you continue in the employment of the canal trustees after the canal was conveyed to them?

A. I think so.

Q. It is true, is it not, that for a number of years after the completion of the canal the canal was turned over to the trustees of 68 the bondholders, together with all of the property that belonged to the canal?

A. No, sir; before the completion.

Q. Was it turned over in 1848?

A. I can't state.

Q. And they retained possession of the canal and all its properties until the bonded debt was paid off, did they not?

A. That's what I understand.

Q. Now, do you know whether you saw this map before that time?

A. I think I did.

Q. How sure are you about it?

A. Well, its only a thought; I can't say when; it was long since.

Q. You say that you knew it by the name of Post & Paul?

A. Post & Paul map, I think.
Q. You don't know how it got that name, do you?
A. Only by hearsay.
Q. And you don't know anything about the time when the map was made?
A. No, sir.
Q. All of the knowledge that you have concerning this map you have gained since you saw it here in the canal office?
A. Yes, sir.

(The signing of the deposition was waived.)

Recalled.

69 Q. Look at the paper marked "Exhibit D" and state what it is.
A. It is a map of section 10, township 33, range 3 east, of the third principal meridian, La Salle county, Illinois.
Q. When was it made?
A. It was made in the winter after the survey was made.
Q. When was the survey made?
A. '48, I think.
Q. Who made it?
A. I made it with the assistance of others.
Q. Who for?
A. Trustees of the Illinois and Michigan canal.
Q. What was that survey?
A. It was a survey of section 10, connecting river as well as the 90-foot lines.
Q. At what point did you start?
A. That I can't tell.
Q. Did you in that year 1848 make that survey from one end of the canal to the other?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you at that time place any marks or stones or stakes to mark the lines that you then made?
A. Yes, sir; at every point we set a stake.
Q. At every point; what do you mean by every point?
A. At every point, at every corner. At every point where the 90-foot lines crossed the section lines we set a stake, and where we could find a proper stone to set we set it, and we would put smaller stones around the stakes to perpetuate the point.
70 Q. When was that survey completed?
A. Well, I think it was '48. We might possibly have left one or two points that were slews so bad that we could not get into them in the summer time, and we would go back in the winter and complete the survey of that point a short distance.
Q. What are these figures that you have marked upon this map?
A. Some of them indicate the length of the line in chains and links. Other figures indicate the acres contained within the 90-foot lines, and also the acres outside of the 90-foot lines.

Q. Do you mean the acres within the 90-foot lines in the different sections?

A. In the different parts of each section.

(I enter an entire objection in so far as this map is concerned and to each question pertaining thereto.)

Q. What are the four lines running in a northeasterly and southwesterly direction across this map intended for to indicate?

A. The outside two lines indicate the outside of the 90-foot strip, or each side of the canal.

Q. And the two inside lines?

A. Indicate the top angles at the cutting stakes—top 71 angle of towpath and top angle at burn bank of the canal.

Q. Of the canal?

A. Of the canal.

Q. There is a line running from near the northwest corner of the map in a southeasterly direction across the map. What is that intended to indicate?

A. An old road surveyed many years since—before the canal was built.

Q. Did you, after the completion of this survey of the 90-foot lines on each side of the canal, make a plat or map or plats or maps showing what you had done—a record of your survey?

A. For the trustees?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that made in triplicate?

A. No, sir. I think it required three books to hold the maps.

Q. Were the surveys of each section kept separate as is shown on this map?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then this map simply shows that part of that survey which crosses section 10, in township 33 north, range 3 east, in La Salle county?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This map marked Exhibit "B" is your own private property; never belonged to the canal office; is kept by yourself at your home?

72 A. Yes; or in my office here. I had an office here once.

Q. It was never the property of the canal commissioners or the canal trustees?

A. No, sir; I was advised to take good care of this to protect the State and myself.

I, Mary V. Maher, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of the deposition of Artemus J. Mathewson in the case of Ingersol vs. F. X. Werling and others, in the circuit court of La Salle county, taken on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1898, at the office of the Illinois and Michigan canal in Lockport, county of Will, State of Illinois.

Taken in shorthand and transcribed.

(Signed) MARY V. MAHER, Stenographer.

FOLD OUT IS TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

73 STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
Will County, }

I, Erastus W. Willard, a notary public in and for the county of Will and State of Illinois, do hereby certify that on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1898, by agreement of Henry Mayo, attorney for the said plaintiff, and Lincoln & Stead, attorneys for said defendants, personally appeared before me at the office of the Illinois and Michigan canal, in Lockport, in the county of Will and State of Illinois, Artemus J. Mathewson, witness to testify on the behalf of the defendant- in a certain cause now pending in the circuit court of the county of La Salle, State of Illinois, wherein one Ingersol is plaintiff and F. X. Werling and others defendants.

And I do hereby further certify that the aforesaid witness was first duly sworn to testify to the truth in relation to the matter in controversy in the cause aforesaid, so far as he should be interrogated, and that the testimony of said witness is reduced to writing, and that the reading of the same to the witness and the subscribing of the witness' name was waived by agreement of the attorneys in said cause.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my notarial seal this 16th day of November, A. D. 1898.

(Signed) ERASTUS W. WILLARD,
[N. P. SEAL.] Notary Public.

74 (Upon the back of which deposition is the following filemark:)

"Opened and filed Nov. 21, 98. Henry Phillips, cl'k."

Defendants, by their attorney, offered and introduced in evidence, in connection with the deposition of Artemus J. Mathewson, the plat or map marked Exhibit "D," in the words and figures following, to wit:

(Here follows diagram marked page 75.)

76 Defendants, by their attorney, offered and read in evidence a certified copy of a bill rendered by Justice Post to the canal commissioners of the State of Illinois for services in surveying the route of the canal in the autumn of 1823, together with his receipt therefore, in the words and figures respectively as follows:

77 The Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois to Justus Post, Dr.

For fifty-four days' services exploring & examining the country between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, on the route of the contemplated canal, in the autumn of 1823, at $6..... $324.00

Received, Dec., 1823, of the canal commissioners, payment in full of the above account.

JUSTUS POST.

(NOTE.)—Receipts for the above sum having been before given to F. W. Smith and E. J. West, Esquires, which receipts have not been returned to me.

JUSTUS POST.

We do hereby certify that the above account is just and in conformity with an agreement with the commissioners.

E. J. WEST,
ERASTUS BROWN,
T. W. SMITH,
Commissioners.

To the introduction of which in evidence plaintiffs, by their attorney, objected as incompetent.

Defendants, by their attorney, then and there offered and read in evidence certified copies of such portions of pages 273, 274, 275, and 286 of the Senate Journal of Illinois for the year- 1836 and 78 1837 as pertains to the record of the committee on canal and canal lands, upon a bill for the relief of Rene Paul and others, in the words and figures respectively as follows:

(273.) MONDAY, January 23, 1837.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Thomas, from the committee on canal and canal lands, to which was referred the bill for "An act for the relief of Rene Paul and others," reported the following state of facts in relation to the subject-matter of the bill: * * *

"Five persons were appointed by name a board of commissioners to consider, devise, and adopt such measures as shall or may be requisite to effect the communication by canal and locks between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, who were authorized to employ an engineer and such other persons as might be necessary to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them.

"They were also authorized to cause that part of the terri-79 tory of the State which may lie upon or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of said canal to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most eligible and proper route for the same; and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps filed, and books and drafts thereof to be made.

"They were also required to make a report to the next session of the General Assembly, or to an extra session, provided the governor should commence the same under the powers here granted.

"The board employed Justus Post and Rena Paul as engineers, who made an experimental survey and estimate of costs, &c.

"Post was paid for his services; Paul was not. And the question is now presented—Shall he be paid? The fact that he was employed and devoted his time to the service of the State appears from the report of the canal commissioners made to the General Assembly in 1825.

"The time of his employment has been proven to be 120 days. The amount claimed is four dollars per day. To the committee the question is plain that the claim ought to be allowed. A want of power on the part of the board of commissioners to employ more than one engineer has been suggested as a reason why the 80 State should not be charged with this claim. It will appear obvious to any one who will examine the subject that this suggestion is founded upon a misconception of the subject. The commissioners were expressly authorized and required to cause examinations, surveys, and levels to be made of the line of the canals. How could they perform this duty without employing engineers? A grant of power and a requisition to do an act of this kind necessarily included a grant of power to use all the means necessary to the performance of that act. If nothing has been said in any part of the act about the employment of an engineer, the requisition upon the commissioners to cause duties to be done requiring the services of an engineer would have been amply sufficient to justify the employment of such a person; but without relying upon these grounds, the committee are of the opinion that the claim ought to be allowed upon another ground. The two engineers did not act together. One of them commenced operations at Chicago, the other on the rapids of the Illinois. The two were enabled to perform the duties required of them in one-half the time which would have been consumed by one, and thus no possible loss or injury could result to the State by their employment. If but one engineer had been employed, his compensation would have amounted to the same which two would have been entitled to. The only difference therefore to the State between the employment of one or two 81 engineers consists in the fact that the work is done in less time and two persons are paid with the same amount of money which would have been required to pay one. In every respect therefore in which the committee can view the subject the claim ought to be allowed and paid.

"In regard to the claims provided for in the second section of the bill, the committee have not been furnished with evidence in the support of any such claim. The committee therefore propose that the said section ought to be stricken out; but the committee do not decide against the right and justice of the claims mentioned in the section. No one of the persons intended to be provided for have been before the committee, and it is not intended by this report to prejudice their rights or in any manner to stop them from presenting their claims hereafter and having them investigated and paid, if found correct.

"The committee propose to amend the bill by striking out the second section."

Which was read and, on motion by Mr. Thomas, laid on the table. The question was then put upon the amendment proposed by the committee and decided in the affirmative. Ordered that the bill be engrossed for a third reading, as amended.

* * * * * * *

(Page 286.)

The engrossed bill entitled "An act for the relief of Rene Paul and others" was read a third time and passed.

82 On motion of Mr. Hamlin, the title was amended by striking out the words "and others."

Ordered that the title of said bill be as amended, and that the secretary inform the house of representatives thereof and ask their concurrence in the passage of said bill.

* * * * * * *

(Objected to by plaintiffs' attorney.)

Defendants, by their attorney, then and there offered and read in evidence an act of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois entitled "An act in relief of Rene Paul and others, approved March 4, 1837," found in the Laws of 1836–'7, at page 190 thereof, in the words and figures following, to wit:

In force 4th March, 1837.

An act for the relief of Rena Paul and others.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State — Illinois, represented in the Gen-

Duty of auditor.

83 eral Assembly, That the auditor of public accounts is hereby directed to issue his warrant on the treasurer of the State, to be paid from the canal fund in favor of Rene Paul for the sum of four hundred and eighty dollars, being the sum of four dollars per day to be paid to him, for the time actually employed in the service of the State, under its authority, as engineer in surveying and delineating the canal route from Lake Michigan to the Illinois river, in the years 1823 and 1824.

Reni Paul, $480.

John Waddel, $45.

SEC. 2. There shall be paid to John Waddel the sum of $45, for a boat furnished, and $40, for work and labor done for the canal commissioners, in 1823 and 1824; also to Willis Thompson, Elijah Thompson, Andrew Waddel, and J. Watson, the sum of twenty-four dollars each, and to Lewis Bailey the sum of fifty-six dollars for services rendered the said canal commissioners, which shall be in full for all 84 services rendered, to be paid out of the canal funds, as provided in the first section of this act.

M. Thompson, E. Thompson, A. Waddel, & J. Watson, $24 each.

L. Bailey, $56.

Approved 4th March, 1837.

Objected to by plaintiffs' attorney.

Defendants, by their attorney, offered and read in evidence a certified copy of such portions of pages 10, 14, and 26 of the House Journal of the State of Illinois of the year 1824 and 1825 as pertains to a message by Gov. Coles to the house and the action of the house of representatives thereon in the words and figures following, respectively:

"Mr. Webb, from the joint committee appointed to wait on the governor, made the following report, to wit:

"Mr. Speaker, the joint committee appointed to wait on the governor of the State and inform him of the organization of the General Assembly have the honor of reporting the performance of that duty and of stating that the governor will this day, at half past 12 o'clock, make a communication in writing to each branch of the General Assembly."

85 A message from the governor by Mr. Birkbeck, secretary of state:

"Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the governor to deliver to the speaker of this house a message in writing."

The governor's message was then taken up and read as follows, to wit:

Fellow-citizens of the senate and of the house of representatives: I have convened you at an earlier period than that fixed by law to obviate a defeet in the act entitled "An act providing for the election of electors of President and Vice-President of the United States."

By this act it is provi—

Page 14.

and more defective and inefficient, and kidnapping has now become a regular trade, which is carried on to a vast extend to the country bordering on the lower Mississippi, up the Red river, and to the West Indies. To put an immediate and effectual stop to this nefarious traffic is the imperious duty of the legislature. There can come before you no subject with a more direct appeal to 86 the generous feelings of humanity or with on your sense of justice than the exposed and defenceless condition — stronger claims of free persons of color, and it is hoped that penalties more proportionate to the enormity of the crime, and provisions better ad*pa*ted to counteract the facilities of committing it, arising from our peculiar situation, will be enacted.

I also recommended to the last General Assembly the opening of navigable communications between the Great Lakes and the Wabash and Illinois rivers, and to effect these objects that a portion of the revenue should be annually set apart to create and sustain a fund to be exclusively apportioned to internal improvements, and I suggested that humanity, no less than the interest of the State, called for the creation of a penitentiary. As further reflection has confirmed my sentiments regarding each of these measures, I beg leave to renew my former recommendation.

The report which will be made to you by the commissioners appointed by the last legislature to have surveys and estimates made of the expenses of opening a navigable communication between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river will doubtless enable you to understand the subject and judge when and in what manner you can best execute that great and desirable work. I still cherish the belief that under a judicious system this as well as the other 87 important measure of opening in co-operation with Indiana the navigation between Lake Erie and the Wabash may be accomplished in a much less time than has been supposed. Our revenue is yearly increasing, and although, when the currency recovers its value, it will be proper to reduce the taxes, yet from the usually large amount paid by non-resident proprietors of military bounty land, and the number and value of the salines, the revenue of Illinois will for many years to come be great in proportion to its population.

The following resolutions were adopted:

1st. Resolved, That so much of the governor's message as relates to the replevin laws be referred to the committee on judiciary.

2nd. Resolved, That so much of the governor's message as relates to the State Bank of Illinois be referred to the committee on finance.

3d. Resolved, That so much of the governor's message as relates to the abolition of African slavery, the amendment of the law concerning persons held to service, and the prevention of kidnapping, be referred to a select committee.

4th. Resolved, That so much of the governor's message as relates to the opening of navigable communication between the Great Lakes and the Wabash and Illinois rivers, so much thereof
88 as relates to the establishment of a fund for internal improvements, and so much thereof as relates to the improvement of the navigation of the Wabash river, together with the documents relating to the latter subject, be referred to the committee on internal improvements.

Defendants, by their attorney, offered and introduced in evidence a certified copy of such parts of pages 32, 36, 37, and 51 of the House Journal of the State of Illinois for the years 1824 and 1825 as pertains to a memorial to the Congress of the United States in reference to the canal, together with the action of the house thereon, in the words and figures following respectively, to wit:

(Objected to by plaintiffs' attorney as incompetent.)

On page 32 of said Journal, under date of November 20, 1824, in the words and figures following, to wit:

"On leave being given, Mr. Russell presented a memorial to the Congress of the United States soliciting a grant of land of the depth of one section on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river; which was read, and,

On motion of Mr. Hansen, laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Kane, the house agreed to reconsider the vote."

89 Upon page 36 of said journal, under date of November 22, 1824, the following:

"On motion of Mr. Moore,

The memorial presented by Mr. Russell to the Congress of the United States, soliciting a grant of land of the depth of one section on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river, was taken and,

On motion of Mr. Hansen,

Referred to a select committee.

Ordered that Messrs. Hansen, M'Gahey, and Norton be that committee."

Upon page 37, under date of November 23, 1824, the following:

"Mr. Hansen, from the select committee to which was referred the memorial to the Congress of the United States soliciting a grant of land one section in depth on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river, reported the said memorial with the following amendments, to wit: In the 14th line, strike out the words proceeded to appoint, and insert appointed; in the 26th, 27th, and 28th lines, strike out the words that it may be done at a very moderate expense, and insert with the assistance of 90 Congress may be carried into effect.

The report was read and concurred in.

The memorial, as amended, was then adopted by the house.

Ordered that the clerk inform the senate thereof, and ask their concurrence therein."

Upon page 51, under date of November 27, 1824, the following:

"A message from the senate, by Mr. West, their secretary:

"Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the senate to inform the house of representatives that they have concurred in the report of the joint committee appointed to address Gen. La Fayette; that they have also concurred in the memorial adopted by the house of representatives soliciting the Congress of the United States for a grant of land of one section in depth on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river."

Defendants, by their attorney, then and there offered and read in evidence a certified copy of pages 227, 229, 237, 259 of the House Journal of the State of Illinois for the years 1824 and 1825, or so much thereof as pertains to the report of the canal commis-91 sioners and the action of the house of representatives taken thereon, in the words and figures following, to wit:

Upon page 227, under date of January 8, 1825, the following:

"On motion of Mr. Hamilton,

The report of the canal commissioners were taken up and referred to the committee on internal improvements."

Upon page 229, under date of January 10, 1825, the following:

"Mr. Hamilton, from the same committee to which was referred the report of the canal commissioners and accompanying documents, reported a bill entitled 'An act to incorporate the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company,' which were read the first time; and

On motion of Mr. Hamilton,

Read the second time by its title.

On the further motion of Mr. Hamilton,

Ordered that said bill be referred to a committee of the whole house for today."

Upon page 237 thereof, under date of January 10, the following:

"On motion of Mr. Hamilton,

92 Resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring herein), That the executive be, and he is hereby, authorized and required to forward to the President of the United States a copy of the canal commissioners' report, with maps thereto annexed, and also to forward to our members in Congress a copy of said report."

Upon page 259 thereof, under date of January 12, 1825, the following:

"A message from the senate, by Mr. West, their secretary:

"Mr. Speaker, the senate have concurred in the adoption of the resolution from the house of representatives authorizing the governor to employ a competent person to examine and investigate the branch bank at Shawneetown, as amended by them, in which they ask the concurrence of the house of representatives. They have concurred with the house of representatives in the adoption of the resolution authorizing and requiring the executive to forward to the President of the United States a copy of the canal commissioners' report, with the maps thereto annexed, and to forward to our members in Congress copies of said report."

Defendants, by their attorney, then and there offered and read in evidence certified copies of pages 40, 41, and 42 of the Senate

93 Journal of the State of Illinois for the year 1826, or so much thereof as pertains to a communication from the president of the canal company and the acts of the senate taken thereon, in the words and figures respectively as follows:

Senate Journal, 1826–'27.

FRIDAY, January 13, 1826.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Speaker laid before the senate a communication from the president and directors of the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company, which was read, and on motion of Mr. Lemen it was ordered that said communication be spread on the Journal, which is in the words and figures, viz:

To the senate and house of representatives of the State of Illinois:

In compliance with a provision of the charter which requires the company to make to every session of the General Assembly a report of the expense incurred, the undersigned president and directors of the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company report that they have expended the sum of $98 in printing and distributing a number of 94 the pamphlets containing the reports of the canal commissioners and engineers, and the law incorporating the company, together with a map delineating the route of the proposed canal. The undersigned think proper to add in explanation of their conduct, and for the information and consideration of the General Assembly, that immediately on the passage of the law incorporating the company the directors organized their board and caused to be printed the pamphlets above referred to, and distributed them extensively, accompanied in many cases by letters from the directors to persons who it was thought might be induced to subscribe to the company or in any manner be inclined to promote subscribe to the company or in any manner be inclined to promote the great object for which it had been incorporated. It was not deemed expedient to go to the expense and trouble of opening books for subscription to the company until the necessary information contained in the pamphlets should be furnished, and the opinion and disposition of capitalists ascertained. From the information which has been received it is not believed that the stock could have been disposed of for several years to come unless Congress will make a donation of land, but with a reasonable grant the directors are of opinion the stock would be subscribed and the canal promptly executed by the capitalists of the Atlantic States.

95 Presuming that the object the General Assembly had in view in incorporating a company was to have the work immediately undertaken, and not believing that this can be done without a donation of land, which it is thought Congress would be more willing to make to the State than to the company, and believing also that the charter is defective in many respects, the undersigned president and directors, having no interest other than that common to the community, nor motive for accepting or continuing in their agency than a desire to render a public service, are unwilling to be a barrier to the representatives of the people after having had an opportunity of conferring with their constituents and giving the subject all the consideration which its importance requires from pursuing such course as they may deem best; and therefore the president and directors respectfully return their charter to the hands from when they received it in order that the act may be revised; and they hereby give their assent to such alterations, or even abrogation of the charter, as the General Assembly in its wisdom may deem best calculated to promote the interest of the State.

EDWARD COLES.
WM. S. HAMILTON.
JOSEPH DUNCAN.
S. BOND.
J. WARNOCK.

Vandalia, January 12th, 1826.

96 ERASTUS W. WILLARD, a witness of lawful age, produced by the defendants, after being first duly sworn according to law, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

(By Mr. STEAD:)

Q. What is your name?
A. Erastus W. Willard.
Q. Where do you reside?

A. Lockport, Illinois, Will county.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am assistant clerk and collector of the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

Q. How long have you occupied that position?

A. Since the sixteenth day of February, 1897.

Q. Since you have held that position have you had charge and custody of the records of the canal commissioners' office?

A. I have.

Q. Where are those records kept?

A. In a vault in their main office in Lockport.

Q. You may examine the map shown you and which is referred to as the "Post and Paul" map and marked Exhibit "C" and state whether or not you ever saw that map before.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first see it, and where?

A. I cannot tell the exact date, but it was in the vault of 97 the records—where the records are kept at the general office of the canal commissioners in Lockport.

Q. You may state whether or not the map shown you is now and has been since your connection with the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal a part of the records and files of the office of the canal commissioners.

A. It is and has been.

Q. You may state whether or not you ever made an examination and search among the records and files of the canal commissioners' office at Lockport and also in the office of the secretary of state of the State of Illinois for maps, plats, and reports pertaining to the survey of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

A. I have examined for documents on file among the canal records, letters, bills, and everything of that character from the date that they were first recorded there up to 1860, I think—'58, '59, or '60. I found nothing of the map or report of the first canal commissioners.

Q. Did you make any examination among the records and files of the office of the secretary of state at Springfield?

A. I did.

Q. State whether or not you have been able to find the report of a copy of the report that was made or which purports to have been made by the canal commissioners of the State of Illi-
98 nois to the General Assembly in the month of January, 1825.

A. I could not find it; I could find no trace of it.

Q. Have you been able to find any trace of that report or any memoranda referring to that report other than as contained in the copies of the senate and house journal which have been introduced in evidence in this case?

A. I found letters from Governor Clinton, of New York—that is, I found the original letters referring to that report to asking that copies be sent him.

FOLD OUT IS TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

Mr. MAYO: I object to that and ask to have it stricken out.

Which motion the court sustained; to which ruling of the court defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

Q. Have you found any record of that report or any memorandum in the office of the secretary of state, in Springfield, other than the records and memoranda contained in the senate and house journal, copies of which have been introduced in evidence?

A. No; I found nothing.

Q. You may examine the map, Exhibit "D," and state whether or not a record of that map or a copy of the map appears 99 among the records and filed of the canal commissioners' office at Lockport.

A. Yes, sir; it is among the records there in one of the plat books—recorded in the plat book—plat book No. 3.

(Here follows map marked page 100.)

101 The defendants, by their attorney, offered in evidence said map, marked Exhibit "C," known as the "Post and Paul" map in the words, figures, and characters following, to wit:

Office of the Board of Commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

LOCKPORT, ILLINOIS, December 2nd, 1898.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
Will County, }

I, Howard O. Hilton, secretary of the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal, do hereby certify that the annexed tracing copy of map of the Illinois and Michigan canal made by Post and Paul from their survey, in the year 1824, of a route of a canal connecting the Illinois river with the water of Lake Michigan in accordance with the provision of section three (3) of an act to provide for the improvement of the internal navigation of this State, approved February 14th, 1823, is a true and literal ex-102 emplification of the original, now on file in this office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused the seal of this office to be affixed, at Lockport, Illinois, on the day and year above written.

HOWARD O. HILYON,

[SEAL.] Secretary of the Board of Commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

And thereupon the defendants rested their case.

The above and foregoing is all of the evidence offered or introduced by either party upon the trial of said cause.

And thereupon said cause was argued to the court by the respective parties, and the defendants, by their attorney, submitted to the court the following written propositions to be held as law in the decision of the case:

1. That under and by virtue of the act of Congress of March 30, A. D. 1822, the State of Illinois became vested with Refused. the title and the right to the perpetual use for a canal to a strip of land ninety feet wide on each side of a canal, the route of which should be marked and surveyed by said State through the public lands of the United States, connect-103 ing the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan.

2. That the State of Illinois being so invested with the title to said lands, the survey and marking out of the route of said canal, under and in compliance with said act of Congress, and the construction of said canal by the State, connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan, under Refused. and by virtue of said act and the act of Congress of March 2, A. D. 1827, mentioned in said stipulation, gave precision to the title and attached it to the particular lands within said ninety feet on each side of said canal as constructed by the State.

3. That by reason of said grant to the State of Illinois, provided in said act of Congress of A. D. 1822, and of the marking and survey by the State of Illinois of the route of the canal mentioned in said act, in compliance with said act, and of the construction of said canal by the State by virtue of said act and the Refused. said act of Congress of March 2, 1827, the State of Illinois became entitled to the perpetual use of and is now the owner of and entitled to the possession of the particular tract of land from which the defendants in this case removed 104 the plaintiff's fence, and the State was the owner and entitled to the possession of said land at the time the said fence was so removed.

4. Although the grant to the State of Illinois by the act of March 30, 1822, then invested the State with the title to ninety feet of land on each side of a canal to be located, surveyed, and constructed by said State through the public lands of the United States, connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, and although the route of said canal was not then designated, and until it Refused. should be designated the title so granted did not attach to any particular or specific tract or tracts of land, yet the title then and by the said act of Congress passed to the State to the said lands to be afterwards located, and then the route of the canal was afterwards fixed and the canal constructed by the State, the location of the said ninety feet of land on each side of said canal became certain, and the title to said ninety feet, which was previously imperfect, acquired precision and became attached to the land.

5. That upon the passage of the act of Congress of March 30, 1822, the State of Illinois became thereby immediately vested 105 with the title to ninety feet in width of land lying on each side of a canal to be by the State marked, surveyed, and afterwards constructed through the public lands of the United States, connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan; but that such title did not attach to any particular lands until Refused. the route of said canal was afterwards surveyed and located under the provisions of said act, and until said canal was afterwards constructed by the State, under the provisions of said acts of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827; and upon the completion of said canal said title to said State, so granted by the act of March 30, 1822, acquired precision and became attached to the ninety feet in width on each side of said canal as constructed.

6. That the State of Illinois, at the time of the commission of the alleged trespass by the defendants, was and now is and for more than fifty years has been the owner of and entitled to the possession of the land in controversy in this suit, and for all that time the State has held the said lands and still holds the same
Refused. as the public property of said State, in the exercise of its sovereign and constitutional powers, by virtue of and for the uses and purposes mentioned in the acts of Con-106 gress of the United States of March 30, A. D. 1822, and March 2, A. D. 1827, mentioned and set forth in said stipulation.

7. That the conditions mentioned in said act of Congress of March 30, A. D. 1822, to be performed by the State, viz., "that the State should direct, by law, said canal to be opened and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department of the Refused. United States, within three years from and after the passing of said act, and that said canal should be completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years after the passing of said act," were and are conditions subsequent, the non-performance of which by the State did not divest it of the title conveyed to it by said grant.

8. That no one can take advantage of the non-performance of a condition subsequent annexed to an estate, or title to an estate granted, except the grantor or his heirs or the successors of the grantor if the grant proceed from an artificial person.
Refused. The same doctrine obtains where the grant upon condition subsequent proceeds from the United States Government, no individual can assail the title it has conveyed, on the ground that the grantee has failed to perform the conditions annexed.

9. That the State of Illinois, being so invested with the 107 title to said ninety feet on each side of said canal, could not be divested of said title by non-performance of said
Refused. conditions, but could only be divested of such title by the United States by affirmative action on its part, viz., either by judicial proceedings to enforce a forfeiture or by legislation.

10. That the said act of Congress of March 2, 1827, is held to be an assisting or enabling act to the said act of A. D.
Refused. 1822, and was intended to assist the State of Illinois in constructing the canal mentioned in the act of 1822 and enable the State to build and pay for the same.

11. That the object and intention of said act of Congress of March 2, A. D. 1827, was to aid the State of Illinois

Refused. to build and open the canal referred to in the said act of March 30, 1822, and to give to said State further time to construct and complete said canal.

12. That the State of Illinois is now the owner of Refused. and entitled to the possession of the land in controversy in this suit.

108 13. That no act of the legislature of the State of Illinois was necessary to be passed accepting specifically the grant of land made to the State by the act of Congress of March 30, 1822, but that the act of the legislature of the State of Illi-
Refused. nois of February 14, 1823, mentioned in said stipulation, and the survey and marking of the route of said canal by surveyors employed by the State, as shown by said stipulation, together with the other evidence in the case, constitute in law an acceptance by the State of the grant of lands made by the act of Congress of March 30, A. D. 1822.

14. That under the evidence in this case the State Refused. of Illinois accepted the grant made by the act of Congress of March 30, 1822.

15. That the State of Illinois accepted the grants of Refused. land made by both the acts of Congress of March 30, 1822, and of March 2, 1827.

16. That the said act of Congress of March 30, 1822, and the said act of Congress of March 2, 1827, entitled "An Refused. act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to con-109 nect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan," must be taken together as referring to one and the same canal.

17. That the State of Illinois was, at the time of the Refused. commission of the alleged trespass by the defendants, the owner of the land in controversy and then had the right to the possession of the same.

18. That at the time the defendants removed the fence of the plaintiff from the land in controversy the State of Illinois owned and then had the right to the possession thereof as Refused. against the plaintiff, and the defendants, then being the agents of said State and acting for said State, had the right to remove said fence, and their act in that regard was not a trespass.

19. That the title to the ninety feet in width on the south side of the Illinois and Michigan canal having vested in the State of Illinois by said act of Congress of March 30, 1822, and having remained in the State of Illinois ever since, the plaintiff's grantors acquired no title to that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the north-
Refused. west quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) and that part of the west half ($\frac{1}{2}$) of the southeast quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) of the northwest quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$)
110 of said section ten (10), in township thirty-three (33) north, in range three (3) east, of the third (3rd) principal meridian, which lies within said ninety feet, by the entries of said lands by

Henry M. Warnock and Henry L. Brush in the year A. D. 1835, as mentioned in said stipulation, nor did the plaintiff by mesne conveyances from the said Warnock and the said Brush down to her, as mentioned in said stipulation, acquire any title to or right to the possession of any part of said ninety feet, and the defendants, as agents of and acting for the State of Illinois, had the lawful right to remove the plaintiff's fence therefrom.

20. That the plaintiff's possession to the lands in controversy for more than twenty years, as mentioned in said stipulation, gave to her no other or additional right or title to said lands than she received from her grantors; that as against the State she could acquire no right or title to said lands by reason of her long possession of the same. The statute of limitations does not run against the State, and no prescriptive rights to said lands were or could be acquired by said plaintiff against the State.

Held.

And the court then and there held as law in the decision of the case said proposition numbered 20.

111 But the court then and there refused to hold as law in the decision of the case said written propositions numbered respectively 1 to 19, both inclusive, and each and every thereof, and marked thereon the word "Refused."

To which ruling and decision of the court in refusing to hold as law in the decision of the case said last-mentioned propositions and each and every thereof and marking the same "Refused" the defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

The above and foregoing are all of the written propositions submitted to the court to be held as law in the decision of the case.

Be it remembered that afterwards, to wit, upon the eighth day of December, A. D. 1898 (the same being one of the days of the said October term of said court for the year 1898 aforesaid), the court found the issues herein to be for the plaintiff.

To which ruling of the court in finding the issues herein 112 to be for plaintiff- defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

And the court thereupon assessed plaintiffs' damages upon the said finding at fifty dollars.

To which ruling and decision of the court defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

Thereupon the court entered judgment on the finding for $50.00 and costs.

To which ruling and decision of the court in entering judgment on the finding defendants, by their attorney, then and there excepted.

The above and foregoing bill of exceptions tendered to me by defendants' attorneys this fourth day of January, A. D. 1899.

CHARLES BLANCHARD,
Circuit Judge.

Forasmuch, therefore, as the matters and things above set forth do not fully appear of record in said cause, the defendants, by their attorney, presents this their bill of exceptions herein and prays that the same may be signed and sealed by the court, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, which is accordingly done this fourth day of January, A. D. 1899.

113 CHARLES BLANCHARD, [SEAL.]
Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit of the State of Illinois.

The above and foregoing bill of exceptions filed in the office of the clerk of said circuit court of La Salle county, Illinois, this 4th day of January, A. D. 1899.

HENRY PHILLIPS,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of La Salle County, Illinois.

Horace Hull, official reporter, circuit court of La Salle county, Ottawa, Illinois, 189–.

114 STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

I, Henry W. Phillips, clerk of the circuit court in and for the county of La Salle, in the State of Illinois, and keeper of the records and files thereof, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true, full, and complete copy of (1) the process, (2) the pleadings of the parties respectively, (3) the finding of the court, (4) the judgment of the court, (5) all orders in the cause made by the court, (6) the bill of exceptions, and (7) the appeal bond, in a certain cause lately pending in said court, wherein Emily E. Ingersoll et al. were plaintiffs and Frank X. Werling et al. were defendants.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and the seal of said court this 4th day of January, A. D. 1899.

HENRY PHILLIPS,
[SEAL.] Clerk of the Circuit Court of La Salle County, Illinois.

115 Assignment of Errors.

1. The court erred in admitting improper evidence on the part of plaintiffs upon the trial.
2. The court erred in excluding proper evidence offered by and on behalf of the defendants upon the trial.
3. The court erred in refusing to hold the written propositions and each of them submitted by the defendants, and numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19, to be the law in the case.
4. The court erred in finding the issues for the plaintiffs.
5. The court erred in assessing damages for the plaintiffs upon said finding.
6. The court erred in rendering judgment for the plaintiffs.

7. The court erred in overruling the motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial.

LINCOLN & STEAD,
Attorneys for Appellants.

116 And afterwards, to wit, on the 18th day of February, A. D. 1899, certain proceedings were had and orders entered in words and figures following, viz:

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH, Appellants, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL, Appellees.	Appeal from Circuit Court, La Salle County.

Now, on this day, come the parties hereto, and this being one of the days set apart for the call of the docket under the rules of this court, and it appearing to the court that appellant hath filed herein a duly certified transcript of the record and proceedings of the court below, together with printed abstracts thereof, and briefs and arguments of counsel in support of the errors assigned herein, and entered motion to reverse the judgment and remand said cause and for costs, and said motion being taken under advisement for final hearing, and the clerk of this court reporting that said cause is now ready to be taken, and said cause is here submitted for the consideration and judgment of the court:

Therefore it is ordered by the court that this cause be, and the same is hereby, taken under advisement.

117 At a supreme court, begun and held at Springfield, on Tuesday, the third day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, within and for the State of Illinois.

Present: James H. Cartwright, chief justice; Alfred M. Craig, justice; Jacob W. Wilkin, justice; Joseph N. Carter, justice; Benjamin D. Magruder, justice; Jesse J. Phillips, justice; Carroll C. Boggs, justice; Edward C. Akin, attorney general; Charles M. Woods, sheriff.

Attest: CHRISTOPHER MAMER, Clerk.

Be it remembered, to wit, on the nineteenth day of October, A. D. 1899, the same being one of the days of the term of court aforesaid, the following proceedings were by said court had and entered of record, to wit:

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH, Appellants, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL, Appellees.	Appeal from Circuit Court, La Salle County.

And now, on this day, this cause having been argued by counsel, and the court having diligently examined and inspected as well the record and proceedings aforesaid as the matters and things therein assigned for error, and being now sufficiently advised of and concerning the premises, for that it appears to the court now here that neither in the record and proceedings aforesaid nor in the rendition of the judgment aforesaid is there anything erroneous, vicious, or defective, and that in that record there is no error:

Therefore it is considered by the court that the judgment aforesaid be affirmed in all things and stand in full force and effect, notwithstanding the said matters and things therein assigned for error; and it is further considered by the court that said appellees recover of and from the said appellants their costs by them in this behalf expended, and that they have execution therefor.

118 Docket No. 651.—Agenda 31.—Northern Div.—Feb., '99.

FRANK X. WERLING ET AL.
v.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL ET AL.

Per Curiam:

This is an action of trespass, instituted in the circuit court of La Salle county by Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, appellees, against Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, appellants, to recover damages for removing the fences and entering the close of appellees.

The declaration consists of one count. It alleges, in substance, that the defendants, (appellants,) with force and arms, on, to wit, the thirteenth day of November, 1897, and on divers other days, broke and entered certain closes of the plaintiffs, (appellees,) situate in the county of La Salle, and then and there removed and destroyed, to wit, one hundred and fifty rods of fence, of the value of $1,000, and other wrongs then and there did against the peace of the people, etc., and to the damage of the plaintiffs of $1,000. To this declaration no formal pleas were filed. By stipulation all questions of pleading are waived, and it is agreed that any and all evidence competent to establish a cause of action or a defense shall be treated in the same manner, and be given the same force and effect, as though all proper pleas had been filed and properly pleaded.

Under the stipulation the issues in this case are limited, and confined to a single question, viz: Is the State of Illinois the owner of a strip of land ninety feet in width along and contiguous to the south margin of the Illinois and Michigan canal, through section 10? If the State is the owner of this ninety-foot strip, it is stipulated and agreed that this suit cannot be maintained. If the State is not the owner of this ninety-foot strip, it is stipulated and agreed that appellants were guilty of a trespass.

A jury was waived and the case was submitted to the court for trial without a jury. The findings of the court below were in favor of the appellees, and judgment was rendered in their favor against appellants. The present appeal is prosecuted from such judgment.

In City of Chicago v. McGraw, 75 Ill., 566, this court decided that the State is not the owner of the strip in question, ninety feet wide. We refer to that case for the reasons given in support of the conclusion so reached. It is unnecessary to repeat those reasons here.

The judgment of the circuit court is affirmed.

Judgment affirmed.

119 And afterwards, to wit, on the 22nd day of November, A. D. 1899, a certain order was filed in said supreme court in the words and figures following, viz:

In the Supreme Court of Illinois.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE Smith, Appellants, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE Ingersoll, Appellees.	Appeal from Circuit Court, La Salle County.

Order.

Upon motion of H. M. Snapp, Esq., attorney for appellants, and upon filing a petition for a writ of error and an assignment of errors, it is ordered that a writ of error be, and hereby is, allowed to have reviewed in the Supreme Court of the United States the judgment heretofore entered herein, and that the amount of the bond on said writ of error be, and hereby is, fixed at one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

JAMES H. CARTWRIGHT,
Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Illinois.

120 In the Supreme Court of Illinois.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE Smith vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE Ingersoll.	Appeal from the Circuit Court of La Salle County.

To the Honorable James H. Cartwright, chief justice of the supreme court of Illinois:

Your petitioners, The Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois, and Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, appellants in the above-entitled case, respectfully represent to your honor:

That said canal commissioners have under the statute sole custody and control of the canal lands of the State of Illinois as agents of said State.

That on Nov. 13, 1897, the appellants, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, were duly constituted agents and employees of the State of Illinois, under said canal commissioners, and that on said date said appellants, acting for and on behalf of the State of Illinois, and under and by virtue of the authority and direction of the canal commissioners, removed certain fences erected by said Ingersolls in section 10, township 33 north, range 3 east, of the third principal meridian, La Salle county, Illinois.

That a judgment in trespass was recovered against said appellants in the circuit court of La Salle county for removing said fences, and affirmed by the supreme court of Illinois.

That the land upon which said fences were erected is 121 claimed by the canal commissioners to be a part of the canal lands of the State of Illinois, and that the State became vested with title thereto by virtue of certain acts of Congress of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827.

Your petitioners further represent that the sole question for determination and decision in this case is whether or not the State of Illinois became vested with the title to said lands under the said acts of Congress of 1822 and 1827, and that the supreme court erred in not finding the title to said land to be in the State of Illinois under said acts.

Your petitioners therefore respectfully petition this honorable court to award a writ of error herein, commanding the clerk of this court, under its seal, to transmit the record in said cause to the Supreme Court of the United States, that all errors of this court, if any, may be reviewed and corrected by said Supreme Court of the United States.

The canal commissioners further represent that this writ of error is being prosecuted by them for appellants, in their capacity as agents of the State of Illinois, and therefore petition this honorable court to allow the said writ to issue without bond.

H. M. SNAPP,
Attorney for Petitioners.

122 In the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois, Northern Grand Division.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH } Appeal from Circuit Court of La Salle Co.
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL. }

Writ of Error to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Plaintiff in error's assignment of errors to be attached to the record sent by the clerk of this court to the Supreme Court of the United States.

First. The supreme court of the State of Illinois erred in affirming the decision of the circuit court of La Salle county, State of Illinois.

Second. The supreme court of the State of Illinois erred in not finding that the State of Illinois acquired title to and is now the owner of the land in dispute under and by virtue of the acts of Congress of the United States of March 30, 1822, and March 27, 1827, reading as follows:

Act of March 30, 1822.

"1. The State of Illinois, be, and is hereby, authorized to survey, and mark, through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in the cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the said State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever; on 123 condition, however, that if the said State does not survey and direct by law said canal, to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passage of this act; or if the said canal be not completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years thereafter; or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by, and used for, a canal suitable for navigation; the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect; provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, that nothing in this act contained, or that shall be done in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed or construed to imply any obligation on the part of the United States to appropriate any money to defray the expenses of surveying or opening said canal: Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said canal, when completed, shall be, and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll or other charge whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same.

2. Every section of land through which said canal route may pass, shall be and the same is hereby reserved from future sale, until hereafter specially directed by law; and said State is hereby authorized and permitted, without waste, to use any materials on the public lands adjacent to said canal, that may be necessary for its construction."

124 Act of March 2, 1827.

"1. There be, and hereby is, granted to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United States, to be selected by the Commissioner of the Land Office, under the direction of the President of the United States, from one end of the said canal to the other; and the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the legislature of the said State, for the purpose aforesaid and no other; provided, that the said canal, when completed, shall be and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll, or other charge, whatsoever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same: Provided, that said canal shall be commenced within five years, and completed in twenty years, or the State shall be bound to pay to the United States the amount of any lands previously sold, and that the title to purchasers under the State shall be valid.

"2. So soon as the route of the said canal shall be located and agreed on by the said State, it shall be the duty of the governor thereof, or such other persons as may have been, or shall hereafter be, authorized to superintend the construction of said canal, to examine and ascertain the particular sections to which the said State will be entitled, under the provisions of this act, and report the same to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

"3. The said State, under the authority of the legislature thereof, after the selection shall have been so made, shall have power 125 to sell and convey the whole, or any part of the said land, and to give a title in fee-simple therefor, to whomsoever shall purchase the whole or any part thereof."

Third. The supreme court of the State of Illinois misconstrued the intent and effect of the acts of Congress set out in the second assignment of error.

126 And afterwards, to wit, on the 29th day of November, A. D. 1899, a certain bond was filed in said court in the words and figures following, viz:

In the Supreme Court of the United States.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE Ingersoll.	Writ of Error — the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

Know all men by these presents that we, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, as principals, and H. M. Snapp and Henry Alexander, as sureties, are held and firmly bound unto Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll in the full and just sum of one thousand dollars, to be paid to the said Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, their certain attorneys, executors, administrators, or assigns; to which payment, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents.

Sealed with our seals and dated this 22nd day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Whereas lately, at a session of the supreme court of the State of Illinois, in a suit pending in said court between Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, plaintiffs, and Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, defendants, a final judgment was rendered against the said plaintiffs, and the said Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, plaintiffs, having obtained from said court a writ of error to reverse 127 the judgment in the aforesaid suit, and a citation directed to said Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll is about to be issued, citing and admonishing them to be and appear before the Supreme Court of the United States:

Now, the condition of the above obligation is such that if the said Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith shall prosecute their writ of error to effect and shall answer all damages and costs that may be awarded against them if they fail to make their plea good, then the above obligation to be void; otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

FRANK X. WERLING.
EUGENE C. SMITH.
H. M. SNAPP.
HENRY ALEXANDER.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
La Salle County, }

I, Stephen Arnold, a notary public in and for said county, hereby certify that Frank X. Werling and Eugene C. Smith, personally known to me to be the same persons whose names are signed to the foregoing bond, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged that they signed said bond freely and voluntarily for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

Ottawa, Ill., November 22, 1899.

STEPHEN ARNOLD,
Notary Public.

[SEAL.]

The above bond is approved by me this 28th day of November, A. D. 1899.

JAMES H. CARTWRIGHT,
Chief Justice Supreme Court, Illinois.

128 STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
Will County, }

I, Charles Dorrance Dibell, a notary public in and for said county, hereby certify that H. M. Snapp and Henry Alexander, personally known to me to be the same persons whose names are signed to the foregoing bond, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged they they signed said bond freely and voluntarily for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

CHARLES DORRANCE DIBELL,
Notary Public.

Joliet, Illinois, November 27, 1899.

[SEAL.]

129 STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
Will County, }

H. M. Snapp, being first duly sworn, on oath says that he is a resident of Joliet, Will county, Illinois, and is the owner of real estate exceeding in value the sum of fifteen thousand dollars over and above all liabilities and exemptions of any and every kind or character.

H. M. SNAPP.

Subscribed to and sworn to before me this 27th day of November, A. D. 1899.

CHARLES DORRANCE DIBELL,
Notary Public.

[SEAL.]

130 STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss:
Will County, }

Henry Alexander, being first duly sworn, on oath says that he is a resident of Joliet, Will county, Illinois, and is the owner of real estate exceeding in value the sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars over and above all liabilities and exceptions of any and every kind or character.

HENRY ALEXANDER.

Subscribed to and sworn to before me this 27th day of November, A. D. 1899.

CHARLES DORRANCE DIBELL,
Notary Public.

Endorsed on cover: File No., 17,586. Illinois supreme court. Term No., 472. Frank X. Werling & Eugene Smith, plaintiffs in error, vs. Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll. Filed December 18th, 1899.

Brf. of Snapp for Pl'ff in Err.

Filed Jan. 7, 1901.

FILED

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

October Term, A. D. 1899.

168.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiffs in Error,
vs.
EMIL P. INGERSOLL AND
GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

BRIEF FOR PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR.

HOWARD M. SNAPP,
ATTORNEY FOR PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

October Term, A. D. 1900.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiffs in Error,
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND
GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

BRIEF FOR PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

This is an action of trespass brought in the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, by Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll against Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith to recover damages for removing certain fences on land claimed by the Ingersolls in section ten (10) township thirty-three (33), north, range three (3), LaSalle County, Illinois.

The east half of the northwest quarter of said section ten was entered by J. M. and W. M. Warnock on June 26, 1835, and conveyed by mesne conveyances to John V. A. Hoes on December 27, 1841.

On June 1, 1867, Hoes and wife conveyed to Emily E. Ingersoll all of the west half of the east half of the northwest quarter of said section ten, lying south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

The west half of the northwest quarter of said section ten was entered by Henry L. Brush on July 1, 1835.

Through proper mesne conveyances Emily E. Ingersoll acquired title to all that part of the west half of the northwest quarter of said section ten lying south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal on June 7th, 1870. (Record p. 11, sec. 31.)

For more than twenty years prior to November 13, 1897, Emily E. Ingersoll was the owner and in possession of that part of the west half of the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter and all that part of the west half of the northwest quarter of said section ten lying south of the tow path of the Illinois and Michigan Canal and during that time maintained a fence along the south line of the towpath, a distance of seventeen feet from the south margin of the canal basin. (Record p. 12, sec. 51.)

Plat A, page 10 of record, shows the location of the Illinois and Michigan Canal and the Ingersoll land.

On November 13, 1897, Werling and Smith, duly constituted agents of the State of Illinois, acting on behalf of the state, and under and by virtue of its authority and direction, removed the fences of the Ingersolls standing within ninety feet of the canal basin and within what is claimed by the State of Illinois to be the ninety-foot reserve of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

The case was submitted to the Circuit Court of LaSalle County for trial upon a stipulation of certain facts and some oral proof and judgment for fifty dollars' damages entered against defendants. This judgment was affirmed by the Supreme Court of Illinois in an opinion handed down October 19, 1899. (182 Illinois reports, 25, record p. 52.)

Defendants in error claimed that the right of way of the Illinois and Michigan Canal and the title acquired by the state to land in said section 10, is limited to the land occupied by the canal basin and to a strip seventeen feet wide along the south side of the canal used for a towpath, and that the south margin of the towpath is the northern boundary of their land. The State of Illinois claims that it is the owner of a strip of land ninety feet wide along the south side of the canal basin through section 10.

The issue is therefore limited to a single question, viz: Is the State of Illinois the owner under the acts of congress of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827, or either of them, of a strip of land ninety feet in width along the south side of the Illinois and Michigan Canal through said section 10? If the State is owner of this ninety-foot strip, the decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois should be reversed; if the State is not the owner of this ninety-foot strip, the decision should be affirmed.

The congress of the United States, on the 30th day of March, 1822, passed the following act:

"An Act to authorize the State of Illinois to open a canal through the public lands to connect the Illinois river with Lake Michigan.

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled:

Sec. 1. The State of Illinois be and is hereby authorized to survey and mark, through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and ninety feet of the land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the State for the canal, and for no other purpose whatever—on condition, however, that if the said State does not survey and direct by law said canal to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passing of this act, or if the said canal be not completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years thereafter, or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by, and used for, a canal suitable for navigation, the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect; provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, that nothing in this act contained, or that shall be done in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed or construed to imply any obligation on the part of the United States to appropriate any money to defray the expenses of surveying or opening said canal; provided also, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said canal when completed, shall be, and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the government of the United States free from any toll or other charge whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same.

Sec. 2. Every section of land through which said canal route may pass, shall be and the same is hereby reserved from future sale, until hereafter specially directed by law; and said State is hereby authorized and permitted, without waste, to use any materials on the public lands adjacent to said canal, that may be necessary for its construction." (Record p. 13.)

Approved March 30, 1822.

On the 14th day of February, 1823, the Illinois legislature passed an act which is in part as follows:

"An act to provide for the improvement of the internal navigation of this state.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the general assembly, that Emanual J. West, Erastus Brown, Theophelus W. Smith, Thomas Sloo, Jr., and Samuel Alexander be, and they are hereby appointed a board of commissioners to consider, devise and adopt such measures as shall or may be requisite to effect the communication, by canal and locks, between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan; and in the case of the death or resignation of any of the said commissioners, in the recess of the general assembly, the governor, or the person administering the government of this state, shall appoint another commissioner or commissioners to supply such vacancy or vacancies; who shall continue in office until the end of the next session of the general assembly.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That the said commissioners shall choose one of their number to be president of said board, who shall have power to call a meeting of the same, whenever, in his opinion it shall be requisite and necessary, and the said board may adjourn from time to time, to meet at any time and place they may deem most conducive to the public good; and further, the said commissioners shall have power to employ an engineer, and such other persons as may be necessary to enable them to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act; and to allow them to pay the said engineer and other persons, so by them employed, for their respective services, such sum or sums of money as may be adequate and reasonable.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners, as soon as may be, after the passage of this act, to cause that part of the territory of this State, which may lie open or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of the said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same, and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books and drafts thereof to be made; and further to adopt and recommend proper plans for the construction and formation of the said canal, and of the locks, dams, and embankments, tunnels, culverts, and acqueducts, which may be necessary for the completion of the same, and to cause all necessary plans, drafts and models thereof, to be extended under their direction.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to make, or cause to be made, with as much accuracy and minuteness as may be, calculations and estimates of the sum or sums of money which may or will be necessary for completing the said canal according to the plan or plans which may be adopted and recommended by them for the construction and formation of the same; and to cause the said calculations, and estimates, and all surveys, maps, field books, plans, drafts, and models, authorized and directed by this act, or so many thereof as may be completed, together with a plain and comprehensive report of all their proceedings, under and by virtue of this act, to be presented to the general assembly of the State, at the commencement of their next regular session, or at the commencement of an extra session of the present general assembly, should the governor convene the same.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the auditor of this State, whenever a majority of the commissioners shall require it, to issue his warrant on the treasurer, to pay to the order of a majority of the said commissioners, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, any sum or sums of money in the whole not exceeding six thousand dollars, and for which the said commissioners shall account to the auditor, on or before the 10th day of the next regular session of the general assembly."

Approved February 14, 1823. (Record p. 13.)

During the years 1823 and 1824, the State of Illinois surveyed and marked through the public lands of the United States the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan. (Record p. 26, sec. 181.)

The following is a certified copy of a bill rendered by Justus Post, one of the surveyors making that survey and map, with the receipt attached:

The canal commissioners of the State of Illinois, to Justus Post, Dr.

For fifty-four days' services exploring and examining the country between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, on the route of the contemplated canal, in the autumn of 1823, at $6 ..... $324.00

Received Dec. 1823, of the canal commissioners, payment in full of the above account.

(Record p. 35.) JUSTUS POST.

The legislature of the State of Illinois on March 4, 1837, passed an act appropriating $480.00 to be paid to Rene Paul, one of the surveyors who surveyed and marked the route of the canal in 1823 and 1824. The act is as follows:

An act for the relief of Rene Paul and others.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the general assembly. That the auditor of public accounts is hereby directed to issue his warrant of the treasurer of the State to be paid from the canal fund in favor of Rene Paul, for the sum of four hundred eighty dollars, being the sum of four dollars per day to be paid to him, for the time actually employed in the service of the State, under its authority, as engineer in surveying and delineating the canal route from Lake Michigan to the Illinois river, in the years 1823 and 1824.

Sec. 2. There shall be paid to John Waddel the sum of $45, for a boat furnished, and $40 for work and labor done for the canal commissioners in 1823 and 1824; also to Willis Thompson, Elijah Thompson, Andrew Waddel, and J. Watson, the sum of twenty-four dollars each, and to Lewis Bailey the sum of fifty-six dollars for services rendered the said canal commissioners, which shall be in full for all services rendered, to be paid out of the canal funds, as provided in the first section of this act.

Approved 4th March, 1837. (Record p. 286.)

The identity of the surveyors, Justus Post and Rene Paul, and the fact of their employment by the State of Illinois for the purpose of surveying said canal, is further evidenced by the following extract from the Senate Journal for 1836, pages 273, 274, 275, which reads as follows:

Monday, January 23, 1837.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

* * * * *

Mr. Thomas from the committee on canal and canal lands, to which was referred the bill for "An act for the relief of Rene Paul and others," reported the following state of facts in relation to the subject matter of the bill: * * *

"Five persons were appointed by name a board of commissioners to consider, devise, and adopt such measures as shall or may be requisite to effect the communication by canal and locks between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, who were authorized to employ an engineer and such other persons as might be necessary to fulfill and discharge the duties imposed upon them."

"They were also authorized to cause that part of the territory of the State which may lie upon or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of said canal to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most eligible and proper route for the same; and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps filed, and books and drafts thereof to be made."

"They were also required to make a report to the next session of the general assembly, or to an extra session, provided the governor should commence the same under the powers here granted."

"The board employed Justus Post and Rene Paul as engineers, who made an experimental survey and estimate of costs, &c."

"Post was paid for his services; Paul was not. And the question is now presented: Shall he be paid? The fact that he was employed and devoted his time to the service of the State, appears from the report of the canal commissioners made to the general assembly in 1825."

"The time of his employment has been proven to be 120 days. The amount claimed is four dollars per day. To the committee the question is plain that the claim ought to be allowed. A want of power on the part of the board of commissioners to employ more than one engineer has been suggested as a reason why the State should not be charged with this claim. It will appear obvious to any one who will examine the subject that this suggestion is founded upon a misconception of the subject. The commissioners were expressly authorized and required to cause examination, surveys and levels to be made of the line of the canal. How could they perform this duty without employing engineers? A grant of power and a requisition to do an act of this kind necessarily included a grant of power to use all the means necessary to the performance of that act. If nothing has been said in any part of the act about the employment of an engineer, the requisition upon the commissioners to cause duties to be done requiring the services of an engineer would have been amply sufficient to justify the employment of such a person; but without relying upon these grounds, the committee are of the opinion that the claim ought to be allowed upon another ground. The two engineers did not act together. One of them commenced operations at Chicago, the other on the rapids of the Illinois. The two were enabled to perform their duties required of them in one-half the time which would have been consumed by one, and thus no possible loss or injury could result to the State by their employment. If but one engineer had been employed, his compensation would have amounted to the same which two would have been entitled to. The only difference therefore, to the State between the employment of one or two engineers consists in the fact that the work is done in less time and two persons are paid with the same amount of money which would have been required to pay one. In every respect, therefore, in which the committee can view the subject, the claim ought to be allowed and paid." (Record p. 36.)

19685

FOLD OUT IS TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

On January 10, 1825, the legislature of the State of Illinois adopted a joint resolution directing "That the executive be and he is hereby authorized and required to forward to the president of the United States a copy of the canal commissioners' report, with maps thereto annexed, and also to forward to our members in congress a copy of said report." (Record p. 42.)

A copy of the Post and Paul map, dated 1824, and one of the records in the canal commissioner's office at Lockport, Illinois, for the past sixty years (Mathewson's deposition, record p. 31, and Willard's evidence, p. 44) is here inserted for easy reference. In the copy of this map transmitted with the record of the Supreme Court of Illinois, the date and name of J. Post, one of the makers, proved too faint to reproduce. (See map record p. 44.) To correct this defect plaintiffs in error have filed in this Court a perfect copy of the Post and Paul map, properly certified by the Clerk of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

On January 18, 1826, the legislature of the State of Illinois adopted and afterwards transmitted to the congress of the United States the following memorial:

"United States of America in Congress Assembled:"

"The memorial of the general assembly of the State of Illinois respectfully represents that the construction of a canal uniting the waters of Lake Michigan with the Illinois river will form an important addition to the great connecting link in the chain of internal navigation which will effectually secure the insoluble union of the conferate members of this great and powerful republic: By the completion of this great and valuable work the connection between the north and the south, the east and the west, would be strengthened by the ties of commercial intercourse and social neighborhood, and the union of the states might bid defiance to internal commotion, sectional jealousy, and foreign invasion. All the states of the Union would then feel the most powerful motives to resist every attempt at dissolution. To effect so great and desirable an object your memorialists believe to be of sufficient importance to engage the attention and awaken the munificent patronage of a government whose principle of action is the promotion of the general welfare. Your memorialists are sensibly alive to the spirit of improvement that manifests itself in almost every section of our extensive country and would fain lend a helping hand in so great and good a cause. Their situation, however, forbids their doing much without the aid of the federal government, into whose treasury almost all funds, whether brought hither by emigrants or earned by the industry of their citizens, are paid for the purchase of the public lands. While this state of things shall continue and the money thus paid into the treasury of the Union is taken out of our State, our people will not be able to engage in the glorious work of improving our common country. Ought the people of this State to stand by with folded arms and behold the great work of internal improvement progress in other States without making an effort to improve their own conditions and at the same time advance the interests of our beloved country? A condition thus paralized is at war not only with our interests, but with the best feelings of our hearts. Did this State possess the public domain lying within its bounds as in the case with the older members of this confederacy, your memorialists would not appear before your honorable body to solicit aid in its important work. If, as your memorialists believe, the construction of this canal would be highly beneficial to the Union at large, if the receipts into the treasury of the United States would be augmented by the increased sales of public lands, and if the interest of this State would be also advanced thereby, is it unreasonable to apply to a paternal government for assistance in the promotion of such beneficial ends? It is unnecessary for your memorialists to enlarge on the great advantages of this canal to the Union in the facilities to be afforded in the event of war either with the Indian tribe inhabiting our frontier, or the British nation. Your honorable body is aware that this State is situated on the borders of an Indian country filled with numerous and powerful tribes of the sons of the forest. If our country should be again engaged in war, the saving of expense in the transportation of munitions of war would alone defray the expense of the contemplated canal and justify the United States in making a liberal appropriation for its construction. Your memorialists do not, however, ask your honorable body to appropriate money out of the treasury to aid them in this work. They only ask for a tract of land through which the contemplated canal may pass and which for a series of years will be wholly unproductive to the government unless the canal shall be commenced under auspices favorable to its completion; in which event all the land in the vicinity would immediately become available to the United States. Your memorialists sincerely believe that a liberal appropriation of land for this object would, even in a pecuniary point of view, be of immense importance to the treasury of the Union. The public lands in the vicinity would not only sell, but at a considerable advance upon the minimum price. Should this opinion be correct (and does not experience justify it?), the United States would be gainers by the proposed donation to the State. Your memorialists further state that at their last session they passed an act of incorporation, upon very liberal terms, authorizing a company to construct the projected canal; but the remoteness of the country from the residence of capitalists has prevented them from engaging in the work. At their present session your memorialists have repealed the charter, and their only hope of soon beginning the work depends upon the liberality of your honorable body. Your memorialists have caused the route to be explored and estimates to be made of the probable expense of the work; from which it appears that the cost of constructing the canal will not be less than $600,000, and may possibly amount to $700,000. To the end, therefore, that your memorialists may be enabled to commence and complete this great and useful work, we pray your honorable body to grant to this state the respective townships of land through which the contemplated canal may pass, the avails of which to be appropriated exclusively to the construction of said canal upon such terms and conditions as to your honorable body may seem proper."

19687

DAVID BLACKWELL,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
RAPHAEL WIDEN,
Speaker of the Senate pro tem.

On March 2, 1827, congress passed the following act to aid the State of Illinois in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan:

"An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, That there be, and hereby is, granted to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United States, to be selected by the commissioner of land office, under the directions of the president of the United States, from one end of the said canal to the other; and the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the legislature of the said State for the purpose aforesaid, and no other: Provided, That the said canal when completed, shall be and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the government of the United States, free from any toll, or other charge, whatever, for any property of the United States or persons in their service, passing through the same; provided, that said canal shall be commenced within five years, and completed in twenty years, or the State shall be bound to pay to the United States the amount of any lands previously sold, and that the title to purchasers under the State shall be valid.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That, so soon as the route of the said canal shall be located and agreed on by the said State, it shall be the duty of the governor thereof, or such other person or persons as may have been, or shall hereafter be, authorized to superintend the construction of said canal, to examine and ascertain the particular sections to which the said State shall be entitled, under the provisions of this act, and report the same to the secretary of the treasury of the United States.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said State, under the authority of the legislature thereof, after the selection shall have been so made, shall have power to sell and convey the whole, or any part of said land, and to give a title in fee-simple therefor, to whomsoever shall purchase the whole, or any part thereof.

Approved March 2, 1827." (Record p. 22.)

On January 22, 1829, the Illinois legislature passed an act, providing for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, which is, in part, as follows:

"An act to provide for the constructing the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois represented in the general assembly, That the governor shall biennially nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to consider, devise and adopt such measures as may be required to facilitate and effect the communications, by means of a canal and locks, between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan, and in case of the death, resignation, or refusal to act, during the recess of the legislature, of either of said commissioners, the vacancy thereby occasioned shall be filled by the governor.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of the canal commissioners, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, to cause those parts of the territory of this State which is upon, or contiguous to, the probable course or range of said canal, to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same; and to cause all necessary surveys and levels to be taken, and accurate maps, field books, and drafts to be made; and as soon thereafter as they may be able to command sufficient funds, and deem it expedient, shall commence the work by opening a canal, and constructing locks, aqueducts, and dams and embankments, to effect the navigable communication between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river.

Sec. 6. The canal commissioners shall select, or cause to be selected, as soon as practicable, in conjunction with such commissioner as shall be appointed by the commissioner of the general land office, under the direction of the president of the United States, the alternate sections of land granted to this state by the provisions of an act of congress, entitled 'An act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding her in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan,' approved 2nd of March, 1827. And if no commissioner shall be appointed on the part of the general government, the said commissioners, or either of them, shall proceed to make such selections; and shall, without delay, forward to the governor a duplicate of the list containing the numbers of each section by him or them selected, who shall forward a copy of the same to the commissioner of the general land office.

Sec. 10. Said commissioners may sue and be sued, and defend in the name of 'the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal'. And to enable said commissioners to accomplish the object herein contemplated, it shall be lawful for them to enter upon and take and use, any lands, waters, and streams, necessary for the prosecution of the work intended by this act.

Sec. 11. The canal contemplated by this act, shall have the following dimensions, to-wit: At least forty feet in width at the summit water line, twenty-eight feet wide at the bottom, and of sufficient depth to contain at least four feet of water. And it shall be furnished with such locks, aqueducts and dams, as may be required to insure a safe and convenient navigation for boats of at least twenty-five feet long, thirteen feet six inches wide, and drawing three feet of water. The reasonable expenses incurred by said commissioner, in carrying the provisions of this act into effect, shall be paid out of the funds arising from the sales of the aforesaid lands."

"Approved January 22, 1829." (Record p. 23.)

Under the provisions of the last above act the governor of the State of Illinois, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and on, to-wit, the month of March, 1829, appointed Edward Roberts, Gersham Jayne, and Charles Dunn canal commissioners. (Record p. 26.)

On September 23, 1829, the canal commissioners appointed under the act of the general assembly of January 22, 1829, by their agent and representative, Elijah Iles, obtained from the secretary of state of the State of Illinois the map of the route of the Illinois and Michigan Canal made by J. Post and R. Paul, and at that time said Elijah Iles, for and on behalf of the said commissioners, executed to the said secretary of state the following receipt for said map:

"Vandalia, Sept. 23, 1829."

"Received of the secretary of state, for the use of the commissioners appointed by the general assembly at the session of 1828 and 1829 for the purpose of locating and examining the canal route from Lake Michigan to the falls of the Illinois river, the map of the surveyed lands lying on said route and the profile of the survey made by the former commissioners appointed to locate said route."

(Record p. 26.) ELIJAH ILES.

On December 25, 1829, Ninian Edwards, governor of Illinois, transmitted to the commissioner of the general land office, a map of the route of the canal with the selection of lands made by the State. His letter to the land commissioner is as follows:

"Belleville, Illinois, 25 Dec., 1829.

Sir: I have the honor herewith to transmit to you a map of the route which has been selected for the canal to connect the waters of Lake Michigan and the Illinois river, with the selections of lands granted to the state which has been made by the canal commissioners of this state, according to law and as nearly agreeable to your instructions as was practicable.

If these selections should be approved by the president, it is hoped that patents will be transmitted as soon as practicable.

Wishing to avoid delay, I have no time to have a copy taken of the map herewith sent and should be very glad if you would send it back after you are done with it.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, sir, y'r mo. ob. s't,"

(Record p. 28.) NINIAN EDWARDS.

At page 28 of record will be found the map referred to. The odd sections colored dark are the sections selected by the State of Illinois. The following is the certificate of the commissioner of general land office:

"Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., November 23, 1832.

I, N. C. McFarland, Commissioner of the General Land Office, do hereby certify that the annexed tracing copy of the map of the Illinois and Michigan canal, filed under the provisions of the act of congress approved March 2, 1827, and also, hereto attached, the letter transmitting said map to this office by the governor of Illinois, dated 25 December, 1829, are true and literal exemplifications of the originals now on file in this office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused the seal of this office to be affixed, at the city of Washington, on the day and year above written.

N. C. McFARLAND,
(Seal.) Commissioner of General Land Office."
(Record p. 28.)

Section ten (10), township thirty-three (33), north, range three (3), LaSalle County, Illinois, being the section in which the land involved in this suit is located, is one of the sections reserved to the United States under the act of congress of March 27, 1827.

The map transmitted in 1829 to the general land office is known as the Thompson map. On the Thompson map the odd sections selected by the State are colored dark. In all other respects the Thompson and the Post and Paul maps are alike. The route of the canal as indicated upon each of these two maps passes through the same sections and is identical.

The State of Illinois commenced the construction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal upon the route indicated

Assignment of Errors.

First. The supreme court of the State of Illinois erred in affirming the decision of the circuit court of La Salle county, State of Illinois.

Second. The supreme court of the State of Illinois erred in not finding that the State of Illinois acquired title to and is now the owner of the land in dispute under and by virtue of the acts of Congress of the United States of March 30, 1822, and March 27, 1827, reading as follows:

Act of March 30, 1822.

"1. The State of Illinois, be, and is hereby, authorized to survey, and mark, through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in the cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the said State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever; on condition, however, that if the said State does not survey and direct by law said canal, to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passage of this act; or if the said canal be not completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years thereafter; or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by, and used for, a canal suitable for navigation; the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect; provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, that nothing in this act contained, or that shall be done in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed or construed to imply any obligation on the part of the United States to appropriate any money to defray the expenses of surveying or opening said canal: Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said canal, when completed, shall be, and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll or other charge whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same.

"2. Every section of land through which said canal route may pass, shall be and the same is hereby reserved from future sale, until hereafter specially directed by law; and said State is hereby authorized and permitted, without waste, to use any materials on the public lands adjacent to said canal, that may be necessary for its construction."

Act of March 2, 1827.

"1. There be, and hereby is, granted to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United States, to be selected by the Commissioner of the Land Office, under the direction of the President of the United States, from one end of the said canal to the other; and the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the legislature of the said State, for the purpose aforesaid and no other; provided, that the said canal, when completed, shall be and forever remain, a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States, free from any toll, or other charge, whatsoever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same: Provided, that said canal shall be commenced within five years, and completed in twenty years, or the State shall be bound to pay to the United States the amount of any lands previously sold, and that the title to purchasers under the State shall be valid.

"2. So soon as the route of the said canal shall be located and agreed on by the said State, it shall be the duty of the governor thereof, or such other persons as may have been, or shall hereafter be, authorized to superintend the construction of said canal, to examine and ascertain the particular sections to which the said State will be entitled, under the provisions of this act, and report the same to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

"3. The said State, under the authority of the legislature thereof, after the selection shall have been so made, shall have power to sell and convey the whole, or any part of the said land, and to give a title in fee-simple therefor, to whomsoever shall purchase the whole or any part thereof."

Third. The supreme court of the State of Illinois misconstrued the intent and effect of the acts of Congress set out in the second assignment of error.

upon the Pôst and Paul and Thompson maps, in 1837, and completed it in 1847. (Record p. 27.)

From the date of its completion the said canal has been suitable for navigation, and has been used as and for a canal for the purposes of navigation. In 1848, A. J. Mathewson, under the direction of the canal commissioners, surveyed and marked the line of the ninety-foot strip on each side of the canal from one end to the other and recorded the maps and profiles of said survey in the office of the canal commissioners. (Record pp. 33, 34.) A copy of the map and survey through section 10 is found at record p. 34.

BRIEF.

I.

The words "and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the State," employed in the act of March 30, 1822, are words of absolute donation and import an immediate transfer of title, though subsequent proceedings are required to give precision to the title and attach it to specific lands.

St. Joe & Denver Railway vs. Baldwin, 103 U. S., 426.

Grinnell vs. Rock Island Ry., 103 U. S., 742.

Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 44.

Rutherford vs. Green, 2 Wheat., 196.

Leavenworth vs. U. S., 92 U. S., 741.

Railway Co. vs. Railway Co., 917 U. S., 496.

Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 360.

Railway vs. Railway, 139 U. S., 1.

U. S. vs. Southern Pacific Ry., 146 U. S., 594.

Wilkinson vs. N. P. Ry., 5 Mont., 538.

Johnson vs. Ballou, 28 Mich., 379.

Swan vs. Larmore, 70 Ala., 561.

B. & M. Ry. vs. Lawson, 58 Iowa, 145.

II.

The act of congress of March 30, 1822, vested in the State eo instanti the title to a ninety-foot strip of land on each side of a canal connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, to be thereafter located. Until the canal was located, the title did not attach to any specific ninety-foot strip, but was a float. When the route of the canal was surveyed and determined, the location of the ninety-foot strip became certain, and the title acquired precision and attached to it as of the date of the grant.

H. & St. Jo. Ry. vs. Smith, 9 Wall., 95.
Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 44.
Leavenworth vs. U. S., 92 U. S., 741.
Railway vs. Railway, 139 U. S., 5.
U. S. vs. Railway Company, 146 U. S., 570.
Rutherford vs. Green, 2 Wheat., 196.
Lessieur vs. Price, 12 Howard, 59.
M., K. & T. Ry. vs. K. P. Ry., 97 U. S., 497.
Buttz vs. N. P. Ry., 119 U. S., 55.
Railway vs. Kerr, 41 Cal., 489.
County vs. Morrison, 28 Minn., 257.
Courtwright vs. Railway Co., 35 Iowa, 386.
Keeley vs. Brickey, 78 Ill., 135.
Railway Co. vs. McDougall, 113 Ill., 607.
Gilbreath vs. Dilday, 152 Ill., 207.
I. C. Ry. vs. Union Co., 94 Ill., 71.

III.

Upon the return of the map to the treasury department of the United States, in the year 1829, the route of the canal became definitely fixed and the State's title attached specifically to the ninety-foot strip on each side thereof.

Butts vs. N. P. Ry., 119 U. S., 55.
K. P. Ry. vs. Dunmeyer, 113 U. S., 629.
Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 360.
Walden vs. Knevals, 114 U. S., 373.
Railway Co. vs. U. S., 168 U. S., 61.

IV.

The conditions prescribed in the act of 1822, to-wit, that the State should survey and direct by law the canal to be opened and return a complete map thereof to the treasury department within three years, and complete the canal within twelve years, or the grant should be void, were conditions subsequent, the non-performance of which did not divest the State of its title to the ninety-foot strip.

Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 44.

Grinnell vs. Rock Island Ry., 103 U. S., 739.

Railway Company vs. Mingus, 165 U. S., 431.

Nicholl vs. Erie Railway, 12 New York, 121.

Wheeler vs. City of Chicago, 68 Fed. Rep., 526.

Keeler vs. Brickey, 78 Ill., 135.

Railway vs. McDougall, 113 Ill., 607.

Gilbreath vs. Dilday, 152 Ill., 210.

V.

The conditions prescribed in the act of 1822 being conditions subsequent, the government only was concerned in their performance. No individual could take advantage of their non-performance. The government could only re-invest itself with title by judicial proceedings declaring a forfeiture, or by some legislative assertion of ownership.

Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 44.

Railway vs. McGee, 115 U. S., 473.

Grinnell vs. Rock Island Railway, 103 U. S., 739.

Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 368.

Nicholl vs. Railway, 12 New York, 121.

Railway vs. Mecklim, 23 Kansas, 167.

Railway vs. Majors, 5 Mont., 111.

Hooper vs. Cummings, 45 Maine, 359.

VI.

The act of March 2, 1827, was passed to aid the State in opening and constructing the canal provided for by the act of March 30, 1822, and to extend the time for completing the same. The act of the general assembly of the State of Illinois of February 14, 1823, and the proceedings taken thereunder; the return of the map of the route of the canal to the treasury department in 1829, and the completion of said canal in 1847, constituted an acceptance by the State of the grant of 1822.

Wheeler vs. Chicago, 68 Fed. Rep., 526.

Railway vs. Barney, 113 U. S., 618.

M., K. & T. Ry. vs. K. P. Ry., 97 U. S., 497.

VII.

Grants of this character should be construed liberally and so as to carry out, as fully as possible, the intention of congress.

M., K. & T. Ry. vs. K. P. Ry., 97 U. S., 497.

Railway vs. Barney, 113 U. S., 625.

U. S. vs. Railway Company, 146 U. S., 598.

Railway Company vs. Forsythe, 159 U. S., 55.

VIII.

When appellees' grantors entered and acquired title to the northwest quarter of said section 10 in 1835, they took the same subject to the right of way of the canal and to the grants previously made by the acts of 1822 and 1827.

St. Joe & Denver Ry. vs. Baldwin, 103 U. S., 426.

Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 365.

Railway vs. Cook, 163 U. S., 497.

Flint Railway vs. Gorden, 41 Mich., 423.

Rider vs. B. & M. Ry., 14 Neb., 122.

B. & M. Ry. vs. Lawson, 58 Iowa, 148.

Vance vs. Railway Co., 12 Neb., 285.

Bullard vs. Railway Co., 62 Iowa, 382.

Railway vs. Peronto, 3 Dakota, 233.

IX.

Appellees could acquire no right or title to the ninety-foot strip by possession or prescription. The statute of limitations does not run against the State.

Gibson vs. Chouteau, 13 Wallace, 100.

Corlett vs. People, 151 Ill, 23.

X

The ninety-foot strip has been repeatedly referred to in legislative acts, and has been recognized as part of the canal lands of the State.

Laws Illinois 1836, p. 148. (Section 16.)

Laws Illinois 1872, p. 214. (Section 5.)

Statutes Illinois, 1874, p. 190. (Section 8.)

ARGUMENT.

I.

THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 30, 1822, AMOUNTED TO AN ABSOLUTE GRANT, IN PRAESENTI, OF A NINETY-FOOT STRIP OF LAND TO THE STATE.

Section 1 of this act contains the following: "and "ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be for- "ever reserved from any sale to be made by the United "States, except in cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be, and the same is hereby, vested in "said state for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever— "on condition, however, that if the State does not survey "and direct by law said canal to be opened and return a com- "plete map thereof to the treasury department, * * * "the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of "none effect."

It will be observed that this ninety-foot strip is not only reserved from sale, but that the use thereof forever is vested in the State. No broader language could have been employed, evidencing an intent to vest absolute title in the State.

The Supreme Court of the United States has had frequent occasion to construe land grants containing provisions similar to the above, and has held in an unbroken line of decisions, that such a provision imports a grant in præsenti and absolute in character.

In the case of Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 62, the Court say:

"Numerous other decisions might be cited to the same "purport. They establish the conclusion that unless there "are other clauses in a statute, restraining the operation of "words of present grant, these must be taken in their natural "sense to import an immediate transfer of title, although "subsequent proceedings may be required to give precision "to that title and attach it to specific tracts. * * *. "The rules applicable to private transactions, which regard "grants of future application—of lands to be afterwards des- "ignated—as mere contracts to convey and not as actual "conveyances, are founded upon the common law which re- "quires the possibility of present identification of property "to the validity of its transfer. A legislative grant operates "as a law as well as a transfer of property, and has such force "as the intent of the legislature requires. The case of Rice "vs. Railroad Company, reported in first of Black, does not "conflict with these views. The words of present grant, in "the first section of the act, there under consideration, were "restrained by a provision in a subsequent section declaring "that the title should not vest in the Territory of Minnesota "until the road or portions of it were built."

In the case of Leavenworth vs. Railroad, 92 U. S., 741, the Court, per Justice Davis, say:

" 'There be and is hereby granted' are words of absolute "donation and import a grant in præsenti. This Court has "held that they can have no other meaning; and the land de- "partment, on this interpretation of them, has uniformly ad- "ministered every previous similar grant. They vest a pres- "ent title in the State of Kansas, though a survey of the "lands and the location of the road are necessary to give pre- "cision to it and attach it to any particular tract. The grant "then becomes certain and by relation has the same effect "upon the selected parcels as if it had specifically described "them. In other words, the grant was a float until the line "of the road should be definitely fixed."

In the case of St. Joe & Denver Railway vs. Baldwin 103 U. S., 429, the Court, per Justice Field, say:

"The language of the act here and of nearly all the con"gressional acts granting lands is in terms of a grant in præ-
"senti. The act is a present grant, except so far as its immedi"ate operation is affected by the limitations mentioned.
" 'There is hereby granted' are the words used, and they im"port an immediate transfer of interest, so that when the "route is definitely fixed the title attaches, from the date of "the act, to the sections, except such as are taken from its "operation by the clauses mentioned. This is the construc"tion given by this Court to similar language in other acts of "Congress."

Under these decisions there can be no question, but, that under the act of Congress of March 30, A. D. 1822, the State of Illinois became vested with the title and the right to the perpetual use for the canal, to a strip of land ninety feet wide on each side of a canal, the route of which should be marked and surveyed by said State through the public lands of the United States, connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan.

II.

UNTIL THE CANAL ROUTE WAS DETERMINED THE TITLE WAS A FLOAT. UPON ITS DETERMINATION, THE LOCATION OF THE NINETY-FOOT STRIP BECAME CERTAIN AND THE TITLE OF THE STATE ACQUIRED PRECISION AND ATTACHED TO IT AS OF THE DATE OF THE GRANT.

If anything in the land laws of the United States can be considered as thoroughly settled it is this proposition.

In the case of St. Joe Railway vs. Smith, 9 Wall., 99, the Court, per Justice Miller, in construing the swamp land grant, say:

"Now here is a present grant by Congress of certain "lands to the State within which they lie, but it is by a de- "scription which requires something more than a mere refer- "ence to their townships, ranges, and sections to identify "them as coming within it. In this respect it is precisely like "the railroad grants which only become certain by the loca- "tion of the road. In fact, in this regard the swamp land "grant was the more specific, for all the lands of that descrip- "tion were granted and they have remained so granted ever "since, while no particular land was described in the railroad "grant which was a float, to be determined by the choice of "the line of the road in future. No act of Congress has ever "attempted to take back this grant of the swamp lands or to "forfeit it or to give it to any other grantee, or modify the "description by which they were given to the States."

In the case of Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 60, the Court say:

"It is true that the route of the railroad, for the con- "struction of which the grant was made, was yet to be desig"nated, and until such designation the title did not attach to "any specific tracts of land. The title passed to the sections, "to be afterwards located; when the route was fixed their lo- "cation became certain, and the title, which was previously "imperfect, acquired precision and became attached to the "land."

In the case of St. Paul Railway vs. N. P. Railway, 139 U. S., 5, the Court, per Justice Field, say:

"The route not being at the time determined, the grant " was in the nature of a float, and the title did not attach to "any specific sections until they were capable of identification; "but when once identified, the title attached to them as of "the date of the grant, except as to such sections as were "specifically reserved. It is in this sense that the grant is "termed one in præsenti that is to say, it is of that charac- "ter as to all lands within the terms of the grant and not re- "served from it at the time of the definite location of the "route. This is the construction given to similar grants by "this Court, where the question has been often considered. "Indeed, it is so well settled as to be no longer open to dis- "cussion."

From these decisions it would seem clear that upon the passage of the Act of Congress of March 30, 1822, the State of Illinois became thereby immediately vested with the title to ninety feet in width of land lying on each side of a canal to be by the State marked, surveyed and afterwards constructed through the public lands of the United States, connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, but that such title did not attach to any particular lands until the route of said canal was afterwards surveyed and located, under the provisions of said act, and until said canal was afterwards constructed by the State, under the provisions of the acts of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827; and upon the completion of said canal the title of the State to the land so granted by the act of March 30, 1822, acquired precision and became attached to the ninety feet in width on each side of said canal as constructed.

III.

THE CONDITIONS ANNEXED TO THE GRANT OF 1822, THAT A MAP OF THE ROUTE BE RETURNED WITHIN THREE YEARS, AND THE CANAL COMPLETED WITHIN TWELVE YEARS, WERE CONDITIONS SUBSEQUENT, THE NON-PERFORMANCE OF WHICH DID NOT DIVEST THE STATE OF ITS TITLE.

The conditions prescribed in the act of 1822, as to the survey of the route, the return of the map, and the completion of the canal, are similar in effect to those contained in the swamp land and railroad grants made by the United States.

In some of these acts the words hereby granted are followed by a provision requiring certain acts, such as a survey and completion of the work, to be performed within a specified time; in others, the words hereby granted are followed by a provision that unless such acts be performed within a specified time, the grant shall be void; and in others, the language employed is, are hereby granted on condition that certain acts (such as a survey of the route and a completion of the work) be performed within a specified time.

In construing these various acts this Court has invariably held that the conditions annexed are conditions subsequent.

The act of Congress of June 3, 1856, granted certain lands to the State of Wisconsin, to aid in the construction of railroads. Section 4 of the act provided that if the road was not completed within ten years, the lands unsold should revert to the United States.

In the case of Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 62, the Court, per Justice Field, in construing this act, say:

"The provision in the act of Congress of 1856, that all "lands remaining unsold after ten years shall revert to the "United States, if the road be not then completed, is no "more than a provision that the grant shall be void if a con- "dition subsequent be not performed. * * * The prohi- "bition against further sales, if the road be not completed "within the period prescribed, adds nothing to the force of "the provision. A cessation of sales in that event is implied "in the condition that the lands shall then revert; if the con- "dition be not enforced, the power to sell continues as before "its breach, limited only by the objects of the grants, and the "manner of sale prescribed in the act."

In the case of Railway & Iron Co. vs. Cunningham, 155 U. S., 372, the Court, per Justice Brewer, say:

"Although there was a provision for the forfeiture of "the land, if the road was not completed within ten years, "such provision was a condition subsequent, which could be "enforced only by the original grantor, the United States, "and until in some appropriate method it asserted is right of "forfeiture, the title remained in the State of Michigan or "the corporations upon which, from time to time, it con- "ferred the benefit of the grant. (Citing authorities)."

In the case of United States vs. Railway, 146 U. S., 594, the Court, per Justice Brewer, after citing with approval the opinion of Justice Field in the case of Railway vs. Railway, 139 U. S., 1, say:

"In view of this late and clear declaration, it would be a "waste of time to attempt a re-examination of the questions "or a re-statement of the reasons which have established "these as the settled rules of law in respect to land grants, "and made it so that the old common law rule as to the "necessity of identification to a conveyance, has not been con"trolling in determining the scope and effect of a congres"sional land grant. * * * It may not be amiss to notice

"the case of Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 44. In that "case land had been granted to the State of Wisconsin to "aid in the construction of a railroad. The language of the "grant was like that in this: 'There be and is hereby granted.'
"A further provision was that if the road be not completed "within ten years 'no further sales shall be made, and the " 'lands unsold shall revert to the United States.' The rail"road was not completed within the time specified. There"after timber was cut and removed from these lands, and the "question for consideration was as to the ownership of that "timber. It was held that the timber was the property of "the State; that by the grant title to the land passed to the "State upon the location of the road, and that though the "road was not completed within the time specified, and "though there was the provision that the unsold lands should "revert, yet the title still remained in the State, held under a "condition subsequent, and held until the government should "take some steps to assert a forfeiture."

In the case of Railway vs. Mingus, 165 U. S., 430, the Court, per Justice Brown, say:

"There is no doubt that where an estate is granted sub"ject to a condition subsequent, the mere fact that there has "been a breach of such condition, will not re-vest the title in "the grantor without some act or declaration upon his part.
"Ruck vs. Rock Island, 97 U. S., 693, 696. In this case it "was held, by Mr. Justice Swayne, that it was not denied by "the plaintiff that the title had passed and that the estate had "vested by the dedication if the conditions subsequent were

"broken; that did not ipso facto produce a reverter of the "title. The estate continued in full force until the proper "step was taken to consummate the forfeiture."

All the decisions of the Supreme Court of Illinois since the Keeler case (78 Ill., 135,) are in harmony with and are based upon the doctrine above announced.

The swamp land act of September 28, 1850, granted to the State of Arkansas, and other states, all overflowed lands within their limits, after the passage of the act. Section 2 required the Secretary of the Interior, as soon as practicable, after the passage of the act, to make out an accurate list and plats of the swamp lands, and transmit the same to the governors of the states and at the request of said governors to cause patents to be issued to the states therefor, and provided that "on that patent the fee simple to said "lands shall vest in said State * * * subject to the dis- "posal of the Legislature thereof."

In the case of Thompson vs. Prince, 67 Ill., 283, the Court, per Justice Scott, in construing this act, say:

"It does not seem to us to be the true construction of "the swamp land act of 1850, that of itself, it grants the fee "of all swamp and overflowed lands to the several states in "which they are situated, without some act of segregation. "Manifestly, if anything remains to be done by the grantor "or grantee to consummate the grant after the passage of "the law, it will not take effect and vest the title until such "act has been performed."

On page 284 the Court say: "The comprehensive words "of the first section are obviously limited by that which is "contained in the subsequent sections. The language em- "ployed indicates unmistakably that it was the intention of "Congress that the lists should be made and the patents is"sued, before the fee in the lands should be vested in the sev"eral states. It is difficult to understand how any other con"struction can be given to the second section."

On page 285 the Court say: "The grant could not be"come definite and certain until the lists and the plats should "be furnished according to the provisions of the act * *
"*. Neither the State nor the County of Adams, in which "it is situated, ever claimed any interest in the land. Hav"ing never been separated from the other public lands by "any act of the government or its officers, we are of opinion
"the fee did not pass to the State merely by the passage of "the swamp land act of 1850, if it was in fact swamp land
"and we have no doubt it was, the State, if it desired
"to avail of the benefits of the grant, ought to have taken "steps, before the government conveyed it, to have the title
"confirmed and the patent issued. Having failed to do so,
"appellee could lawfully enter it, and his title is paramount
"and must prevail."

In the case of Chicago vs. McGraw, 75 Ill., 573, the Court, per Justice Schofield, in construing the act of Congress of March 30, 1822, (which, as we shall hereafter demonstrate, was not involved in the case) after referring to the conditions in the act, as to the survey and return of the map, say:

"There is no evidence whatever, in the record before us,
"that these conditions were complied with by the State, and
"it is incumbent upon the defendant, in order to avail of the "reservation and grant, as against the possession of the plain"tiff, to show that the conditions were complied with, be"cause this is made indispensable by the act of Congress to "the vesting of the rights conferred in the State."

This doctrine was in harmony with, and doubtless based upon the opinion in the Thompson case, supra, which has since been overruled.

In the case of Keller vs. Brickey, 78 Ill., 133, the swamp land grant of September 28, 1850, was before that Court a second time and its previous decision was overruled. The Court, per Justice Breese, on page 135, say:

"The tract in question being of the description embraced "in the act of Congress of September 28, 1850, it became at "that date the absolute property of the State, subject to its "control and in which the government of the United States "thence forward, had no interest and could not sell it to an- "other. That this is the doctrine, is clearly established by "the case of the Railroad Company vs. Smith, 9 Wall., 96, "where the subject is fully discussed. That these lands so "granted to the states were by various acts of the Legisla- "ture vested in the counties in which they are situated, ap- "pears by the acts cited, and by the last act passed upon the "subject, approved February 14, 1859. Whatever this Court "may have decided in respect to the condition of the title to "these lands the Supreme Court of the United States, whose "prerogative it is to construe acts of Congress, must be "regarded as authorative on this question. That Court hav- "ing decided that by the terms of the act of September 28, "1850, the title to these lands vested ipso facto in the State, "the State, having competent authority passed the title to "the counties."

The doctrine announced in the above case has since been reaffirmed by the Supreme Court of Illinois.

In the case of Gilbreath vs. Dilday, 152 Ill., 210, the Court, per Justice Philips, in construing the swamp land grant, say:

"That this was swamp and overflowed land at the time "it was sold to McCullough, the proof is conclusive. Appel- "lant and all the witnesses say that this has always been "swamp land—the bottom of a pond—and worthless till "drained. The county sold this land and attempted to con- "vey it as swamp land. In Railroad Co. vs. Smith, 9 Wall., "95, the Supreme Court of the United States held, that un- "der the act of Congress, the title to swamp and overflowed "lands became ipso facto vested in the State, and that it "could not be deprived thereof because the Secretary of the "Interior had neglected his duty and failed to furnish the "State with the evidence, as he was directed to do by the act "as to what lands came within the description of 'swamp and "'overflowed lands' but that such fact could be proved by "any witnesses whose personal knowledge would enable them "to testify as to the character and condition of the tracts. In "Keller vs. Brickey, 78 Ill., 133, it was held that the act of "Congress of September 28, 1850, vested the title to "these lands in the State without any further act being done, "and that the State, having competent authority, passed the "title to the counties by act of the Legislature.

"In Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railway Co. vs. Mc- "Dougall, et al, 113 Ill., 603, it was held to be established "that the county would be absolutely invested with the title "to the land whether the certificate of the Auditor, which is "made evidence of the fact by the act of the Legislature of "1854, was granted or not, and that without the Auditor's "certificate, parol evidence would be competent to prove "the character and condition of the land."

The doctrine announced by Justice Schofield in the McGraw case upon which the decision of this case was predicated, in effect is, that the conditions annexed to the grant of 1822 were conditions precedent, the performance of which was indispensable to vest title in the State.

This doctrine, as we have shown, has been overruled by the Supreme Court of Illinois in subsequent decisions. No authority can be found to support it, either in the text books or the decisions of the Federal or State Courts.

The conditions annexed to the grant of 1822, providing that the State should direct by law the canal to be opened and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department within three years and complete the canal within twelve years, were conditions subsequent, and the non-performance of these conditions did not divest the State of its title to the ninety-foot strip.

IV.

THE CONDITIONS ANNEXED, BEING CONDITIONS SUBSEQUENT, NO INDIVIDUAL CAN COMPLAIN OF THEIR NON-PERFORMANCE, AND THE GOVERNMENT COULD ONLY RE INVEST ITSELF WITH TITLE BY JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS DECLARING A FORFEITURE, OR BY LEGISLATIVE ASSERTION OF OWNERSHIP.

In the case of Schulenberg vs. Harriman, 21 Wall., 63, the Court say:

"It is settled law that no one can take advantage of the "non-performance of a condition subsequent annexed to an "estate in fee, but the grantor or his heirs or the successors "of the grantor, if the grant proceed from an artificial per- "son; if they do not see fit to assert their right to enforce a "forfeiture on that ground the title remains unimpaired in "the grantee. The authorities on this point, with hardly an "exception, are all one way from the Year Books down. And "the same doctrine obtains where the grant upon condition "proceeds from the government; no individual can assail the "title it has conveyed, on the ground that the grantee has "failed to perform the conditions annexed * * *. In the "present case no action has been taken, either by legislation "or judicial proceedings to enforce the forfeiture of the "estate granted by the acts of 1856 and 1864. The title re- "mains, therefore, in the State as completely as it existed on "the day when the title, by location of the route of the rail- "road, acquired precision and became attached to the ad- "joining alternate sections."

In the case of Grinnell vs. Railway, 103 U. S., where it was sought to defeat the title of the railway to lands granted by the act of 1856, upon the ground that the road as constructed under the act of 1864, varied from the route surveyed and reported to the land office, the Court, per Justice Miller, on page 744, say:

"Another point equally fatal to the plaintiffs in error is, "that the assertion of a right by the United States to the "land in controversy, was wholly a matter between the gov- "ernment and the railroad company or its grantors. The "legal title remains where it was placed before the act of "1864. If the government desires to be re-invested with it, "it must be done by some judicial proceeding or by some act "of the government asserting its right. It does not lie in "the mouth of everyone who chooses to settle on these lands "to set up a title which the government itself can only assert "by some direct proceeding. These plaintiffs had no right "to stir up a litigation which the parties interested did not "desire to be started. It might be otherwise if the legal title "was in the government. Then the land would be subject to "homestead or pre-emption rights. But the title is not in "the government."

In the case of Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 368, the Court, per Justice Field, say:

"The defendant having failed to establish the validity of "his own title, attacks the right of the company to the lands "covered by the grant, alleging that the company never "completed the construction of the entire road for which the "grant was made; that after filing this map with the secre- "tary of the interior it changed, for a part of the distance, "the route of the road, and that it never complied with the "conditions for the extension of its road within the limits of "Nebraska. * * * If the whole of the proposed road has "not been completed any forfeiture consequent thereon

"could be asserted only by the grantor, the United States, "through judicial proceedings or through the action of Con- "gress. A third party cannot take upon himself to enforce "conditions attached to the grant when the government it- "self does not complain of their breach. The holder of an "invalid title does not strengthen his position by showing "how badly the government has been treated with respect to "the property. As to the alleged deviation of the road con- "structed from the route laid down in the map, admitting "such to be the fact, the defendant is in no position to com- "plain of it; the lands in controversy are within the required "limit, whether that be measured by one line or the other."

In the case of Railway vs. McGee, 115 U. S., 463, the Court, per Chief Justice Waite, say:

"It has often been decided that lands granted by Con- "gress, to aid in the construction of railroads, do not revert, "after condition broken, until a forfeiture has been asserted "by the United States, either through judicial proceedings "instituted under authority of law for that purpose, or "through some legislative action legally equivalent to a "judgment of office found at common law. Legislation to be "sufficient must manifest an intention by Congress to re-assert "title and to resume possession. As it is to take the place of "a suit by the United States to enforce a forfeiture, and a "judgment therein establishing the right it should be direct, "positive and free from all doubt or ambiguity."

In the case of Railway vs. Mingus, 165 U. S., 430, the Court, per Justice Brown, say:

"The estate continued in full force until the proper step "was taken to consummate the forfeiture. This act can only "be done by the grantor during his lifetime and after his "death by those in privity of blood with him. * * * But "where the grant is a public one, this Court has held, in a "series of cases, that the remedy of the government is by an "inquest of office or office found, a legislative proceeding "but little used in this country, or by a legislative act, di- "recting the possession and appropriation of the land."

It is not claimed or pretended that the United States has ever taken any action, by judicial proceedings, legislative assertion or otherwise, to enforce a forfeiture because of the non-performance of the conditions prescribed in the act of 1822.

These decisions settle this proposition: That the State of Illinois, being invested with title to ninety feet on each side of said canal, could not be divested of title by the non-performance of said conditions, but could only be divested of such title by the United States, by affirmative action on its part, viz: either by judicial proceedings to enforce a forfeiture or by legislation.

V.

THE ACT OF MARCH 2, 1827, WAS PASSED TO AID THE STATE IN CONSTRUCTING THE CANAL CONTEMPLATED BY THE ACT OF 1822, AND TO EXTEND THE TIME FOR COMPLETING THE SAME, AND A COMPLIANCE WITH ITS CONDITIONS CONSTITUTED AN ACCEPTANCE OF THE GRANT OF 1822.

We concede that the opinion rendered by Justice Schofield in the McGraw case (75 Ill., 566) is squarely against this proposition. We insist, however, that a construction of the acts of 1822 and 1827 was not necessary to a decision of that case, and that the part of the opinion relative to the ninety-foot strip is mere dicta.

In the McGraw case (as shown by the record on file in the Supreme Court of Illinois) the facts were as follows.

The plaintiff, Mary McGraw, claimed title to and was in possession of lots 5, 6 and 7 in block 88, in Canalport, and also of fractional lot 1 in the same block, across the canal. The premises were enclosed by fences, and buildings were situated thereon, some of which were erected in 1849.

In the year 1872 the city undertook to cleanse the Chicago river by deepening the bed of the canal, and through its board of public works employed contractors for that purpose. On August 19 Everett, the foreman of the contractors, went upon the plaintiff's premises and tore down the barn, removed the fences, destroyed the garden, and excavated up to the very foundations of the plaintiff's dwelling.

The plaintiff instituted an action of trespass against the City of Chicago, the board of public works, the contractors, and their foreman. The case was tried by a jury and resulted in a judgment against the city, from which judgment an appeal was taken to this Court.

The brief filed by appellant's attorney (Judge T. Lyle Dickey) consists of thirty pages. The main points urged and relied on by Judge Dickey for a reversal of the judgment were: First, That the husband of the plaintiff should have been the plaintiff; second, that the city was no party to the trespass; third, the admission of incompetent testimony; and, fourth, that the Court erred in giving certain instructions for appellee pertaining to color of title, and in refusing certain of appellant's instructions pertaining to the relations of husband and wife.

To the discussion of these questions, twenty-eight and one-half pages of the brief is devoted.

On the last half of page 29 of the brief, Judge Dickey insists that the ninety-foot strip was dedicated by the United States, before the lands in controversy were put in market for sale, to the use of the State for canal purposes. That it was accepted by the State and under the proof was taken possession of, by the location of a towpath upon the premises in question, and that the parties engaged in widening the canal on behalf of the State were justified in taking the ground for that purpose. In support of his contention he then cites various acts of Congress and laws of Illinois.

Counsel for appellees in their brief insisted that the canal, as originally surveyed, did not touch or go upon any portion of the plaintiff's premises.

Judge Dickey, in his reply brief, still insisted that the locus in quo was within the nine-foot strip. Subsequent, however, to the filing of his reply brief, Judge Dickey addressed the following letter to the Court, which is now among the files in the case:

"To the Judges of the Supreme Court of Illinois:

"In the case of the City of Chicago vs. McGraw—at the "first of my reply heretofore presented—I suggested that "the McGraw lot was within the ninety feet staked out in "1836. The counsel for appellee have drawn my attention "to parts of the maps which convince me that this was an "error and that in fact the McGraw house and barn were "within the ninety feet as staked out in 1845, and not on the "canal line as located in 1836. T. LYLE DICKEY,

"Counsel to the corporation of the City of Chicago."

The town of Canalport was laid out in 1836. The canal, as originally surveyed and laid out in the year 1836, did not touch the McGraw lots, and no portion thereof was embraced within the ninety-foot strip. A change was made in the route of the canal, through Canalport, in the year 1845. This was some ten years after section 30, which embraced the McGraw lots, had been purchased by Hamilton, the plaintiff's grantor, from the United States.

The ninety-foot strip, therefore, was neither directly nor indirectly involved in the McGraw case.

But if it be conceded that this question was properly before the Court, we insist that the facts essential to its determination were not presented, and that the decision, under the evidence in this case, and the decisions of this Court is clearly wrong; moreover the State of Illinois was not a party to that suit, and therefore could not be bound by the decision.

The record in this case contains maps, surveys, reports, proceedings of the commissioners, memorials, acts of the legislature and historical facts, which, taken together, demonstrate beyond all question that these two acts of Congress refer to the same and must be construed together—none of which were offered in evidence or even referred to in the McGraw case. The only evidence offered in the McGraw case bearing upon the question of the ninety-foot strip, consisted of three acts of Congress and a number of the statutes of Illinois.

The reasons assigned by Justice Schofield, in support of the conclusion, that these two acts constitute separate and distinct offers, viewed in the light of the record in this case are without force.

The opinion of Justice Schofield concludes as follows:

"The act of Congress of March 2, 1827, does not pur-"port to be an amendment of the act of March 30, 1822, nor "does it, even by inference, refer to it. In our opinion, these "acts constitute distinct and independent offers by the gov-"ernment of the United States of aid to the State in the con-"struction of canals, and the latter one having been accepted "without reference to the terms and conditions of the for-"mer, the State is only entitled to the grant which it con-"veys."

The reasons urged in support of this conclusion, in substance are: First, That the act of 1822 provides for a canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan, whereas the act of 1827 provides for a canal connecting the Illinois river with the waters of Lake Michigan, and that these two acts contemplate different canals; second, that it does not appear that the canal as constructed is upon the route contemplated by the act of 1822; and third, that the memorial of 1826 evidenced an intent upon the part of the State to abandon the grant of 1822, and to apply to Congress for aid to construct another and different canal.

The title of the act of Congress of March 30, 1822, is as follows: "An act to authorize the State of Illinois to open "a canal through the public lands to connect the Illinois "river with Lake Michigan." (Record p. 13.)

Section 1 of the act begins as follows: "The State of "Illinois be and is hereby authorized to survey and mark "through the public lands of the United States the route of "the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern "bend of Lake Michigan." (Record p. 13.)

The title of the act of March 2, 1827, is as follows: "An "act to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for "the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the "waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan."

Section 1 of this act begins as follows: "Be it enacted " * * * that there be and is hereby granted to the State "of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in open- "ing a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river with "those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land * * " (Record p. 22.)

Justice Schofield construes the words southern bend of Lake Michigan as used in section 1 of the act of 1822, to mean the extreme southern curve or point of the lake, and holds that a "canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river "with those of Lake Michigan," as contemplated by the act of 1827, has not for one of its termini the southern bend of Lake Michigan.

This construction, we insist, is technical and strained.

Moreover, it imputes an absurd act to the congress of the United States.

An examination of any map or geography will demonstrate that if a canal were to be constructed, connecting the Illinois river at any point with the extreme southern curve of Lake Michigan, that such canal would extend through the territory of the State of Indiana for a distance of at least twenty miles, and that the eastern terminus thereof would be in the State of Indiana.

Can it seriously be contended that the government, by the act of 1822, intended to vest in the State of Illinois a part of the territory of Indiana?

In 1822 the country was new and undeveloped. There was no reason for making the extreme southern curve of the lake an objective point or designating it as one of the termini of the canal.

The act of 1822 contemplated a canal within the State of Illinois, connecting Lake Michigan with the navigable waters of the Illinois river, to be constructed through the public lands upon the most practical route. The line was to be determined by actual survey at a future period. The engineering problems and economic questions involved in the fixing of the route, concerned the State of Illinois rather than the United States. The government could not know whether the extreme southern curve of the lake, from an engineering standpoint, would constitute a practical and feasible terminus or not. To fix the extreme southern curve of the lake, or any other specific point, as one of the termini of the canal, might defeat the very object and purpose of the act. From the very nature of things, Congress must have intended to give the State a reasonable latitude with regard to the precise point of the terminus.

The entire shore of Lake Michigan, within the jurisdiction of the State of Illinois, constitutes the southern bend of the lake, if the words be used in their broad and liberal sense, and it was in this sense that the words were employed in the act of 1822.

If Justice Schofield's construction be the correct one, then the title of the act of 1822 contemplates one canal and section 1 of the same act contemplates another and different canal.

That the State of Illinois, and every one else, understood the words southern bend of Lake Michigan in their broad and liberal sense, and that as used in the act of 1822 they had reference to a canal connecting the waters of Lake Michigan with the Illinois river, is demonstrated by all subsequent proceedings and legislation pertaining to the canal.

The act of the general assembly of February 14, 1823, directing the canal to be surveyed and opened, as required by the act of 1822, refers to the canal as one requisite to effect communication between the navigable waters of the Illinois river and Lake Michigan. (Record p. 13.)

The governor's message of November 16, 1824, refers to the canal as a canal between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river. (Record p. 39.)

The memorial of November 20, 1824, is for a grant of land on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river. (Record p. 40.)

The appropriation act of the general assembly of January 13, 1825, refers to the canal as the canal between the waters of Lake Michigan and the Illinois river. (Record p. 15.)

The act of January 17, 1825, incorporating the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company, begins as follows: "Where-"as, the improvement of the internal navigation of the State, "by connecting the waters of the Illinois river and Lake "Michigan, will greatly promote, etc." (Record p. 15.)

In the case of Wheeler vs. City of Chicago, tried in the Circuit Court of the United States (Northern District) in 1895, Judge Allen, in commenting upon the opinion of Justice Schofield in the McGraw case, said:

"It occurs to me that there is no substantial conflict, "geographically or practically, between a terminus described "as the southern bend of Lake Michigan and one described "as the waters of Lake Michigan. The latter term is broad-"er geographically, at least in its literal form, than the south-"ern bend of Lake Michigan; but can the line strike any "point on the shore of Lake Michigan, within the limits of "Illinois, which is not a point somewhere in the curve re-"ferred to. The expression was used in the ordinance of "1787 and seems to have been treated with some liberality "or flexibility of adjustment in that case and I think should "receive a like significance in the present. It is an evident "fact that no point within the jurisdiction of the State of "Illinois on the shore of the lake can be reached without "striking, in a large or general sense, the southerly bend or "curve of the lake. As the line was to be determined by "actual survey at a future period, and as the engineering "problems involved in the fixing of the line concerned chief-"ly the grantee rather than the United States, the grantor, "it seems reasonable that a considerable latitude was intend-"ed to be left by the parties with regard to the precise point "of terminus. If I understand the language of the Court in "its literal sense, it would require the fixing of a terminus at "a point considerably east of the territorial limits of the "State of Illinois and one which would be arbitrarily gov- "erned by the line of the shore rather than by those ques- "tions of general utility and policy which are supposed to "have been in the mind of the contracting parties. If the "above view be correct, the argument that the benefits of the "act of 1822 have lapsed by reason of the selection of a dif- "ferent terminus, would seem invalid."

(The above portion of Judge Allen's opinion is not reported in the Federal Reporter.)

The canal as constructed is upon the route contemplated by the act of 1822. Not only is this true, but the record demonstrates that, with some slight variations at its easterly end, the canal was constructed upon the identical route surveyed and located by Post and Paul in the year 1824.

Justus Post and Rene Paul were employed by the commissioners, designated in the act of February 14, 1823, to explore the country and survey the route of the contemplated canal between the Illinois river and Lake Michigan. In this work Justus Post was engaged fifty-four days, in the fall of 1823, for which he was paid by the commissioners, in December of that year, $324.00. (Record p. 35.)

Rene Paul was engaged in this work 121 days during the years 1823 and 1824, for which he was subsequently paid by the State, $480.00. (Record p. 38.)

That the map, "Exhibit C," is the map of the survey and route of the contemplated canal made by Post and Paul in the years 1823 and 1824, is too plain for argument. The map speaks for itself. It is endorsed, "Map of that part of "the State of Illinois through which it is contemplated to "construct a canal. Scale 2½ miles to the inch. By J. Post "& R. Paul." Within the small circle at the left side is endorsed the following: "A. D. 1824." (Record p. 44.)

Mathewson testified that since the early forties this map has been among the files of the canal commissioners' office, and has always been known and referred to as the Post & Paul map. (Record p. 44.)

On September 23, 1829, this map was taken from the office of the secretary of state by the canal commissioners, for the purpose of locating and examining the canal route from Lake Michigan to the falls of the Illinois river. (Record p. 26.)

On December 25, 1829—three months and two days thereafter—the Thompson map, "Exhibit B," (Record p. 28) was transmitted by the governor to the treasury department of the United States.

The route of the canal, as delineated upon these two maps, passes through the same sections and, with the exception of some slight variations near the eastern terminus, is practically identical. The maps are the same in their plan and general make up. The endorsements upon these two maps, except the scale, name of maker, and date, are alike. An examination of these maps proves conclusively that the Thompson map, "Exhibit B," was a tracing or copy of the Post & Paul map, "Exhibit C," with this addition, that the lands selected by the State were designated in red upon the Thompson map. The record shows that the canal was constructed upon the route indicated by the Thompson map.

We submit that the record in this case conclusively demonstrates that the Illinois and Michigan Canal was practically constructed upon the route as surveyed and located by Post and Paul in the years 1823 and 1824. That there were some slight deviations from this route near the eastern terminus, made necessary by the engineering problems involved, we do not deny. This, from the very nature of things, must have been contemplated by Congress. Moreover, neither appellees nor any one else, other than the government, can be heard to complain on this account.

In the case of Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 368, the Court, per Justice Field, in passing upon this precise question, say:

"A third party cannot take upon himself to enforce con"ditions attached to the grant when the government does "not complain of their breach. The holder of an invalid title
"does not strengthen his position by showing how badly
"the government has been treated with respect to the prop"erty. As to the alleged deviation of the road constructed,
"from the route laid down in the map, admitting such to be
"the fact, the defendant is in no position to complain of it;
"the lands in controversy are within the required limit,
"whether that be measured from one line or the other."

The third reason assigned by Justice Schofield, to-wit, that the State did nothing under the act of 1822 and that the memorial of 1826 evidenced an intent to abandon the grant and apply to Congress for aid to construct another and different canal, is we respectfully submit, absolutely without any foundation in fact.

On February 14, 1823, the general assembly passed an act, constituting certain persons a board of commissioners, to construct and devise measures requisite to open the canal between the waters of Lake Michigan and the Illinois river. It authorized said board to survey and locate the route of the canal and cause maps thereof to be made; to recommend plans for the construction and completion of the canal; to procure estimates of the probable cost thereof, and make a report of their proceedings to the next general assembly.

Pursuant to said act, Post and Paul were employed by said commissioners, during the years 1823 and 1824, and pursuant to such employment, explored the territory, surveyed and located the route of said canal, and prepared a map and profile thereof.

On November 16, 1824, the governor of the State of Illinois, in his message, informed the general assembly that the commissioners would make a report, which would enable it to understand in what manner the work of opening the canal could best be accomplished. (Abstract p. 27.)

On November 20, 1824, a memorial was presented to the house of representatives, soliciting congress for a grant of land of the depth of one section on each side of the canal proposed to be opened between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river. (Record p. 19.) This memorial was subsequently amended and adopted by both the house and the senate.

It will hardly be claimed that when this memorial was adopted in 1824, that the State had in view any canal other than the one contemplated by the act of 1822. It is apparent that at an early date the general assembly foresaw that the contemplated canal could not be constructed without congressional aid, and the memorial of 1824 was adopted pursuant to such conclusion.

On January 8, 1825, the report of the canal commissioners was taken up by the house and referred to its committee on internal improvements. This report, as shown by the record, was printed in pamphlet form. No copy of this report or any record thereof is now extant.

On January 10, 1825, a resolution was adopted by the house, directing the governor to forward to the president of the United States and our members in congress a copy of the canal commissioners' report, with maps thereto annexed. This resolution was afterwards concurred in by the senate. (Record p. 42.)

On January 17, 1825, the general assembly passed an act, incorporating the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company. This act required the corporation to commence the construction of a canal connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, and to proceed with the work as rapidly as possible. It empowered the corporation to operate said canal for a period of fifty years, and fixed the maximum rates of toll to be charged. It provided that after the expiration of fifty years the State should have the right to purchase the canal upon certain terms therein specified.

This act continued in force for the period of about one year. The corporation was unable to dispose of its capital stock, and on January 13, 1826, returned its charter to the general assembly, with a communication which closed as follows: "From the information which has been received, it is "not believed that the stock could have been disposed of "during the past year; nor is it believed that it can be dis-"posed of for several years to come, unless Congress will "make a donation of land; but with a reasonable grant, the "directors are of opinion the stock would be subscribed and "the canal promptly executed by the capitalists of the At"lantic States. Presuming that the object the general as-"sembly had in view in incorporating a company was to have "the work immediately undertaken, and not believing that "this can be done without a donation of land, which it is "thought Congress would be more willing to make to the "State than to the company * * * the president and di-"rectors respectfully return their charter to the hands from "whence they received it *."

On January 20, 1826, the general assembly repealed the act incorporating the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company. Section 2 of the repealing act was as follows: "That it shall "be the duty of the governor of this State to endeavor to as-"certain the best terms on which loans can be obtained on "behalf of the State, for the purpose of constructing a canal "from Lake Michigan to the Illinois river, and report the "same to the general assembly, at their next session." (Record p. 21.)

The memorial adopted by the general assembly in January, 1826, was in part as follows:

"At their present session, your memorialists have re-"pealed the charter and their only hope of soon beginning "the work depends upon the liberality of your honorable "body. Your memorialists have caused the route to be ex-"plored and estimates to be made of the probable expenses "of the work, from which it appears that the cost of con-"structing the canal will not be less than $600,000, and may "possibly amount to $700,000. To the end, therefore, that "your memorialists may be enabled to commence and com-"plete this great and useful work, we pray your honorable "body to grant to this State the respective townships of land "through which the contemplated canal may pass." (Record p. 20.)

The contention that this memorial contemplated a different canal from the one provided for by the act of 1822, is refuted by the very language of the memorial itself.

On December 5, 1826, the governor of the State of Illinois, in his message to the general assembly, used the following language:

"In the fulfillment of the duty imposed by the legislat-"ure, the executive has endeavored to ascertain the terms on "which a loan could be procured by the State, for the pur-"pose of constructing a canal from Lake Michigan to the "Illinois river * * * . From the best information, how-"ever which has been received, it is confidently believed that "if Congress should make a liberal grant of land there will be "no difficulty on the part of the State in obtaining a loan "at six per cent per annum. Considering the favorable man-"ner in which our application for a grant of land was received "by Congress at its last session, would it not be wise in the "legislature to adopt, at its present session, appropriate "measures to commence this great work of improvement, "predicated on the liberal grant of land by Congress previous "to the meeting of the next general assembly?" (Record p. 21.)

This message was delivered some three months before the passage of the act of 1827. It shows that the object of the memorial was to procure a grant of land to aid in the construction of the canal contemplated by the act of 1822. It recommends that the State immediately begin the work of constructing the canal, predicated upon a liberal grant of land by Congress in accordance with the prayer of said memorial.

The reasonable conclusion is, that the act of Congress of March 2, 1827, was passed, in compliance with said memorial, to aid the State in constructing the canal provided for by the act of 1822; that these two acts must be taken together; that they have reference to one and the same canal and that the act, of 1827, was intended as an assisting or an enabling act.

The act of 1822, by its title, authorizes the State to open a canal through the public lands connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan. The act of 1827 grants a quantity of land to the State for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal. The act of 1822 authorizes the State to survey and mark through the public lands the route of a canal. The act of 1827 confers no such authority. If the grant of 1822 is not in force, the State has absolutely no title to the bed of the canal, through the even sections reserved by the United States under the act of 1827. The act of 1822 provides that a map of the route of the canal be returned to the treasury department. The act of 1827 does not. The Thompson map was returned by the State in 1829, and accepted by the government under the act of 1822. No other act required, or contemplated the return of a map of the route of the canal.

The act of 1827 pre-supposes a right to construct a canal across the public lands. Its provisions and language clearly indicate that its object and intent was to aid the State in constructing a canal theretofore authorized and provided for. The only act of Congress which authorized the State to construct such canal across the public lands was that of 1822.

In the case of Wheeler vs. City of Chicago, 68 Fed. Rep., pp. 527, 528, Judge Allen, in construing these two acts of Congress, says:

"Under my view of the case these grants—that of 1822, "authorizing the State to survey through the public lands "a route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the "southern bend of Lake Michigan, granting ninety feet on "each side of the canal to the State, and the grant of 1827 to "the State, of a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sec- "tions in width on each side of said canal, to aid said State "in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois river "with those of Lake Michigan—must be taken together. * "* *. The last was a clear recognition by Congress of the "continuing force of the first one, and extended the time for "the commencement of the work on the canal for five years "from March, 1827, and its completion for twenty years from "that date * * *. Under the congressional grant of 1822 "the strip of land in dispute became vested in the State of Il- "linois at once. A legislative grant operates as a law as well as "for the transfer of the property, and has such force as the in- "tent of the legislature requires. I have no doubt that the title "vested in the State at once; that these conditions with ref- "erence to commencing the work and the completion of the "work were conditions subsequent, and not as claimed by "plaintiff's counsel, conditions precedent * * *. The act "of 1827 clearly extended the time for the commencment of "the work until 1832—that is my understanding—and its "completion until 1847. In 1829, it is shown in the evidence, "that Governor Edwards forwarded to the department at "Washington a copy of the survey and location of the canal. "That was within two years after this act of 1827 was passed "and there never having been a forfeiture the grants were in "full force and effect and the State had title certainly to this "strip of land, for I understand this is a part of the ninety "feet."

There is no question but that the State complied with all the requirements of the act of 1827.

Under these decisions and the evidence in this case it must be held:

First. "That the act of Congress of March 2, "1827, is an assisting or enabling act to the act of 1822, and "was intended to assist the State of Illinois in constructing "the canal mentioned in the act of 1822 and enable the State "to build and pay for the same."

"Second. That the object and intention of the act of "Congress of March 2, 1827, was to aid the State of Illinois "to build and open the canal referred to in the act of March "30, 1822, and to give to said State further time to construct "and complete said canal."

"Third. That no act of the legislature of the State of "Illinois was necessary to be passed, accepting specifically the grant of land made to the State by the act of Congress "of March 30, 1822, but that the act of the legislature of the "State of Illinois of February 14, 1823, and the survey and "marking of the route of said canal by surveyors employed "by the State, together with the other evidence in the case, "constitute, in law an acceptance by the State of the grant "of lands made by the act of Congress of March 30, 1822."

"Fourth. That under the evidence in this case the State "of Illinois accepted the grant made by the act of Congress "of March 30, 1822."

"Fifth. That the State of Illinois accepted the grants "of land made by both the acts of Congress of March 30, "1822, and March 2, 1827."

"Sixth. That the said act of Congress of March 30, 1822,

"and the act of Congress of March 2, 1827, entitled, 'An act
" 'to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for the " 'purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the waters " 'of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan,' must be "taken together as referring to one and the same canal."

VI.

LAND GRANTS SHOULD BE CONSTRUED LIBERALLY, SO AS TO CARRY OUT AS FULLY AS POSSIBLE THE INTENTION OF CONGRESS.

The rule that grants of this character, like transfers between individuals, are to be construed strictly against the grantee, no longer prevails.

In Vol. 9, Am. & Eng. Ency., p. 57 (end of note 3), the author, after an exhaustive review of the decisions upon this subject, says:

"On the whole, the doctrine of the strict construction "of land grants would seem for the time, at least, not to be "favored."

The rule now prevailing is, that a legislative grant operates as a law as well as a transfer of property, and should be given such force as the intent of the Legislature requires.

In the case of Railway vs. Railway, 97 U. S., 497, the Court, per Justice Field, say:

"It is always to be borne in mind, in construing a con- "gressional grant, that the act by which it is made is a law "as well as a conveyance, and such effect must be given to it "as will carry out the intent of Congress. The intent should "not be defeated by applying to the grant the rules of the "common law, which are properly applicable only to trans- "fers between private parties * * *. But the rules of the "common law must yield in this, as in all other cases, to the "legislative will. As to the intent of Congress in the grant "to the plaintiff there can be no reasonable doubt. It was "to aid in the construction of the road by a gift of lands "along its route, without reservation of rights except such as

"were specifically mentioned, and the location of the route "being left within certain general limits to the action of the "plaintiff. When the location was made and the sections "granted ascertained, the title of the plaintiff took effect by "relation as to the date of the act, except as to the reserva- "tions mentioned; the act having the same operation upon "the sections as if they had been specifically described in it."

In the case of Railroad vs. Barney, 113 U. S., 625, the Court say:

"The solution of these questions depends, of course, "upon the construction given to the acts making the grants; "and they are to receive such a construction as will carry "out the intent of Congress, however difficult it might be to "give full effect to the language used if the grants were by "instruments of private conveyance. To ascertain that in- "tent, we must look to the condition of the country when "the acts were passed, as well as to the purpose declared on "their face, and read all parts of them together."

In the case of Railroad vs. Forsythe, 159 U. S., 159, the Court, per Justice Brewer, say:

"But it is a rule of equal if not higher significance, that "every act of Congress making a grant is to be treated both "as a law and a grant, and the intent of Congress, when ascer- "tained, is to control in the interpretation of the law * * . "They are to receive such a construction as will carry out "the intent of Congress, however difficult it might be to give "full effect to the language used if the grants were by instru- "ments of private conveyance. To ascertain that intent, we "must look to the condition of the country when the acts "were passed, as well as to the purpose declared on their "face, and read all parts of them together."

If the rules of construction announced in the above cases be applied to the acts of 1822 and 1827, in the light of the record in this case, the conclusion, it seems to us, must necessarily be that the State has absolute title to the ninety-foot strip.

VII.

WHEN THE NORTHWEST QUARTER OF SECTION TEN WAS ENTERED AND PURCHASED BY APPELLEES' GRANTORS IN 1835, THEY TOOK THE SAME SUBJECT TO THE GRANTS PREVIOUSLY MADE BY THE ACTS OF 1822 AND 1827.

The route of the canal, as surveyed by Post and Paul in the year 1824, extended through the northwest quarter of said section 10.

As before shown the Thompson map was returned to the treasury department of the United States in the year 1829.

The route of the canal, as delineated upon the Thompson map, extended through the northwest quarter of said section 10. The northwest quarter of said section 10 was not purchased from the government and entered until the year 1835—six years after the return of the Thompson map. (Record p. 11.) Upon the return of the Thompson map in the year 1829, the route of the canal became definitely fixed. The location of the ninety-foot strip became capable of identification and certain, and the title of the State specifically attached to it and related back to the date of the act.

When the land was entered by appellees' grantors in the year 1835, they were chargeable with notice, not only of the acts of 1822 and 1827, but with notice of the definite location of the route of the canal and the ninety-foot strip on each side thereof. The fact that the land within the route of the canal and the ninety-foot strip was not withdrawn from market by the land department, in no sense affected such notice.

In the case of Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 366, the Court say:

"The inquiry then arises, when is the route of the road "to be considered as definitely fixed, so that the grant at- "taches to the adjoining sections. The complainant below "contends that the route is definitely fixed, within the mean- "ing of the act of Congress, when the company files with the "secretary of the interior a map of its lines, approved by its "directors, designating the route of the proposed road. On "the other hand, the defendant * contends that the route "cannot be deemed definitely fixed, so that the grant at- "taches to any particular sections and cuts off the right of "entry thereof, until the lands are withdrawn from market "by order of the secretary of the interior and notice of the "order of withdrawal is communicated to the local land of- "ficers in the districts in which the lands are situated. We "are of opinion that the position of the complainant is the "correct one. * * * When a route is adopted by the com- "pany and the map designating it is filed with the secretary "of the interior and accepted by that officer, the route is "established; it is, in the language of the act, definitely fixed "and cannot be the subject of future change so as to affect "the grant, except upon legislative consent. * * * It "then becomes the duty of the secretary to withdraw the "lands granted from market. But if he should neglect this "duty, the neglect would not impair the rights of the com- "pany, however prejudicial it might prove to others. Its "rights are not made dependent upon the issue of the secre- "tary's order or upon notice of the withdrawal being given "to the land officers."

In the case of Walden vs. Knevals, 114 U. S., 167, the Court quotes extensively from the above opinion and confirms the doctrine therein announced.

Before the route of the canal was definitely fixed all persons dealing with the public lands were chargeable with notice of the floating title of the State to a ninety-foot strip, and with notice that upon the location of the route of the canal that such title would attach to ninety feet of land on each side thereof.

The case of Railroad vs. Baldwin, 103 U. S., 426, is directly in point and in our opinion, decisive of this case.

That was an action by Baldwin to recover of the railroad company damages for entering upon his land in Nebraska and appropriating in the construction of its road a strip two hundred feet in width and two hundred rods in length. The company claimed the right of way over the land of this width under an act of Congress entitled, "An act for a grant of land to the State of Kansas to aid in the construction of the Northern Kansas Railroad and Telegraph."

By section 1 of the act there is granted to the State of Kansas * * * to construct and operate a railroad * * every alternate section of land designated by odd numbers for ten sections in width on each side of the road to the point of intersection.

By section 6 it is provided, "That the right of way through the public lands be and the same is hereby granted to said St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Company, its successors and assigns, for the construction of a railroad as proposed and the right is hereby given to said corporation to take from the public lands adjacent to the line of said road, material for the construction thereof. Said way is granted to the said railroad to the extent of one hundred feet in width on each side of said road where it may pass through the public domain. Also all necessary ground for station buildings, work shops, depots, machine shops, switches, side-tracks, turn-tables and water station."

When the grant was made by Congress the land claimed by Baldwin was vacant and unoccupied land of the United States. The line of the road over it was not definitely located until October, 1871. He acquired whatever rights he possesses in October, 1869. The defendant contended that the plaintiff took the land subject to its right of way. He contends that the grant of the right of way took effect only from the date at which the company filed its maps designating the route with the secretary of the interior.

This act is, in all material respects, similar to the canal acts in question excepting that the right of way through the public lands for the purpose of constructing a canal was given to the State of Illinois by one act and the donation of land to aid in the construction of the canal was given by a subsequent act of Congress.

This case is stronger for plaintiffs in error than that, for the reason that the defendant in error acquired her title to the land in dispute after the State of Illinois had definitely located the route of the canal and filed the maps thereof with the proper officers of the United States. In that case, as in this, the title of the individual claimant was acquired after the passage of the acts of Congress.

In passing upon that question this Court, by Justice Field, said:

"The right of way for the whole distance of the proposed route was a very important part of the aid given. If the company could be compelled to purchase its way over any section that might be occupied in advance of its location, very serious obstacles would be often imposed to the progress of the road. For any loss of lands by settlement or reservation, other lands are given; but for the loss of the right of way by these means, no compensation is provided, nor could any be given by the substitution of another route.

The uncertainty as to the ultimate location of the line of the road is recognized throughout the act, and where any qualification is intended in the operation of the grant of lands, from this circumstance, it is designated. Had a similar qualification upon the absolute grant of the right of way been intended, it can hardly be doubted that it would have been expressed. The fact that none is expressed is conclusive that none exists.

We see no reason, therefore, for not giving to the words of present grant with respect to the right of way the same construction which we should be compelled to give, according to our repeated decisions, to the grant of lands had no limitation been expressed. We are of the opinion, therefore, that all persons acquiring any portion of the public lands, after the passage of the act in question, took the same subject to the right of way conferred by it for the proposed road."

In the case of Van Wyck vs. Knevals, 106 U. S., 365, the Court say:

"The difficulty in giving full operation to it arises from "the fact that the sections designated as granted are in- "capable of identification until the route of the road is defi- "nitely fixed. When that route is thus established, the grant 'takes effect upon the sections by relation as of the date of "the act of Congress. In that sense we say that the grant is "one in præsenti. It cuts off all claims, other than those "mentioned, to any portion of the lands from the date of the "act, and passes the title as fully as though the sections had "been capable of identification."

In the case of Railway vs. Cook, 163 U. S., 497, the Court, per Chief Justice Fuller, say:

"The grant of the lands and the grant of the right of "way were alike grants in præsenti and stood on the same "footing, so that before definite location, all persons acquir-"ing any portion of the public lands, after the passage of the "act, took the same subject to the right of way for the pro-"posed road."

In the case of Wheeler vs. City of Chicago, 68 Fed. Rep., 528, Judge Allen, in construing the acts of 1822 and 1827, says:

"If I am right, then in 1834, when Welch purchased "from the United States, he was compelled to take notice of "the two public laws referred to and the grants thereunder "to the State, and, of course, could get no title from the "government to the ninety feet on either side of the "canal * * *."

If these decisions are to be followed, the title to the ninety feet in width on the south side of the Illinois and Michigan Canal became vested in the State of Illinois by the act of congress of March 30, 1822, and having remained in the State of Illinois ever since, the plaintiff's grantors acquired no title to that part of the west half of the northwest quarter and that part of the west half of the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 10, in township thirty-three north, range 3 east of the third principal meridian, which lies within said ninety feet, by the entries of said lands made by Henry M. Warnock and Henry L. Brush in the year A. D. 1835, nor did the plaintiff, by mesne conveyances from the said Warnock and the said Brush down to her, acquire any title to or the right to the possession of any part of said ninety feet; and the defendants, as agents of and acting for the State of Illinois, had the lawful right to remove the plaintiff's fence therefrom.

VIII.

THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DOES NOT RUN AGAINST THE STATE.

The fact, that defendants in error had, at the time of the bringing of this suit, been in possession of the land in dispute for more than twenty years, will not give them title as against the State. That the statute of limitations does not apply to the government, has been frequently held by this and other Courts.

In Gibson vs. Cheteau, 13 Wallace, 100, this Court said:

"It declares it to be well settled, that statutes of limitation of a State cannot run against he United States nor affect their grantees until the title has passed from the proprietary sovereignity."

This proposition is supported by numerous decisions of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

In Cartlett vs. The People, et al., 151 Ill., 23, that Court says:

"In the absence of any statutory period of limitation, it is held in this county, that the attorney general may file an information on behalf of the people at any time, and that lapse of time constitutes no bar to the proceeding in conformity to the maxim, nullum tempus occurrit regi. * * It is a familiar doctrine, that the State is not embraced within the statute of limitations unless specially named, and, by analogy, would not fall within the doctrine of estoppel."

In People vs. Brown, 67 Ill., 438, it was said:

"It is a familiar doctrine, that the State is not embraced within the statute of limitations, unless specially named and by analogy, would not fall within the doctrine of estoppel.

Its rights, revenues and property would be a fearful hazard, should this doctrine be applicable to a State. A great and overshadowing public policy of preserving these rights, revenues and property from injury and loss by the negligence of public officers, forbids the application of the doctrine. If it can be applied in this case where a comparatively small amount is involved, it must be applied where millions are involved.

"The doctrine so well settled that no laches can be imputed to the government, and by the same reasoning which excuses it from laches, and on the same grounds, it should not be affected by the negligence or even wilfulness of any of its officials."

While the officers of the State may have been negligent of their duty, in permitting defendants in error to occupy the public land of the State for so long a time, under these decisions, that possession can never ripen into a title as against the State.

This writ of error is prosecuted by the State of Illinois for the purpose of having the title to the ninety-foot strip through the even sections finally settled. It has never been passed upon by this Court. While the property involved in this suit may be and probably is of small value, the principle involved is an important one from a legal and financial standpoint. By the decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois in this case the title of the State to a large quantity of land, and a great many lots, throughout the one hundred-mile length of the canal, in the even sections, has been placed in dispute.

We respectfully submit that under the decisions above cited, the State of Illinois became the owner under the acts of 1822 and 1827 of a strip of land ninety feet wide on each side of the canal, through the even sections, and that the Supreme Court of Illinois erred in finding otherwise.

Respectfully submitted,

HOWARD M. SNAPP,

Attorney for plaintiff in error.

No. 168.

Brief of Counsel

FILED
FEB 28 1901
JAMES H. MCKENNEY
Clerk

Filed Feb. 28, 1901.

Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1900.

No. 168.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH, Plaintiffs in Error, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND GEORGE INGERSOLL, Defendants in Error.	In Error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

Affidavits of Clarence E. Snively, Howard O. Hilton and Homer J. Tice, The Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois; Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, Plaintiffs in Error; Harry Witte and W. T. Keating, and Brief and Argument of Plaintiffs in Error, in opposition to motion of Defendants in Error to dismiss.

HOWARD M. SNAPP,

Attorney and Solicitor in Error.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1900.

No. 168.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiff's in Error,

vs.

EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND
GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

AFFIDAVITS.

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiffs in Error,

vs.

EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND
GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

Clarence E. Snively, Howard O. Hilton and Homer J. Tice, being first duly sworn according to law, depose and say: That they are the "Canal Commissioners" of the State of Illinois, duly appointed under the laws relative to the Illinois and Michigan Canal and as such have charge as agents of said State, of said Illinois and Michigan Canal and the canal lands of the State of Illinois.

That under their supervision and control as such "Canal Commissioners" is the "Illinois and Michigan Canal" and the canal lands owned, possessed and controlled by the State of Illinois, extending from the City of Chicago, in the State of Illinois, to the City of Peru, on the Illinois river, a distance of about one hundred miles, all of which is by the statutes of said State peculiarly within the charge and control of these affiants as such "Canal Commissioners."

That said "Illinois and Michigan Canal" was completed and opened for business about the year 1847, throughout its whole length, and from that time has been under the jurisdiction and control of the State of Illinois.

That on November 13, 1897, plaintiffs in error, Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, were duly constituted agents and employes of the State of Illinois, under these affiants as such "Canal Commissioners," and that on said date said plaintiffs in error, acting solely for and on behalf of the State of Illinois and under and by virtue and direction of these affiants as "Canal Commissioners" removed certain fences erected by the defendants in error in section ten (10), township thirty-three (33), north, range three (3), east of the third principal meridian, LaSalle County, Illinois.

That the land upon which said fences were erected is claimed by the "Canal Commissioners" to be part of the canal lands of the State of Illinois, and that the said State became vested with the title thereto by virtue of certain acts of Congress of March 30, 1822, and March 2, 1827.

That thereupon Emily E. and George Ingersoll, defendants in error herein, brought an action of trespass in the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, against plaintiffs in error herein, to recover damages for the removal of said fences.

That said cause was tried in the said Circuit Court of LaSalle County under a stipulation of facts and oral evidence introduced by the parties, and judgment was entered against the plaintiffs in error for the sum of fifty ($50) dollars, and costs of suit.

These affiants further say, that said stipulation was entered into by the parties to said cause, for the sole and only purpose of making oral proof of the records of the United States and the State of Illinois and the Canal Commissioners and the Recorder's office of LaSalle County, Illinois, unnecessary, and that the matters therein presented were litigated in good faith, about a matter in actual controversy between the parties, to-wit: the title to the land in dispute, and that the judgment of said Circuit Court was not sought with any other design than to adjudge and settle the law relative to the matter in actual controversy between the parties to the record.

Affiants further say, that the appeal from said judgment to the Supreme Court of Illinois, and this writ of error from said Supreme Court of Illinois was, and is, prosecuted by these affiants as agents of the State of Illinois by direction of the Governor thereof, for the sole and only purpose of settling and adjudicating the law relative to the controversy between the parties to the record.

Affiants further say that since this writ of error was perfected the title to other land in possession of the State of Illinois, under the above-mentioned acts of Congress, some of it under lease to various parties, has been disputed and payment of rent refused.

Affiants further say: That as "Canal Commissioners" they have the exclusive control and custody of the canal funds of the State of Illinois, and the distribution thereof, and that they have not paid nor authorized any one to pay for them, the judgment of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County against the plaintiffs in error, or the interest or costs thereon, and that if such judgment, interest and costs has been paid to the defendants in error herein, or their attorney, or any person acting for them, or paid to or deposited with the Clerk of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, such payment or deposit was made without the knowledge or consent or authority of the Canal Commissioners, and in fraud of the property rights and interests of the State of Illinois.

Affiants further say: That they have no knowledge except that obtained from Exhibit "B" to Robert Carr's affidavit filed herein, of the conveyance of the property in dispute by defendants in error to Lorenzo Leland, and that if such a conveyance has in fact been made it was made without the knowledge or procurement of these affiants, and was not made for the purpose of vesting the title to said land in the State of Illinois, in settlement of this litigation. That Lorenzo Leland is not a party to the record, nor connected in any way with the State of Illinois, and that such conveyance, made pendente lite is hostile to the interests of the State of Illinois and in fraud thereof.

Affiants further say: That on December 5, 1899, the Canal Commissioners made a lease to The Ottawa Development Company, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A." That said lease covers only about one-third of the land involved in this suit, and was not made by these affiants for the purpose of settling or in any way affecting this litigation.

Affiants further say: That the title of The Sanitary District of Chicago to the land along the east bank of the Illinois and Michigan Canal through the City of Joliet can be in no way affected by the decision of this case. The land mentioned by Isham Randolph as being necessary to the development of water power at Joliet by said Sanitary District lies wholly within section sixteen (16) granted to the State of Illinois for the use of schools by an act of Congress, April 18, 1818, and was never a part of the canal lands of said State.

CLARENCE E. SNIVELY,
HOWARD O. HILTON,
HOMER J. TICE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of February, A. D. 1901.

ERASTUS W. WILLARD,
[Notarial Seal] Notary Public.

EXHIBIT A.

THIS INDENTURE, made and entered into this fifth (5th) day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine (1899), between THE CANAL COMMISSIONERS OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS, of the first part, and the OTTAWA DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION, of Ottawa, Illinois, of the second part.

WITNESSETH, that the said party of the first part, for the consideration hereinafter mentioned, agrees to lease unto the said party of the second part, for the term of twenty (20) years, that is, from the fifth (5th) day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine (1899), until the fifth (5th) day of December in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and nineteen (1919), all the right the State of Illinois possesses to that portion of the reserved ninety (90) foot strip lying on the towpath side of the canal, in section ten (10) and eleven (11), in township thirty-three (33), north range three (3), east, described as follows, viz: the outer or southerly forty (40) feet of the reserved ninety (90) foot strip in said section eleven (11), commencing one hundred and twenty (120) feet west of the northeast corner of block twenty-one (21) in the State's addition to Ottawa in the City of Ottawa, Illinois, running thence west a distance of five hundred (500) feet, and beginning from this point the outer thirty (30) feet of the reserved ninety (90) foot strip in said section eleven (11), running thence west and southwest a distance of about eighteen hundred (1800) feet; and the outer or southerly thirty (30) feet of said ninety (90) foot strip in said section ten (10), beginning on the east line of said section ten (10) and running thence west and southwest to the west line of said section 10.

And the said party of the second part, for the use and occupation of said land, does hereby covenant and agree to and with the said party of the first part, that it will pay to the said party of the first part, as rent, the sum of twelve hundred ($1,200.00) dollars, payable in advance.

It is further covenanted and agreed on the part of said party of the second part, that it will not re-let said tract of land, or any part thereof, without the consent, in writing, of the said party of the first part.

It is further agreed, that the said party of the second part shall erect no buildings, wharves, or other structures, that will in any manner obstruct the free navigation of the canal or a passage for a towpath or other canal purposes.

AND IT IS FURTHER EXPRESSLY AGREED BY AND BETWEEN THE SAID PARTIES, that the party of the first part shall have the right at any time and at all times to enter upon the premises hereby leased and use the whole or any part thereof, for the purpose of enlarging the canal, or repairing or changing the banks of the same, upon the condition that the rents shall be proportionately abated for the time and that part of the premises so re-taken and used.

IT IS FURTHER COVENANTED AND AGREED BETWEEN THE SAID PARTIES, that in case of non-payment of rent, or any part thereof, as the same falls due, according to the terms of this lease, or the violation by the party of the second part of any of the above covenants, the said party of the first part, by its agents or attorney, shall possess the right to declare this lease void, to enter and distrain any property belonging to the said party of the second part, whether the same be exempt from execution and distress by law or not, for such rent, and a lien on said property is hereby created in favor of the said party of the first part, for said rent, and the party of the second part shall surrender said premises to said party of the first part without unnecessary delay or resort to litigation.

IT IS FURTHER COVENANTED AND AGREED BETWEEN SAID PARTIES, that the said party of the second part, shall occupy the said premises for the purpose of constructing and operating, or causing to be constructed or operated, a siding or switch from the main line of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company on Walnut street in said City of Ottawa, for the transportation of freights, by the said Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company to and from manufacturing industries located and to be located on the land of said second party, at or near the western limits of said City of Ottawa, and for no other purpose, and by no other persons or corporations whatsoever.

For the full and faithful performance of the covenants and stipulations herein contained, to be performed on the part of the party of the second part, the said party of the second part binds itself, its successors, assigns and legal representatives, and are firmly bound by these presents.

In Testimony Whereof, the said parties have hereunto set their hands and seals, the day and year first above written.

THE CANAL COMMISSIONERS,

[Seal] By C. E. SNIVELY, President.

HOWARD O. HILTON, Secretary.

OTTAWA DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION,

[Seal] AL. F. SCHOCH, Prest. [Seal]

GEO. M. TRIMBLE, Secy. [Seal]

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiffs in Error,
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, LaSalle County, } ss.

Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, being first duly sworn, on oath say, that they are the plaintiffs in error in the above entitled cause. That on November 13, 1897, they were duly constituted agents and employes of the State of Illinois, under the Canal Commissioners of said State, and that on said date these affiants, acting for and on behalf of the State of Illinois, and under and by virtue of the authority and direction of the Canal Commissioners, removed certain fences erected by the defendants in error in section ten (10), township thirty-three (33) north, range three (3), east of the third principal meridian, LaSalle County, Illinois. That defendants in error brought suit against, and recovered, a judgment against these affiants in the Circuit Court of said LaSalle County for removing said fences, which judgment was affirmed by the Supreme Court of Illinois, from which judgment of the State of Illinois the above writ of error to this Court was prosecuted, and is now pending and undisposed of.

Affiants further say, that they or neither of them have paid or authorized any one to pay for them, the judgment of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County above mentioned, or the interest or costs thereon, and that if the amount of said judgment, interest and costs has been paid to the defendants in error herein, or their attorneys, or any person acting for them, or paid to, or deposited with, the Clerk of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, such payment was made without the knowledge, consent or authority of these affiants.

FRANK X. WERLING,
EUGENE SMITH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of February, A. D. 1901.

MAY E. DOLE,
Notary Public.

[Notarial Seal]

FRANK X. WERLING AND EUGENE SMITH,
Complainants in Error,
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL AND GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, County of LaSalle, } ss.

Harry Witte, being first duly sworn according to law, on his oath deposes and says that he is the Deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, and that upon the 25th day of January, 1901, William H. Beebe deposited with the Clerk of the said Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, the full amount of the judgment, interest and costs awarded and adjudged to the said defendants in error by the judgment of the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, Illinois, in the case herein, entitled, Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll vs. Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith.

Affiant further says that the amount of said judgment, interest and costs, amounted to $64.40, and the same was paid to the Circuit Clerk as above stated, by the said William H. Beebe, and not by Robert Carr.

Affiant further says that at the time of the said payment by the said Beebe, the following endorsement was made upon the judgment docket in said cause, to-wit: "January 25, 1901. Received of W. H. Beebe, agent, the sum of $64.40, being in full of judgment, interest and costs. Henry Phillips, Clerk."

HARRY R. WITTE. [Seal]

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of Feby., A. D. 1901.

[Notarial Seal] F. A. HATHWAY, County Clerk.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
County of Cook, } ss.

William T. Keating, being first duly sworn, on oath says that he is a resident of Cook County, State of Illinois, and was for nine years, and is now, an employe of the Sanitary District of Chicago. Affiant further says that he is personally acquainted with William H. Beebe, and that the said William H. Beebe was on the 23d and 25th day of January, A. D. 1901, and has been for the past three years, and is now, an employe in the law department of Sanitary District of Chicago.

W. T. KEATING.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of February, A. D. 1901.

K. EBERTH,
Notary Public.

[Notarial Seal]

BRIEF.

The motion to dismiss is based upon these three propositions:

First. That there is no existing actual controversy between the parties for the reason that since the trial in the Circuit Court of LaSalle County, the controversy has been adjusted, by the grantee of defendants in error (plaintiffs below) recognizing the title of the State of Illinois to the land in controversy, and that the State has obtained all it can expect by a decision of this case in its favor.

Second. That the judgment of the Circuit Court in favor of the defendants in error (plaintiffs below) has been satisfied by payment.

Third. That this writ of error is being prosecuted by the Canal Commissioners for the purpose of obtaining the opinion of the Court upon a question of law, in which property to a large amount is involved, and in which the Canal Commissioners have an interest opposed to that of others not parties to the suit, who had no knowledge of it, and no opportunity of being heard in defense of their rights.

For convenience, the above propositions will be discussed in the order set out in the motion to dismiss.

I.

THAT THERE IS NO EXISTING CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THE PARTIES, BECAUSE THE GRANTEE OF DEFENDANTS IN ERROR, HAS RECOGNIZED THE TITLE OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS TO THE LAND IN CONTROVERSY, SINCE THE TRIAL IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, AND THE STATE HAS OBTAINED ALL THAT IT CAN EXPECT BY A DECISION OF THIS COURT.

We think this proposition may properly be subdivided into two distinct admissions, viz:

First. That there was an existing actual controversy between the parties herein, over the title to the land in suit, until after the trial in the Circuit Court.

Second. That there is still a real, existing dispute between the parties, over the title to the land in suit, unless the record shows affirmatively that the title of the State has been recognized, and that the State has obtained all that it could expect to obtain by the judgment of this Court in its favor.

FIRST.

The first admission (that there was at first a real controversy between the parties), effectually disposes of the argument, based upon the case of Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 225, "that this was from the beginning an attempt by a mere colorable dispute to obtain the opinion of the Court upon a question of law when there is no substantial controversy between those who appear as adverse parties to the suit;" and that phase of the question will be dropped.

SECOND.

Does the record show affirmatively that the title of the State of Illinois has been recognized, and that it has obtained all it can expect by a decision of this Court?

By reference to section 4, page 11, of the record, the Court will see that the State claimed title to 90 feet of land south of the canal across that part of section 10, marked "E. E. Ingersoll" as shown on the map at page 10 of the record. The Ingersolls claimed that the State has title to only the north 17 of that 90-foot strip, which is used as a towpath. The controversy, therefore, was over the title to a strip of land 73 feet wide lying 17 feet from the canal bed.

From a lease attached to the Canal Commissioners' affidavit, it appears that on December 5, 1899, The Canal Commissioners leased to the Ottawa Development Company, for a term of twenty years all the right of the State of Illinois to the SOUTHERLY 30 FEET of the 73 feet in controversy.

On January 20, 1900, Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, defendants in error, conveyed to Lorenzo Leland, for a consideration of $500.00, the entire 73 feet in controversy.

(Defendant's affidavits, p. 14.)

Counsel for defendants in error present no argument on this question beyond the bare statement that, by the deed of the Ingersolls to Leland, and the lease of the Canal Commissioners to the Ottawa Development Company, "The State has succeeded in having its title recognized by grantee of defendants in error," and "The Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois have obtained all they could recover in this case by judgment of this Court in their favor." (Argument, p. 2.)

That there is absolutely no merit in this position, is clear, when we consider what the relative positions of the parties will be if this writ of error should be dismissed.

It must be remembered that the judgment of the Circuit Court, affirmed by the Supreme Court of Illinois, finds the title of the entire 73 feet in the Ingersolls. A dismissal of this case by this Court will confirm that title, wipe out the claim of the State, and make the Ingersoll deed to Leland good against the world, unless the record shows such a relationship between the parties that the Leland title will enure to the State.

The only intimation in the record of such a relationship is found in the affidavit of Robert Carr (p. 10), who swears that Leland holds the title to the property of the Ottawa Development Company as trustee.

This statement of Carr's (together with his second affidavit as we will hereafter show), seems entitled to little credit, when we consider with what recklessness he swears (p. 11) that the lease of the Canal Commissioners to the Ottawa Development Company was for the property described in the deed from the Ingersolls to Leland, the lease itself being one of the public records of the State, open to the inspection of all, and a certified copy of which is obtainable at the office of the Canal Commissioners on request.

But, assume that the Ingersoll deed to Leland is, in effect, a conveyance to the Ottawa Development Company (a lessee of the State, to 30 feet only of the 73 feet in suit), and what then is the situation? If this writ of error is dismissed the title to the 43 feet of land in controversy, not included in the Canal Commissioners' lease, will be at once confirmed, either in Leland or the Ottawa Development Company, and the title of the State, instead of being recognized, will be forever lost, because, the estoppel of the lessee to deny the landlords' title cannot be extended to land not included in the lease.

Taylor's Landlord and Tenant, 8th Ed., Sec. 707.

Moreover, the title to the 30 feet leased by the Canal Commissioners will vest at once in the Development Company by operation of law. This position is fully sustained in Re Corrigan v. Chicago, 144 Illinois, 546, where the Supreme Court of Illinois says:

"Barclay v. Pickels, 38 Mo., 142, was an action by the "lessor to recover rent reserved in a written lease The de- "fendant offered to prove, that after the making of the lease, "and before the rent sued for occurred, the City of St. Louis "had, on a proceeding instituted in the opening of Choteau "avenue, in said city, etc., taken the leased property for the "opening of said street, and that the title to the property "had therefore become vested in the city, etc., which was re- "jected. The Court held the testimony admissable and say: " 'As a general rule, whenever the estate which the lessor " 'had at the time of making the lease is defeated or deter- " 'mined, the lease is extinguishable with it. If, therefore, a " 'lot of land, or other premises, under lease, is required to " 'be taken for city, or other public improvements, the lease, " 'upon confirmation of the report of the commissioners con- " 'demning the property, becomes void. When the lessor " 'ceases to have any interest in the property the rent be- " 'comes annihilated.' Citing Taylor's Landlord and Ten- "ant, Sec. 519. See S. & D. Ry. Co. v. Schmede, supra; "Carthburt v. Keehn, 3 Whart., 357.

"In these cases, the discharge of the lessee from liabil- "ity is placed upon the ground that the landlord's title is ab"solutely extinguished in the leased property, and he can "not, therefore, enforce the contract for the payment of rent "after its extinguishment. 'The tenant's covenant is only "'to pay a certain sum as rent,' says Gray, C. J., in Samp-"son v. Clarkson, 113 Mass., 348; and, in the words of Dod-"ridge, in 3 Bulst., 274, 'if it be so that the estate is ended, "'the contract for the rent will end also, this being but quid "'pro, quo, sic, the rent of the land.' The doctrine is well "established, that although the lessee can not show that his "lessor had no title to the premises when the tenancy began, "he may show that he had a limited estate only, which was "determined by its own limitations before the cause of ac-"tion accrued, as where he held the estate for the life of an-"other, or the like, which expired during the term (Samp-"son v. Clarkson, supra; Wells v. Mason, 4 Scam., 84; St. "John v. Quitzow, 72 Ill., 334); or that he had sold and con-"veyed the land, or has been evicted by title paramount, or "that his title has been sold under execution and conveyed "Franklin v. Palmer, 50 Ill., 202; Supervisors v. Herrington, "id 232; Tilghman v. Little, 13 id. 239; Taylor's Landlord "and Tenant (8th Ed.), Sec. 708, and Notes.

"This rule applies whether the action be for recovery of "the premises, or for rent accrued after the extinguishment "of the landlord's title (Taylor's Landlord and Tenant, Sec. "627-708, and cases cited); and whether the estoppel sought "to be set up arises in pias, or by deed."

It necessarily follows from these decisions, that the title of the State to the entire 73 feet of land, will be as effectually wiped out by the dismissal of this suit as it could be by the affirmance of the judgment of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

II.

HAS THE JUDGMENT OF THE CIRCUIT COURTS AGAINST PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR BEEN SATISFIED BY PAYMENT?

It would be difficult to imagine two propositions more inconsistent than those now before the Court. There would be nothing unusual in the settlement of a suit, by plaintiff surrendering the land in dispute to the defendant, or the defendant paying the judgment and surrendering the land to the plaintiff, but to have both of these contradictory facts set up and relied upon at the same time as is here done, ought to be proof conclusive in the absence of all else, that the motion to dismiss is not made in the utmost good faith. Counsel may well be excused for ignoring this point in his brief.

To substantiate their claim of payment of the judgment, defendants file the affidavit of Robert Carr, who swears, that on January 25, 1901, "he paid into and deposited with the Clerk of the Circuit Court the full amount of the judgment, interest and costs awarded to the plaintiffs" (defendants in error). The affidavit is sworn to before William H. Beebe, before whom Carr made an affidavit on January 23. It does not appear from this affidavit for whom Carr claimed to be acting. It would be quite reasonable, however, to suppose that he was still in the employment of the defendants in error or the Sanitary District of Chicago, for whom he was acting only two days previous, as appears from his own affidavit of January 23. If he had been acting for the plaintiffs in error or the Canal Commissioners he would surely have so stated in his affidavit, and as it seems quite unlikely that defendants in error should employ a stranger to pay a judgment in their favor, we must conclude that he was acting (if at all) for the Sanitary District of Chicago.

The Canal Commissioners who have entire charge of the canal funds of, and who prosecute this suit for, the State, and plaintiffs in error, all swear that they have never paid or authorized any one to pay this judgment for them, and that its pretended payment is a fraud on the rights of the State of Illinois. There can be no doubt of this, when the facts, as they appear from the record, are considered.

Harry Witty, Deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court of La-Salle County, swears that the amount of the judgment and costs was paid to the Circuit Clerk by WILLIAM H. BEEBE AND NOT BY ROBERT CARR, and that the following endorsement was made upon the judgment docket: "January 25, 1901, Received of W. H. BEEBE, AGENT, the sum of $64.40, being in full of judgment, interest and costs, Henry Phillips Clerk." By the affidavit of W. H. Keating, an employe of the Sanitary District of Chicago, it appears that Beebe has been for years, and was on the 23rd and 25th of January, an employe in the law department of said Sanitary District.

It therefore appears that the amount of the judgment was not deposited with the Clerk by Robert Carr as he swears, but was deposited by William H. Beebe, the notary public who administered the oath to Carr that he (Carr) made the deposit. It is also clear that the deposit was made for the Sanitary District of Chicago, an entire stranger to the record, and was not made by plaintiffs in error, the Canal Commissioners, or any one authorized by them. It would be hard to conceive of a more flagrant case of fraud, as it is defined in Am. and Eng. Ency. of Law, Vol. 8, 635, "all deceitful practices in depriving or endeavoring to deprive another of his known right, by means of some artful device or plan, contrary to the plain rules of common honesty, is fraud."

Moreover, it has been held by the Supreme Court of Illinois in Seymour v. Haines, 104 Ill., 562, that a judgment can not be satisfied by payment to the Clerk. In that case the Court, passing on that question, says: "Appellee contends "that payment to the Clerk was a satisfaction of this judg- "ment. To this we can not assent. At common law the "Clerk is not a collecting officer, nor has he been made such "by statutory enactment. The sheriff is, and a judgment "may be paid to him when he holds a fi. fa. and payment to "the sheriff will operate as a satisfaction, and in such case he "returns the writ indorsed satisfied, and the filing of the "writ becomes evidence of record of the satisfaction of the "judgment; or a judgment may be satisfied by payment to "the plaintiff or to his attorney of record, and the Clerk, on "the presentation to him of the satisfaction price, or a prop- "er receipt in full, is authorized to enter satisfaction in the "judgment docket. But we find no authority at common "law to support the position that payment to the Clerk op- "erated as satisfaction of the judgment. Nor is anything "found in our statute authorizing the Clerk of the Circuit "Court to receive money in satisfaction of a judgment. The "Clerk not being a collecting officer, the payment of the "money to him did not operate to satisfy the judgment, and "his entry of satisfaction on the judgment docket was un- "authorized and void."

It would be superfluous to comment on this transaction. The facts stand out like the handwriting on the wall, and speak for themselves. To constitute a payment, money or some other valuable thing must be delivered by the debtor to the creditor for the purpose of extinguishing the debt. Here every element of fact and intention necessary to constitute a payment are absent. Instead we have only a deliberate fraud. It would be as sensible to contend that a counterfeit or forgery is genuine, because cleverly executed, as to argue that this is a payment and satisfaction.

III

THAT THIS WRIT OF ERROR IS BEING PROSECUTED FOR THE PURPOSE OF OBTAINING THE OPINION OF THE COURT UPON A QUESTION OF LAW, IN WHICH PROPERTY TO A LARGE AMOUNT IS INVOLVED, AND IN WHICH THE CANAL COMMISSIONERS HAVE AN INTEREST OPPOSED TO THAT OF OTHERS NOT PARTIES TO THE SUIT, WHO HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF IT, AND NO OPPORTUNITY OF BEING HEARD IN DEFENSE OF THEIR RIGHTS.

In the case of Little v Bowers, 134 U. S., 547, and other cases cited by opposing counsel, this Court has announced this doctrine, "THAT WHERE THERE IS NO ACTUAL CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THE PARTIES, a case will be dismissed, where it appears that the suit was instituted to procure the opinion of the Court on a question of law in the decision of which the parties had a common interest, opposed to that of others, who were not parties of the suit." We can find no decision, and counsel has cited none, where a case has been dismissed, if there was an actual controversy between the parties, even if the case did involve the decision of a question of law in which others might be interested. If this was to be the doctrine of the Courts, then in every case involving the construction of land grants, every person whose title might be affected by the decision, would be a necessary party whether interested in the particular land in suit or not. The case of Railroad Co. v. Baldwin, 103 U. S., 426, is directly in point. That was an action by Baldwin to recover damages for entering upon and appropriating a strip of land two hundred feet in width and two hundred rods in length (about the amount of land in dispute in this case). The question involved the construction of a congressional land grant. It does not appear from the record that a motion to dismiss was made, on the ground that others should have been made parties. This Court did not hesitate, however, to construe the grant under which the Railroad claimed title, though it must have been apparent to the Court, that the decision would necessarily affect the title to many thousand acres of land, the grant extending entirely across the State of Kansas.

The decisions cited by counsel can, in no event, have any bearing on this case, for the reason that it is clear from the record, that there was from the beginning, and is now, an actual controversy between the parties over the title to the land described in the record, and that no one else claims title or interest therein. Defendants in error are in no position now to ask dismissal of this suit on the ground of a want of proper parties. It must be remembered that defendants in error were plaintiffs in the lower Court. If necessary parties were omitted it was their fault entirely. They certainly should not be permitted to have this appeal dismissed on their motion, after forcing the State to defend, through three Courts, what the officers of the State believe to be its property interests.

Defendants in error have filed the affidavit of Isham Randolph, Chief Engineer of the Sanitary District of Chicago, in support of their motion. It is more remarkable for what is omitted than for what it contains, and seems to have been artfully prepared for the sole purpose of confusing and deceiving the Court. In it he is made to swear (p. 5) "that if it shall be held that the State of Illinois was not authorized to sell any lands within ninety feet of the said canal * * * that the results of such decision will seriously affect property along the line of said canal from the City of Peru to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago River, worth a great many million dollars." As this case will probably be taken on final argument before the decision of this motion, the Court will have learned from the record, that the only question for decision is whether the State of Illinois took title to the land in dispute, under certain congressional grants, and that the right of the State of Illinois to dispose of the 90-foot strip or the canal itself is in no way involved. If the right of the State to sell were involved, however, that has been settled in the affirmative in the case of Walsh v. Columbus, Hocking Valley and A. R. R. Co., decided in this Court February 26, 1900 (Opinions of the U. S. Sup. Court, Vol. 9, p. 393). That was a land grant to the State of Ohio to aid in the construction of a canal. That grant, like those before the Court to the State of Illinois, provided that "the canals should be, and forever remain, public highways for the use of the government." Plaintiff sought to prevent the leasing of the canal to a railroad company. This Court held that the State could abandon the canal and lease it for other purposes. The Court also held that the government only, and not the plaintiff, could take advantage of the default of the State, if there had been a breach of contract. Under this decision the State has the right to sell any of its canal lands. Randolph very carefully neglects to testify to a single instance where other property will be affected by a decision of this case. His affidavit is a mere Innuendo without a single positive allegation of fact.

Randolph says (p. 7) that the Sanitary District of Chicago has a large tract of land along the east bank of the canal through Joliet, absolutely necessary for it to possess, in order to take advantage of the water-power situation at that point; "that if the said Sanitary District of Chicago is deprived of all the land by it owned and possessed within 90 feet of the east bank of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, all the power so created by its said works in the City of Joliet will be lost to it." It is only fair to suppose that the able attorneys representing the Sanitary District drew this affidavit as strong as the facts would warrant. No one should know better than they and Chief Engineer Randolph the source of their title to this land. Nothing would be easier than to have so stated, if such were the fact, that the title to this land came to the Sanitary District through the State of Illinois, and that it was a part of the canal grant to the State. The affidavit contains nothing of the sort. It does not even say that the decision in this case will in any way affect the title, or enable the State to deprive the Sanitary District of this land. The Canal Commissioners, on the other hand, testify positively that "the land mentioned by Randolph as being necessary to the development of water power at Joliet by said Sanitary District, lies wholly within section sixteen (16) granted to the State of Illinois by an act of Congress, April 18, 1818, and was never a part of the canal lands of said State."

We believe that a careful consideration of the affidavits on file will convince the Court that this motion to dismiss is a deliberate attempt to defraud the State, and should be denied.

Respectfully submitted,

HOWARD M. SNAPP,

Attorney for Plaintiffs in Error.

No. 168.

Brief of Snapp for P. & C.

Office Supreme Court U. S.
FILED
MAR 8 1901
JAMES H. McKENNEY,
Clerk.

Filed Mar. 8, 1901.

Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1900.

No. 168.

F. X. WERLING ET AL., PLAINTIFFS IN ERROR,

vs.

EMILY E. INGERSOLL ET AL.

OPINION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF ILLINOIS IN CASE OF CITY OF CHICAGO vs. MARY McGRAW, 75 ILL., 566.

HOWARD M. SNAPP,
Counsel for Plaintiffs in Error.

(17,586.)

JUDD & DETWEILER, PRINTERS, WASHINGTON, D. C. 3-8-'01

THE CITY OF CHICAGO

vs.

MARY McGRAW.

---

1. Party plaintiff at law—When the wife may sue alone for injury to real estate.—Where a husband, being the owner of real estate, together with his wife, in 1859, conveyed the same to a son who, in 1863, conveyed the same to the wife, who was his mother, and she afterward controlled the same in her own right, it was held that the wife could maintain an action in her own name, for an injury to the property, without joining her husband in the action as a plaintiff.

2. Married woman—What regarded as her separate property under act of 1861.—Where a husband and wife conveyed land of the former to their son, and he conveyed the same back to the wife, it was held that the wife acquired the title from a person other than her husband, and that the good faith of the transaction could only be questioned by creditors of the husband. A trespasser cannot question the wife's right to the land as her separate property, in an action by her against him.

3. Municipal corporation—When liable for trespass.—Trespass lies against a municipal corporation in a proper case; but to render it liable in any case for torts committed by persons claiming to act for it or by its authority it must appear they were expressly authorized to do the act by the municipal government, or that they were done bona fide, in pursuance of a general authority to act for the municipality on the subject to which they relate, or that in either case the act was adopted and ratified by the corporation.

4. Where the city of Chicago was sued in trespass for an injury to a lot of the plaintiff caused by widening and deepening a canal, which the city was empowered to do, but no ordinance of the city was introduced showing that the city had undertaken to exercise the power, and the written contract of the parties doing the work which caused the injury was not produced on the trial, and there was no proof that the city directed the work or adopted and ratified it afterward, it was held that a recovery against the city could not be sustained for want of sufficient proof that the trespasses were committed under the direction or by the authority of the city.

5. Same—Whether city of Chicago, in exercising power of widening and deepening canal, was agent of the State.—Under the act of February 16, 1865, authorizing the city of Chicago to widen and deepen the Illinois and Michigan canal, for the purpose of cleansing the Chicago river, in exercising the powers conferred, the city is not to be regarded as the agent of the State, and, therefore, not liable for an injury caused to private property.

6. Trespass—When title to real estate need not be proved.—In trespass to real estate in the actual possession of the plaintiff, where no effort is made by the defence to show title in any one else, proof of title other than of possession is not necessary.

7. Same—Title deed admissible in evidence to show the right claimed by possession.—In trespass to real estate, the deed to the plaintiff is competent evidence, as tending to prove title in plaintiff, and show what right he claims by his possession of the property.

8. Parol evidence—To show what lands were reserved from sale by the United States.—Parol evidence is not competent to show that no sales were made by the Government within a reservation claimed to have been made for a certain purpose, as the Government records furnish the proper and best evidence of what lands were sold and what reserved.

9. Reservation of land for canal—Party claiming must show performance of conditions imposed.—Where it is sought to defeat the right of a party in possession of land, claiming to own the same under the act of Congress of March 30, 1822, giving and reserving the same to the State of Illinois for canal purposes, it must be shown that the conditions upon which the grant depended were complied with.

Appeal from the Circuit Court of Cook County, the Hon. Lambert Tree, Judge, Presiding.

Mr. T. Lyle Dickey, for the appellant.
Messrs. Hoyne, Horton & Hoyne, for the appellee.

Mr. Justice SCHOLFIELD delivered the opinion of the court:

This was trespass by the plaintiff in the court below, and now appellee, against the defendant in that court, and now appellant, for injuries done to her property under the direction of the defendant in excavating, widening, and deepening the Illinois and Michigan canal at Canal Port, in Cook county. There was evidence on the trial that the title to the property claimed to have been injured was originally in the name of the plaintiff's husband, John McGraw; that he and she joined in a deed and conveyed it to their son, Peter J. McGraw, on the 18th of April, 1859, and Peter J. McGraw afterward, and on the 31st day of March, 1863, reconveyed the property to the plaintiff. The plaintiff's husband, at the time the alleged injuries were committed and at the time of the trial, was still alive, residing with her, and their marital relations had never been dissolved. It is insisted that he was, therefore, a necessary party to the suit; that the plaintiff did not acquire the property in good faith from a person other than her husband, and consequently cannot claim it as her sole and separate property under the act of February 21, 1861, relating to the separate property of married women.

The deed from the plaintiff's husband and herself to their son, Peter J., on the 18th of April, 1859, conveyed whatever title her husband then had in the property to Peter J., and his deed to the plaintiff on the 31st day of April, 1863, invested her with that title. Whether the controlling motive in these transactions was to defraud creditors of the plaintiff's husband, or to place the title, by what was supposed to be the necessary legal steps, in the plaintiff, it would seem to be quite certain that he retained no interest, either legal or equitable, in the property. He could not be heard either in a court of law or equity, should he seek to reinvest himself with the title, for the reason that he had parted with it, for either of these purposes. The plaintiff acquired her title, in the language of the statute, from a person other than her husband, and that she did so in good faith can be questioned alone by those who have a right to object to her holding the title. These, it is believed, are limited to her husband's creditors. Certainly he has no right to object, and those who have injured the property cannot, therefore, be held responsible to him as for an injury done to his property, and we can conceive of no other grounds upon which they can question the plaintiff's right.

The evidence is full to the point that the plaintiff has controlled and managed the property, as her sole and separate property, free from the control of her husband. The evidence does not show a joint use or possession by the plaintiff and her husband, but it is clearly shown that the business connected with the use of the property was exclusively managed by her, in her own name, and that her husband did nothing whatever, but simply lived with her as a mere pensioner on her bounty. The property being, then, as against wrong-doers, the sole and separate property of the plaintiff, acquired from a person other than her husband, in good faith, and being under her sole and separate control, the suit was well brought in her name alone. Beach vs. Miller, 56 Ill., 206.

The next inquiry is, does the evidence sufficiently show that the alleged trespasses were committed under the direction or by the authority of the city.

Fox, Howard & Walker were sued jointly with the city, but after hearing evidence, and before the case was finally given to the jury, on motion of appellee's counsel, the case was dismissed as to them. Before this was done, Howard was sworn and examined as a witness in his own behalf, and testified that the work on the canal, resulting in the injuries complained of, was done by his firm under a contract with the city, and pursuant to the terms of that contract. The contract itself, however, was not offered in evidence, and what its terms were we cannot know. No ordinance of the city relating to the work was given in evidence; on the contrary, when it was offered to read such ordinance as evidence on behalf of the city, they were, on motion of appellee's counsel, excluded by the court. There seems to have been a zealous effort, indeed, on behalf of appellee, to exclude all evidence showing the connection of the city with the improvement of the canal.

That an action of trespass lies, in a proper case, against a municipal corporation, is not an open question in this court (Allen vs. The City of Decatur, 23 Ill., 334; Wolf et al. vs. Boettcher, 64 ib., 316). But to render it liable, in any case, for torts committed by persons claiming to act for it, or by its authority, it must appear that they were expressly authorized to do the acts by the municipal government, or that they were done bona fide in pursuance of a general authority to act for the municipality on the subject to which they relate, or that, in either case, the act was adopted and ratified by the corporation (Thayer vs. Boston, 19 Metc., 571; see, also, Dillon on Municipal Corporations, § 772, and note).

Assuming, as we shall, that appellant was authorized by the legislature to "widen and deepen" the Illinois and Michigan canal for its own benefit, we cannot judicially know that it determined to do so, however well known the fact may have been to its citizens, nor can we take cognizance, without proof, of what ordinances and contracts it may have adopted and made on that subject, nor can we, in the absence of proof, know that its agents or employés acted within the scope of their duties. Counsel for appellee refer to and quote from what they claim to be an ordinance of appellant approving certain acts relative to this work, but no such ordinance is in evidence.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the evidence fails to sufficiently connect appellant with the acts complained of.

The objection that under the act of February 16, 1865, the work of "widening and deepening the canal" was not within the corporate duties of appellant we should not regard as tenable if the evidence had sufficiently shown that the work was in fact done by appellant pursuant to the provisions of that act. The question was before the court and decided in The City of Chicago vs. Joney, 60 Ill., 384, where the evidence was complete and clearly showed the connection of the city with the injuries complained of. It was there said: "The facts stated in the preamble to the act of 1865 show conclusively that this enlargement of the canal was a suggestion of the city of Chicago and recommended for the only purpose of cleansing the river, which had become, by reason of having no current, a nuisance. The act of 1865 bears on its face the impress of benefit to Chicago, and nothing more. That was the moving cause, as we infer, for the passage of the act. The city was, in no sense, the agent of the State."

It is further insisted that the court erred in admitting in evidence certain deeds, among others those of John McGraw and the plaintiff to Peter J. McGraw and Peter J. McGraw to the plaintiff, because a complete chain of title from the Government was not first shown. These deeds were competent evidence as tending to prove title in the plaintiff and to show what right she claimed by her possession. The rule is that the person who has the actual possession of real estate will be deemed and held to be the true owner until the contrary is made to appear (McLean vs. Forden et al., 61 Ill., 109). No effort was made to show title to the property conveyed by these deeds in any one else, and they were sufficient prima facie evidence of title in the plaintiff.

Appellant offered to prove by parol that no sales were made by the Government of the United States within a reservation claimed to have been made for the benefit of the canal. This evidence was properly excluded. The Government records furnish the proper evidence of what lands were sold and what reservations were made for canal or other purposes. If a reservation by the Government had been proved, embracing the plaintiff's property, the burden would then have been on her to have shown that the Government had subsequently, and before its control over the reservation had ceased, changed its policy and disposed of the property reserved by sale.

Objection is urged to the ruling of the court in refusing to give certain instructions asked by the defendant. Four of these relate to the question discussed in the first part of this opinion, with reference to the plaintiff's rights under the act of 1861 respecting the separate property of married women, and were properly refused, in view of her rights there expressed. The remaining one was objectionable, in view of the law as held by this court in The City of Chicago vs. Joney, supra.

It is finally insisted that a strip of land 90 feet wide, on each side of the line of the canal, was dedicated by the United States, before any of the lands were put in market for sale, to the use of the State for transacting the canal business; that this dedication was accepted by the State, and that the proof shows that it was taken possession of by the State, and that the plaintiff's property is within this strip of 90 feet. To support this, the counsel for the defendant refer to the act of Congress of March 30, 1822. So much of that act as is supposed to bear upon the question is as follows: "That the State of Illinois be and is hereby authorized to survey and work through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and 90 feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in said State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever; on condition, however, that if said State does not survey and direct, by law, said canal to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passing of this act; or, if the said canal be not completed, suitably for navigation, within twelve years thereafter; or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by and used for a canal suitable for navigation, the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect," etc.

There is no evidence whatever in the record before us that these conditions were complied with by the State, and it is incumbent on the defendant, in order to avail of the reservation and grant as against the possession of the plaintiff, to show that the conditions were complied with, because this is made indispensable by the act of Congress to the vesting of the rights conferred in the State. On the contrary, the General Assembly, at its session in 1826, memorialized Congress for a grant of lands to aid in the construction of a canal, not, however, connecting the Illinois river with the southern bend of Lake Michigan, as required by this act of Congress, but uniting the waters of Lake Michigan with the Illinois river. And Congress, by another act approved March 2, 1827, granted to the State, for the purpose of aiding it in opening a canal, "to unite the waters of the Illinois river with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United States, to be selected by the Commissioner of the Land Office," etc.

Subsequently the General Assembly, by an act approved January 22, 1829, created "the board of commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan canal" and invested it with power to consider, devise, and adopt such measures as might be required to facilitate and effect the communication, by means of a canal and locks, between the navigable waters of Illinois river and Lake Michigan; and among other duties enjoined on it was that of selecting or causing to be selected, as soon as practicable, in conjunction with such commissioner as should be appointed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office under the direction of the President of the United States, the alternate sections of land granted to the State by the act of Congress last referred to, and it is not claimed or pretended that the Illinois and Michigan canal, as located and constructed by this board and its successor, has for one of its termini the southern bend of Lake Michigan.

The act of Congress of March 2, 1827, does not purport to be an amendment of the act of March 30, 1822, nor does it, even by inference, refer to it. In our opinion, these acts constitute distinct and independent offers by the Government of the United States of aid to the State in the construction of canals, and the latter one having been accepted, without reference to the terms and conditions of the former, the State is only entitled to the grant which it conveys.

For the error indicated, however, the judgment must be reversed and the cause remanded.

Judgment reversed.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, A. D 1899.

No. 168.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH, Plaintiffs in Error, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL, Defendants in Error.	In error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

MOTION BY DEFENDANTS IN ERROR TO DISMISS THE WRIT OF ERROR ISSUED IN THE ABOVE ENTITLED CAUSE TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS.

TO THE HONORABLE, THE CHIEF JUSTICE AND JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES:

And now comes the said George Ingersoll and Emily E. Ingersoll, defendants in error, by William M. Springer, their attorney, and moves the court to dismiss the writ of error in the above entitled cause—

1st. Because it appears, from the affidavits in this suit, that there is no existing actual controversy between said plaintiffs in error and the said defendants in error.

2nd. Because it appears, from the affidavits and exhibits on file in this suit, that the matters in controversy between the said plaintiffs in error and the said defendants in error have, since the trial of said cause in the Circuit Court of La Salle County and State of Illinois, been fully adjusted in the manner following. By reason of the grantee of defendants in error recognizing the right and title of the Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois to the said lands and property in controversy in this cause; and because the said judgment of $50 rendered in favor of said defendants in error by the Circuit Court of La Salle County and State of Illinois, in said above entitled cause, has been satisfied by payment thereof to the clerk of the Circuit Court of La Salle County, Illinois.

3. Because it appears, from the affidavits and exhibits on file in this suit, that the writ of error herein is being prosecuted by the Canal Commissioners, in the name of the plaintiffs in error, for the purpose of procuring the opinion of this court upon a question of law, in which property to a very large amount is involved, and in which the canal commissioners have an interest opposed to that of other parties, who are not parties to the suit, who had no knowledge of it while it was pending in the Circuit Court of La Salle County and no opportunity of being heard there in defense of their rights.

GEORGE INGERSOLL and EMILY E. INGERSOLL,
By WILLIAM M. SPRINGER,
Their Attorney.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,

October Term, A. D. 1899.

No. 168.

Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith,
Plaintiffs in Error,
v.
Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss.
COUNTY OF COOK. }

Isham Randolph, being first duly sworn according to law, on his oath deposes and says: That he is of lawful age; that he is a civil engineer by profession, and now is and has been in the employ of the Sanitary District of Chicago for more than seven years last past as its chief engineer.

Affiant further on his oath states that he is familiar with the route and direction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal; that said canal has its southern terminus at Peru, in the State of Illinois, and the artificial channel of said canal extends from the last-named point in a north-easterly direction to Bridgeport, in Cook County, in the State of Illinois, where it connects with the south fork of the south branch of the Chicago river; that said canal, as originally laid out, extended from Peru, in said County of LaSalle, substantially on the line where the same has been constructed to said Bridgeport, and from that point to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago river, in the City of Chicago, which was embraced and included in the original plan of the construction of a canal to unite the waters of Lake Michigan with those of the Illinois river; that the length of the artificial channel of said canal is ninety-six miles, and that the length of the south branch of the Chicago river from the point of intersection of said canal with said Chicago river to the mouth of the Chicago river is about four and one-tenth miles; that between Peru and Bridgeport, in Cook County, the said canal passes through the following cities and villages: LaSalle, Utica, Ottawa, Marseilles, Seneca, Morris, Channahon, Joliet, Lockport, Lemont and Spring Forest; that the said City of LaSalle, as appears by the census of 1890, has a population of 9,855; Ottawa, 9,985; Morris, 3,653; Joliet, 23,624; Lockport, 2,449; Lemont, 6,000; that this affiant is unable to give the population of the villages of Utica, Marseilles, Seneca, Channahon and Spring Forest, and is also unable to state the population of all of the said villages and cities, as ascertained by the census of 1900, as the result of such census is not accessible to this affiant; that the said property along the said canal on the side opposite to the tow-path through the said Cities of La Salle, Ottawa, Morris, Joliet and Lemont, and the Villages of Utica, Marseilles, Seneca, Channahon, Lockport and Spring Forest, is used for business purposes of different kinds through said cities and villages, such as lumber yards, coal yards, breweries, grain elevators, and in the City of Joliet the west bank of the said canal, which through said city, from about the central part thereof is the tow-path side of the canal, is occupied by a large gas-works, business houses, stores and factories; that many of such buildings are either wholly or partly within ninety feet of the canal, and occupy what is called the ninety-foot strip of said canal; that such buildings, factories, coal-yards and lumber yards have occupied said ninety-foot strip along said canal for a great many years, and the persons occupying the same claim to have purchased the land whereon said factories and other buildings are situated from the canal commissioners, or derive their title through the government of the United States; that all of the country between Peru and Bridgeport is settled, and the lands of great value; that the length of said canal through the City of La Salle is about one and one-half miles; through Ottawa, one and eight-tenths miles; Marseilles, one mile; Seneca, three-eighths of a mile; Morris, one mile; Channahon, three-fifths of a mile; Joliet, two and one-quarter miles; Lockport, one and three-quarter miles; Lemont, three-quarters of a mile; Spring Forest, one and one-quarter miles; that from Bridgeport, in Cook County, to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago river, and within ninety feet on each side of said south branch of said Chicago river, the said banks of said river are used and occupied for the following business purposes: Coal docks, lumber yards, gas plants, grain elevators, slaughter houses, oil refineries, sugar refineries, stone yards, railway freight yards, electric lighting power plants, flour mills, manufactories, warehouses, and docks of transportation companies; that if it shall be held that the State of Illinois was not authorized to sell any lands within ninety feet of the said canal and along the line where the same was originally laid out, and that the Federal Government, by reason of the act of Congress of 1882, had parted with its title to all the lands through which said canal was laid out by the State of Illinois, that the results of such decision will seriously affect property along the line of said canal from said City of Peru to the mouth of the South Branch of the Chicago River, worth a great many millions of dollars.

Affiant further on his oath states, that he is informed and verily believes that the said cause now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, entitled Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, Plaintiffs in Error, vs. Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, Defendants in Error, is prosecuted and carried on in said Supreme Court of the United States by the Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois, in support of which belief this affiant quotes from page 9 of the report of the Canal Commissioners, made to the Governor of the State of Illinois, December 1, 1899:

"The case of Werling vs. Ingersoll has been decided "against us in the Supreme Court and we have taken "the case to the Supreme Court of the United States on "writ of error, where it is still pending. It is an action "of trespass brought against Werling, our foreman at "Ottawa, for removing a fence built by Ingersoll on "what we claim is the ninety-foot strip of the canal. "The Circuit Court and our Supreme Court held in effect "that the state did not take title to a ninety-foot strip "though even sections under the acts of Congress of 1822 "and 1827. On the other hand, a directly opposite de- "cision was made by Judge Allen of the United States "Circuit Court in the case of the City of Chicago vs. "Wheeler. The land in this suit is of small value, but "as the title to other land of considerable value now in "possession of the state, some of it under lease to various "parties, depends on the result of this suit, we deem it "our duty to take the case to the Supreme Court of "the United States, in order to finally settle the rights of "the state."

Also on page 56 of said report affiant quotes the following:

"There yet remains a large number of Canal Trustees' "Subdivision to be examined and located in Cook, Will, "Grundy, La Salle and Winnebago Counties, and also a "careful examination should be made of all original canal "sections through which there are running streams for "fractional pieces similar to the one found in the south-"west quarter of 9, 33, 9.

"There also appears to be no doubt but that the state "has title to a large amount of river frontage in Chicago. "This interest has, however, been so long neglected that "it is diffcult to secure the necessary documentary evi-"dence. Much has been secured and much remains to "be secured."

Affiant herewith attaches to his said affidavit an official copy of said report, portions of which have been above quoted.

Affiant further, on his oath states, that the Sanitary District of Chicago has a large tract of land along and adjoining the east bank of the Illinois and Michigan Canal in the City of Joliet, which it is absolutely necessary for it to possess in order to take advantage of the water power created by the construction of its works at Joliet; that said water power, when developed, will have a large value, the same being capable of developing a power equivalent to 7,900 horse power, with a minimum flow of water in the channel of the said Sanitary District, but with the maximum flow provided by the laws under which it is created, a water power will be developed in Joliet, by reason of the construction of the works of the said Sanitary District of Chicago, of the equivalent of 15,800 theoretical horse power; that if the said Sanitary District of Chicago is deprived of all the land by it owned and possessed within ninety feet of the east bank of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, in the said City of Joliet, all of the power so created by its said works in the said City of Joliet will be lost to it; that the said Sanitary District of Chicago had no knowledge of the commencement of the above entitled suit, and did not have an opportunity of protecting its interests in the said cause when the same was tried in the Circuit Court of La Salle County, Illinois; that this affiant is informed and verily believes that the record in this cause, in the manner in which the same has been made up, does not present to this court the actual condition of the titles to the property along the said Illinois and Michigan Canal within ninety feet of the same, and that a decision of this cause, as he is informed and believes, will tend to cast a cloud upon the titles to all of the property along the Illinois and Michigan Canal and the course over and through which the same is laid out, within ninety feet of said canal and its course.

ISHAM RANDOLPH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 24th day of January, A. D. 1901.

SEYMOUR JONES,

[NOTARIAL SEAL] Notary Public.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,

October Term, A. D. 1899.

No. 168.

Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, Plaintiffs in Error, v. Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, Defendants in Error.	In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss.
COUNTY OF COOK. }

Robert Carr, being first duly sworn according to law, on his oath deposes and says: That he is of lawful age, and a resident of the County of LaSalle and State of Illinois; that he is a lawyer by profession, and has practiced law in said LaSalle County since 1892; that at the request of the attorneys for the defendants in error, and also at the request of the attorney for the Sanitary District of Chicago, he examined certain papers and records in connection with the above entitled cause; that such examination was first made by him Saturday, the 19th inst., and that he prosecuted his search and made further examination upon the 21st and 22nd days of January, A. D. 1901; that this affiant was requested to ascertain the present apparent ownership of the property described as the north ninety (90) feet of the south fraction south of the canal of the west half of the south-east quarter of the north-west quarter, and the west half of the north-west quarter of section ten (10), township thirty-three (33) north, range three (3) east of the third principal meridian, said ninety

(90) foot strip extending across said south fraction of the north-west quarter of section ten (10) aforesaid in a south-westerly direction, immediately south of the top angle of the tow-path of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and parallel with the Illinois and Michigan Canal, said strip of ninety (90) feet being a part of the following described property: That part of the west half of the north-west quarter and that part of the west half of the south-east quarter of the north-west quarter of said section ten (10) which lies south of the right of way of the Illinois and Michigan Canal in the County of LaSalle and State of Illinois, a plat of said last above described property, and showing the said ninety (90) foot strip embraced in the first description, being hereto annexed and made part hereof, and marked as Exhibit A. with this affidavit.

Affiant further on his oath states, that upon examining the records of the recorder's office of the County of La Salle and State of Illinois, he there found a deed of record in the office of the said recorder, bearing date the 20th day of January, A. D. 1900, from Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, to Lorenzo Leland, said deed conveying the said ninety (90) foot strip, being the property contained in the first description in this affidavit for the expressed consideration of five hundred dollars, a true copy of said deed being hereto annexed and marked as Exhibit B with this affidavit; that affiant went to the office of a corporation known as the Ottawa Development Association, of which said association the said Lorenzo Leland is trustee, for the purpose of holding in trust the property of the said Ottawa Development Association, to avoid difficulties which might otherwise exist in selling its property to individuals, the intent being to create the said Lorenzo Leland as trustee as aforesaid with power under proper direction from the officers of said association to convey such parts of its property to future purchasers as might be deemed proper by the said corporation; that in the office of the said Ottawa Development Association the secretary of the said association, George M. Trimble, read to this affiant portions of a lease of date, as affiant now remembers, of December 5, 1899, from the Canal Commissioners to the Ottawa Development Association, which said lease demised and leased to the said Ottawa Development Association for the term of twenty years the property described in the said deed from the said Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll to the said Lorenzo Leland, and which is marked as Exhibit B, with this affidavit; that as this affiant verily believes, the property so demised and leased by the said Canal Commissioners to the said Ottawa Development Association was in said lease described as the north ninety (90) feet of the south fraction south of the canal of the west half of the south-east quarter of the north-west quarter, and the west half of the north-west quarter of section ten (10), township thirty-three (33) north, range three (3) east of the third principal meridian, said ninety (90) foot strip extending across said south fraction of the north-west quarter of section ten (10) aforesaid; that the rental reserved by said lease to the said Canal Commissioners was the sum of seventy-five dollars per year during the term of said lease, said rent being payable in advance, and affiant has been informed by Vincent J. Duncan, one of the directors of said Ottawa Development Association, that said rent has been fully paid to the said Canal Commissioners for and during the full term of said lease; that this affiant requested the said Secretary of the said Ottawa Development Association to give a copy of said lease; that the said secretary referred this affiant to one Vincent J. Duncan, a director and chairman of the law committee of said association; that the said Duncan, after repeated requests for permission to obtain a copy of said lease, refused to direct the said secretary to give this affiant a copy of said lease, so that affiant is unable to attach to this his affidavit a copy of the lease aforesaid, but that affiant verily believes that the description as to the property described in said lease, the term of the lease and the amount of rent reserved is accurately stated in this affidavit.

ROBERT CARR.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23rd day of January, A. D. 1901.

WILLIAM H. BEEBE,

[SEAL] Notary Public.

EXHIBIT A.
ILLINOIS AND MICHIGAN CANAL
LAND COVERED BY LEASE TO OTTOWA DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION.
THE NORTH 90' OF THE S.F.R. (SOUTH OF THE CANAL) OF THE N½ OF THE S.E¼ OF THE N.W.¼. SEC. 10 T. 33 N. R. 3 E. OF THE 3° P.M.
THE NORTH 90' OF THE S.F.R. (SOUTH OF THE CANAL) OF THE N½ OF THE N.W.¼ SEC 10 T. 33 N. R 3 E. OF THE 3° P.M.
CENTER SEC. 10

EXHIBIT "B."

This Indenture Witnesseth, that the grantors, Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, her husband, of the Town of Ottawa, in the County of La Salle and State of Illinois, for and in consideration of the sum of five hundred ($500) dollars in hand paid, convey and warrant to Lorenzo Leland of the City of Ottawa, County of La Salle and State of Illinois, the following described real estate, to-wit:

The north ninety feet of the south fraction (south of the canal) of the west half of the south-east quarter (S. E. ¼) of the north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) and the west half (W. ½) of the north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section ten (10), township thirty-three (33) north, range three (3) east of the third principal meridian, said ninety-foot strip extending across said south fraction of the north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section ten (10) aforesaid, in a south-westerly direction, immediately south of the top angle of the tow-path, of and parallel with the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

Also a strip or parcel of land in the said south fractional north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section ten (10) aforesaid: Commencing at a point 397 feet north of the south-west (S. W.) corner of the north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section ten (10), and running thence north along the section line to the top angle of the tow-path or south bank of the Illinois and Michigan canal; thence north 70° 45′ east along said top angle of said bank to the east line of the west half (W. ½) of the south-east quarter (S. E. ¼) of the north-west quarter (N. W. ¼) of section ten (10), aforesaid; thence south to a point ninety (90) feet distant perpendicularly from said top angle; thence south 71° 45′ west to a point 260 feet east of the west line of said section ten (10); thence south-westerly along a curved lined having a radius of 360 feet to the place of beginning.

This conveyance is made subject to any claim or claims which the Illinois and Michigan Canal may have or make to said ninety-foot strip first above described, situated in the Town of Ottawa, in the County of LaSalle, in the State of Illinois, hereby releasing and waiving all rights under and by virtue of the homestead exemption laws of this State.

Dated this 20th day of January, A. D. 1900.

(Signed) EMILY E. INGERSOLL. [SEAL]
GEORGE INGERSOLL. [SEAL]

U. S. Revenue Stamp ($.50).

STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
LASALLE COUNTY. } ss.

I, V. B. Weeks, a police magistrate and justice of the peace, in and for said county, in the state aforesaid, do hereby certify that Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, her husband, who are personally known to me to be the same persons whose names are subscribed to the foregoing instrument, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged that they signed, sealed and delivered the said instrument as their free and voluntary act for the uses and purposes therein set forth, including the release and waiver of the right of homestead.

Given under my hand and seal this 20th day of January, A. D. 1900.

V. B. WEEKS, [SEAL]
Police Magistrate and Justice of the Peace.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

October Term, A. D. 1899.

No. 168.

Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith,
Plaintiffs in Error,
vs.
Emily E. Ingersol and George Ingersoll,
Defendants in Error.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, } ss.
COUNTY OF COOK. }

Robert Carr, being first duly sworn according to law, on his oath deposes and says: That he is of lawful age, and that upon the 25th day of January, A. D. 1901, he paid into and deposited with the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the County of La Salle, and State of Illinois, the full amount of the judgment, interest and costs awarded and adjudged to plaintiff by the judgment and consideration of the said Circuit Court of La Salle County in the case therein entitled Emily E. Ingersoll and George Ingersoll vs. Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith.

ROBERT CARR.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of January, A. D. 1901.

WILLIAM H. BEEBE,
Notary Public.

[NOTARIAL SEAL]

JAN 29 1901
JAMES H. McKENNEY
Clerk.

Filed Jan. 29, 1901.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, A. D 1899 1900.

No. 168.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH,
Plaintiffs in Error,
vs.
EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL,
Defendants in Error.

In error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND BRIEF OF AUTHORITIES ON MOTION TO DISMISS WRIT OF ERROR.

WILLIAM M. SPRINGER,
ATTORNEY FOR DEFENDANTS IN ERROR

The Courtney-Warren Printing Company, 63 Dearborn St., Chicago.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, A. D. 1899.

No. 168.

FRANK X. WERLING and EUGENE SMITH, Plaintiffs in Error, vs. EMILY E. INGERSOLL and GEORGE INGERSOLL, Defendants in Error.	In error to the Supreme Court of Illinois.

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND MEMORANDUM OF AUTHORITIES ON MOTION TO DISMISS WRIT OF ERROR.

This suit is an action of trespass instituted in the Circuit Court of La Salle County by Emily Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, defendants in error, against Frank X. Werling and Eugene Smith, plaintiffs in error, to recover damages for removing the fences and entering the close of defendants in error.

Since the commencement of this suit and on the 20th day of January, A. D. 1900, the defendants in error

Emily Ingersoll and George Ingersoll, defendants in error herein, conveyed to one Lorenzo Leland, trustee under a deed of trust to said Lorenzo Leland from the Ottawa Development Association, the land in controversy in this case, as appears from the affidavit of Robert Carr and Exhibit "A" attached thereto, filed herein. On December 5, 1899, the Ottawa Development Association leased from the Canal Commissioners the land in controversy for a term of twenty years, from said 5th day of December, 1899, at an annual rental of $75 per annum. The state has thus succeeded in having its title to the land in controversy in this case acknowledged by the grantee of the defendants in error in this case.

It thus appears that the Canal Commissioners of the State of Illinois have obtained all they ~~profess in their report to the governor of Illinois to~~ could recover in this case by judgment of this court in their favor. This court is called upon to decide in this case the following question, viz: Is the State of Illinois the owner of a strip of land ninety feet in width along and contiguous to the Illinois and Michigan Canal on each side thereof? In the determination of this question many millions of dollars of property will be thereby affected. As appears from the affidavit of Isham Randolph on file herein, the Illinois and Michigan Canal, as originally laid out, extended from Peru, in said County of La Salle, substantially on the line where the same has been constructed to Bridgeport, in the County of Cook, and from that point to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago river, in the City of Chicago, which was embraced and included in the original plan of the construction of the canal to unite the waters of Lake Michigan with those of the Illinois river; the length of the artificial channel of said canal is ninety-six miles, and the length of the south branch of the Chicago river, from the point of intersection of said canal to the mouth of the Chicago river, is about 4.1 miles. Between Peru and Bridgeport, in Cook County, the said canal passes through the following cities and villages: La Salle, Utica, Ottawa, Marseilles, Seneca, Morris, Channahon, Joliet, Lockport, Lemont and Spring Forest. The said City of La Salle, as appears by the census of 1890, has a population of 9,855; Ottawa, 9,985; Morris, 3,653; Joliet, 23,624; Lockport, 2,449; Lemont, 6,000. The said property along the said canal on the side opposite to the tow-path, through the said cities of La Salle, Ottawa, Morris, Joliet and Lemont, and the villages of Utica, Marseilles, Seneca, Channahon, Lockport and Spring Forest, is used for business purposes of different kinds through said cities aud villages, such as lumber yards, coal yards, breweries, grain elevators, and, in the City of Joliet, the west bank of said canal through which said city, from about the central part thereof, is the tow-path side of the canal, is occupied by a large gas-works, business houses, stores and factories. Many of such buildings are either wholly or partly within ninety feet of the canal, and occupy what is called the ninety-foot strip of said canal, and have occupied said ninety-foot strip along said canal for a great many years; and the persons occupyig the same claim to have purchased the land whereon said factories and other buildings are situated from the Canal Commissioners or derived their title through the government of the United States. All of the country between Peru and Bridgeport is settled and the lands are of great value. The length of said canal through the City of La Salle is about one and one-half miles; through Ottawa, one and eight-tenths miles; Marseilles, one mile; Seneca three-eighths of a mile; Morris, one mile; Channahon, three-fifths of a mile; Joliet, two and one-quarter miles; Lockport, one and three-quarters miles; Lemont, three-quarters of a mile; Spring Forest, one and one-quarter miles. From Bridgeport, in Cook County, to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago river, and within ninety feet on each side of said south branch of said Chicago river, the said banks of said river are used and occupied for the following business purposes: Coak docks, lumber yards, gas plants, grain elevators, slaughter houses oil refineries, sugar refineries, stone yards, railway freight yards, electric light power plants, flour mills, manufactories, warehouses, and docks of transportation companies.

If it shall be held that the State of Illinois was not authorized to sell any lands within ninety feet of said canal, and along the line where the same was originally laid out, and that the Federal Government by reason of the Act of Congress of 1822 had parted with its title to all the lands through which said canal was laid out by the State of Illinois, all property along the line of the canal from the city of Peru to the mouth of the south branch of the Chicago river would be seriously affected thereby.

From the affidavit of Isham Randolph filed herein it appears that the record in this case in the manner in which the same has been ma de up does not present to this court the actual condition of the titles to the property along the Illinois and Michigal Canal within ninety feet of the same.

The defendants in error in the above entitled cause now present to this court by their attorney a motion to dismiss the writ of error, based upon three grounds: 1st, because there is no real and substantial controversy between the parties herein: 2nd, because the matters in controversy between the plaintiffs and defendants have since the trial of said suit been fully adjusted, and the plaintiffs in error restored to all the rights claimed by them in said suit; 3rd, because said suit is being prosecuted by the Canal Commissioners in the name of the plaintiffs in error, for the purpose of procuring the opinion of this court upon a question of law, in which the Canal Commissioners have an interest opposed to that of other parties, who are not parties to this suit, who had no knowledge of it while it was pending in the Circuit Court of La Salle County, and who had no opportunity of being heard there in defense of their rights.

ANY ATTEMPT, BY A MERE COLORABLE DISPUTE, TO OBTAIN THE OPINION OF THE COURT UPON A QUESTION OF LAW WHICH A PARTY DESIRES TO KNOW FOR HIS OWN INTEREST OR HIS OWN PURPOSES, WHEN THERE IS NO REAL AND SUBSTANTIAL CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THOSE WHO APPEAR AS ADVERSE PARTIES TO THE SUIT AND WHERE THE RIGHTS OF OTHER PARTIES NOT PARTIES TO THE SUIT WILL BE AFFECTED, IS AN ABUSE WHICH COURTS OF JUSTICE HAVE ALWAYS REPREHENDED, AND TREATED AS A PUNISHABLE CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 251–255.
Cleveland v. Chamberlain, 1 Black, 419.
Wood Paper Co. v. Heft, 8 Wall., 339.
San Mateo County v. S. Pac. R. R. Co., 116 U. S., 138.
Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547.
Singer Mfg. Co. v. Wright, 141 U. S., 696.
Elgin v. Marshall, 106 U. S., 578.

California v. Railroad Co., 149 U. S., 308.

Mills v. Green, 159 U. S., 651.

In the case of Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 251, a writ of error was prosecuted from the United States Circuit Court for the District of Maine. An affidavit was filed by Mr. Moore on behalf of third persons not parties to the suit, setting up that there was no real dispute between plaintiff and defendant, and that the interest of the plaintiff and the defendant was one and the same, and adverse to the interest of other persons not before the court. The court on motion dismissed the writ of error and said on page 254:

"The court is satisfied, upon examining the record in "this case, and the affidavits filed in the motion to dis- "miss, that the contract set out in the pleadings was "made for the purpose of instituting this suit, and that "there is no real dispute between the plaintiff and de- "fendant. On the contrary, it is evident that their in- "terest in the question brought here for decision is one "and the same, and not adverse, and that in these pro- "ceedings the plaintiff and defendant are attempting to "procure the opinion of this court upon a question of "law, in the decision of which they have a common in- "terest opposed to that of other persons, who are not "parties to this suit, who had no knowledge of it while "it was pending in the Circuit Court, and no opportun- "ity of being heard there in defense of their rights. And "their conduct is the more objectionable, because they "have brought up the question upon a statement of facts "agreed on between themselves, without the knowledge "of the parties with whom they were in truth in dis- "pute, and upon a judgment pro forma entered by their "mutual consent, without any actual judicial decision by "the court. It is a question, too, in which it appears "that property to a very large amount is involved, the "right to which depends on its decision."

And on page 255, further says:

"It is the office of courts of justice to decide the "rights of persons and of property, when the persons "interested cannot adjust them by agreement between "themselves, and to do this upon the full hearing of both "parties. And any attempt, by a mere colorable dis- "pute, to obtain the opinion of the court upon a ques- "tion of law which a party desires to know for his own "interest or his own purposes, when there is no real and "substantial controversy between those who appear as ad- "verse parties to this suit, is an abuse which courts of "justice have always reprehended and treated as a pun- "ishable contempt of court."

In Wood Paper Co. v. Heft, 8 Wal., 333, a bill was filed to restrain the infringement of a certain patent, the bill was dismissed, and was subsequently appealed to the United States Supreme Court. Pending the appeal, one Meach asked leave to intervene, alleging that since the decree the case has been settled and was now carried on without the appellees having any further interest in the defense for the purpose of obtaining the decree of the United States Court in favor of the complainants, which would affect the rights of others not before the court. The appeal was dismissed upon the authority of the case of Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 255.

In the case of Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S., 547, a suit was commenced for the purpose of litigating the validity of certain taxes assessed by the City of Elizabeth, New Jersey. After the case had been submitted to the court upon argument, a motion was filed to dismiss the suit, upon the ground that the taxes had been paid, and that the suit was being prosecuted for the sole purpose of obtaining the opinion of the court as to the validity of an alleged contract, on the subject of taxation between the State of New Jersey and the company. The motion was granted; the court saying, on page 557:

"It is well settled that when there is no actual controversy involving real and substantial rights, between "the parties to the record, the case will be dismissed. "In Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 251, a writ of error was "dismissed by this court where it appeared from affidavits and other evidences, by persons not parties to the "suit, that there was no real controversy between the "plaintiff and defendant, that the suit was instituted to "procure the opinion of this court on a question of law, "in the decision of which they had a common interest "opposed to that of other persons who were not parties "to the suit and had no knowledge of its pendency in the "Circuit Court."

In the case of California v. Railroad Co., 149 U. S., 308, this court said (page 314):

"And the state has obtained everything that it could "recover in this case by a judgment of this court in its "favor. The duty of this court, as of every judicial "tribunal, is limited to determining rights of persons or "of property which are actually controverted in the "particular case before it. When, in determining such "rights, it becomes necessary to give an opinion upon a "question of law, that opinion may have weight as a "precedent for future decisions. But the court is not "empowered to decide moot questions or abstract propo-"sitions, or to declare, for the government of future

"cases, principles or rules of law which cannot affect the "result as to the thing in issue in the case before it. No "stipulation of parties or counsel, whether in the case "before the court or in any other case, can enlarge the "power, or affect the duty of the court in this regard."

In the case of Mills v. Green, 159 U. S., 651, the court said on page 654:

"For example, appeals have been dismissed by this "court when the plaintiff had executed a release of his "right to appeal; Elwell v. Fosdick, 134 U. S., 500; or "when the rights of both parties had come under the con- "trol of the same persons; Lord v. Veazie, 8 How., 251; "Cleveland v. Chamberlain, 1 Black, 419; Wood Paper "Co. v. Heft, 8 Wall., 333; East Tennessee Railroad v. "Southern Telegraph Co., 125 U. S., 695; South Spring "Co. v. Amador Co., 145 U. S., 300; or when the mat- "ter has been compromised and settled between the par- "ties; Dakota County v. Glidden, 113 U. S., 222; or "when, pending a suit concerning the validity of the "assessment of a tax, the tax was paid; San Mateo "County v. Southern Pacific Railroad, 116 U. S., 138; "Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S., 547; Singer Co. v. Wright, "141 U. S., 696; or the amount of the tax was tendered "and deposited in a bank, which by statute had the same "effect as actual payment and receipt of the money. "California v. San Pablo & Tulare Railroad, 149 U. "S., 308."

Respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM M. SPRINGER,
Attorney for Defendants in Error.

Supreme Court of the United States.

No. 168.—October Term, 1900.

Frank X. Werling et al., Plaintiffs in Error, vs. Emily E. Ingersoll et al. } In error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

[April 15, 1901.]

The plaintiffs in error have brought this case here to review the final judgment of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois affirming the judgment of the circuit court of La Salle County in favor of the defendants in error (plaintiffs below) in an action of trespass involving the title to lands in that county on the south side of the Illinois and Michigan Canal. The action was brought for the purpose of testing the title and was tried by the court upon an agreed statement of facts, a jury being waived. It appears from this statement that the plaintiffs in error are the agents of the State of Illinois and acted as such in taking down and removing the fence hereinafter spoken of. The Illinois and Michigan Canal is owned by the State of Illinois and runs in a direction northeast and southwest through section 10, township 33 north, range 3 east, in La Salle County, Illinois. The lands in question are in this section, which was one of the sections of land reserved to the United States under the act of Congress approved March 2, 1827, hereinafter mentioned.

The plaintiffs in error claim that the State of Illinois owns a strip of land through that section on the south side of the canal, ninety feet in width, contiguous to such south side, The defendants in error claim that the land which is owned by the State south of the canal is bounded on the south by a line seventeen instead of ninety feet south of the canal line; or in other words, they claim that the north line of their land runs up to within seventeen feet of the south side of the canal. The ownership of the land between these points from seventeen to ninety feet south of the canal is disputed, the plaintiffs in error claiming it for the State and the defendants in error claiming it for Mrs. Ingersoll, one of the defendants in error, who has had possession of the land for more than twenty years prior to November, 1897, and had prior to that time erected a fence on the line she claimed as her north line. This seventeen feet strip it would seem has been occupied by the towpath.

In order to test the question of title the plaintiffs in error, acting for the State, removed this fence, and thereupon the defendants in error sued them in trespass, claiming the fence was on their line and was their property. The question depends upon the construction of two acts of Congress in connection with the action of the State authorities in relation thereto. They are (1) the act of March 30, 1822, chapter 14; and (2) the act of March 2, 1827, chapter 51. They are, so far as material, set forth in the margin.*

The plaintiffs in error claim that the title to the strip of land ninety feet wide through section 10 passed to the State by virtue of the act of 1822, while the defendants in error claim that the act of 1827 takes the place of the act of 1822, as to the grant of lands, and that under the act of 1827 every alternate section of the land along the line of the canal was reserved to the United States, and it is agreed that section 10 was among the sections so reserved.

After the passage of the act of Congress of 1822 the general assembly of the State of Illinois on February 14, 1823, passed an act in which provision was made for the appointment of a board of commissioners to consider, devise and adopt such measures as might be requisite to effect a connection by a canal and locks between the navigable waters of Illinois River and Lake Michigan, It was made the duty of these commissioners to cause that part of the territory of the State which may lie open or contiguous to the probable courses and ranges of the canal to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most proper and eligible route for the same, and to cause all necessary surveys, &c., to be made, and to make calculations and estimates of the cost, and to make a plain and comprehensive report of all their proceedings under the act to the general assembly of the State at the commencement of the next session.

---

* Act of March 30, 1822. Chap. XIV, 3 Stat. 659.

AN ACT to authorize the State of Illinois to open a canal through the public lands, to connect the Illinois River with Lake Michigan.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the State of Illinois be, and is hereby, authorized to survey and mark, through the public lands of the United States, the route of the canal connecting the Illinois River with the southern bend of Lake Michigan; and ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States, except in the cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be, and the same is hereby, vested in the said State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever; on condition, however, that if the said State does not survey and direct by law said canal to be opened, and return a complete map thereof to the Treasury Department, within three years from and after the passing of this act; or if the said canal be not completed, suitable for navigation, within twelve years thereafter; or if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by, and used for, a canal, suitable for navigation; the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect. . . .

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That every section of land through which said canal route may pass shall be, and the same is hereby, reserved for future sale,

On January 13, 1825, the general assembly of the State amended a prior act, and appropriated about two thousand dollars for the payment of the actual expenditures made and liabilities incurred by the canal commissioners appointed under the act of 1823. On January 17, 1825, the general assembly incorporated the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company, and provided that the officers should obtain subscriptions to the stock, which should amount to a million dollars, and in a convenient time thereafter, and after ten per centum of the capital stock should have been paid in, the commissioners should proceed to construct a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois River and Lake Michigan, and the corporation was directed to proceed as rapidly to the completion of that object as might be deemed practicable and expedient, having in view the ultimate permanency of the work and the facility and safety of the communications. The size of the canal which the State had in contemplation is shown by reference to the fifth section of the act, wherein it is provided that the canal shall be of a width of forty feet at the summit, twenty-eight at the bottom, and of sufficient depth to contain water at least four feet deep. There is nothing in the record to show that these dimensions were ever altered, although the act was repealed the next year, January 20, 1826.

---

until hereafter specially directed by law; and the said State is hereby authorized and permitted, without waste, to use any materials on the public lands adjacent to said canal, that may be necessary for its construction.

Act of March 2, 1827. Chap. LI, 4 Stat. 234.

AN ACT to grant a quantity of land to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding in opening a canal to connect the waters of the Illinois River with those of Lake Michigan.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be, and hereby is, granted to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of aiding the said State in opening a canal to unite the waters of the Illinois River with those of Lake Michigan, a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width, on each side of said canal, and reserving each alternate section to the United States, to be selected by the Commissioner of the Land Office, under the direction of the President of the United States, from one end of said canal to the other; and the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the legislature of the said State, for the purpose aforesaid, and no other. . . .

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That, so soon as the route of the said canal shall be located and agreed on by the said State, it shall be the duty of the governor thereof, or such other person or persons as may have been, or shall hereafter be, authorized to superintend the construction of said canal, to examine and ascertain the particular sections to which the said State will be entitled under the provisions of this act, and report the same to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said State under the authority of the legislature thereof, after the selection shall have been so made, shall have power to sell and convey the whole or any part of the said land, and to give a title in fee simple therefor to whomsoever shall purchase the whole or any part thereof.

In the preamble of the repealing act it was stated that the corporation had not performed any act by which the right of the general assembly to repeal its charter could be taken away, and it was stated that it was believed that the highly important object of the act referred to could be promoted with greater advantage to the public by having the contemplated canal constructed under the direction of the State, and therefore the act of incorporation was repealed.

The governor of the State was directed by the second section of the repealing act to endeavor to ascertain the best terms on which loans could be obtained on behalf of the State for the purpose of constructing the canal and to report the same to the general assembly at its next session.

Pursuant to such direction, and on December 5, 1826, the governor reported that capitalists were reluctant to commit themselves to any specific terms on which they would be willing to make a loan, but from the best information which he had received it was confidently believed that if Congress would make a liberal grant of land there would be no difficulty on the part of the State in obtaining a loan at six per centum, and the governor suggested the propriety of adopting measures at that session to commence the work, predicated upon a liberal grant of land by Congress, which it was expected that body would make. The general assembly at the same session adopted a memorial to Congress, in which it asked for a grant of land belonging to the United States for the purpose of aiding the construction of the canal, and in this memorial the following language was used:

"Your memorialists have caused the route to be explored and estimates to be made of the probable expense of the work; from which it appears that the cost of constructing the canal will not be less than $600,000, and may possibly amount to $700,000. To the end, therefore, that your memorialists may be enabled to commence and complete this great and useful work we pray your honorable body to grant to this State the respective townships of land through which the contemplated canal may pass, the avails of which to be appropriated exclusively to the construction of said canal upon such terms and conditions as to your honorable body may seem proper."

Congress on March 2, 1827, passed the act already set forth. On January 22, 1829, the general assembly passed an act providing for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and for the appointment of commissioners to effect that object. By the fifth section the canal commissioners were directed to cause "those parts of the territory of this State which is upon or contiguous to the probable course or range of said canal to be explored and examined for the purpose of fixing and determining the most popular and eligible route for the same; . . . and as soon thereafter as they may be able to command sufficient funds and deem it expedient, shall commence the work of opening a canal, and constructing locks, aqueducts and dams and embankments, to effect a navigable communication between Lake Michigan and the Illinois River."

By the sixth section the canal commissioners were directed as soon as practicable, and in conjunction with the authorities of the government, to select alternate sections of land granted to the State by the act of Congress of 1827, and when the selection was made it was provided by section seven that the commissioners should proceed to sell the lands thus selected and to make returns of the proceeds of such sale to the auditor of public accounts.

On September 23, 1829, the canal commissioners obtained from the secretary of State of the State of Illinois a map of the proposed route of the canal which had been made by J. Post and R. Paul, in the years 1823 and 1824, when proceeding under the act of Congress of 1822 and the State statute of 1823. This map was obtained for the purpose of using the same in aid of their work of examining and locating the canal route from Lake Michigan to the Illinois River, but the duty of determining and adopting a route rested with the commissioners appointed under this State act of 1829, no route having up to that time been adopted.

During the years 1823 and 1824 the State through its above named engineers, Post and Paul, had surveyed and marked through the public lands of the United States the route of the canal "connecting the Illinois River with the southern bend of Lake Michigan," though it did not return a map thereof to the Treasury Department within three years from March 30, 1822; but some time between December 25 and the end of the year 1829 the State did return to the Treasury Department of the United States "a complete map of the route of the canal connecting the Illinois River with Lake Michigan." The map filed in 1829 is known as the Thompson map, and is the first and only one, so far as the record shows, ever filed with the Treasury Department. It was filed in December, 1829, under the provisions of the act of 1827. This fact appears from the certificate of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and also from that of the secretary of the canal commissioners of the State. Both officials assert that the map was filed "under the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 2, 1827." The general route is said to agree in substance with that laid down on the map made by Messrs. Paul and Post.

The State commenced the construction of the canal in the year 1837, and completed it in 1847, upon the route as shown by the Thompson map filed in the Treasury Department.

Mr. Justice PECKHAM, after making the above statement of fact, delivered the opinion of the Court.

The plaintiffs in error claim that upon the passage of the above mentioned act of Congress of 1822 the State of Illinois immediately became vested with the title to a strip of land ninety feet wide on each side of the route of the canal through the public lands of the United States from Lake Michigan to the Illinois River, and that the act of Congress of March 2, 1827, did not alter or in any way affect the provisions of the act of 1822 or take away the title which they claim had already vested in the State upon the passage of that act; that although the title to any specific portion of land under the act of 1822 was in the nature of a float until the route of the canal was surveyed and adopted and a map thereof made and filed in the Treasury Department, yet when that was done the title to the ninety feet on each side of the canal was vested in the State as of the date of the passage of the act.

The various land grants made by Congress to railroads are cited for the purpose of showing that the act of 1822 constituted a grant of lands in præsenti and absolute in character, although to be thereafter identified by future action. (Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44; Leavenworth &c. Railroad Company v. United States, 92 U. S. 733, 741; Railroad Company v. Baldwin, 103 Id. 426; United States v. Southern Pacific Railroad Company, 146 Id. 570; Id. 168 Id. 1.)

The language of the act of 1822, it will be observed, is somewhat peculiar and differs from that generally used in the land grants to railroads, which usually contain the expression that "there be and is hereby granted" to the railroad companies the lands mentioned, or words of similar import. In this act it is provided that "ninety feet of land on each side of said canal shall be forever reserved from any sale to be made by the United States except in cases hereinafter provided for, and the use thereof forever shall be and the same is hereby vested in the State for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever—on condition, . . . if said ground shall ever cease to be occupied by and used for a canal suitable for navigation, the reservation and grant hereby made shall be void and of none effect. . . ."

By this language the strict technical title is not conveyed to or vested in the State. It is simply a provision withdrawing from sale this strip of land and vesting the use of it for a canal, and for no other purpose whatever, in the State, with a condition that if not so used the reservation and grant are to be void. If proceedings had in fact been taken under this act, the route surveyed and a map thereof made and filed in the Treasury Department in compliance with the provisions of the act, then the use of the land designated on the map so filed, for the purpose mentioned in the act of 1822, would very likely have vested in the State as of the date of such act. The action of the authorities on the part of the State, after the passage of the act of 1827 and up to the filing of the map in 1829, shows, however, that it was the act of 1827 and not that of 1822 which was in their contemplation when the map was filed in the Treasury Department.

During 1823 and 1824 a route was surveyed and marked through the public lands of the United States for a canal connecting the Illinois River "with the southern bend of Lake Michigan," but it does not appear that the route was ever adopted or that a map of such route was ever filed. The map which was filed in 1829 purported to show the route of a canal connecting the Illinois River with Lake Michigan, omitting the expression "with the southern bend of Lake Michigan," which latter description, it is said, would, if closely and technically followed, have taken the canal into the State of Indiana. The route of the canal laid out on the map filed did connect the canal with the waters of Lake Michigan in the State of Illinois, but not in terms with the southern bend of that lake. It is claimed, however, that the two descriptions, "the southern bend of Lake Michigan" and "the waters of Lake Michigan," are substantially identical, and that the route of the canal as marked on the map of 1829 is in all material matters the same as that surveyed under the act of 1822. However this may be, it cannot be denied that between 1822 and the passage of the act of Congress in 1827 no route had been adopted for the canal and no work of construction had been commenced thereon, although, as already stated, a route had been surveyed and marked, yet none had been adopted, and none was adopted until after the passage of the State act of January 22, 1829. This appears by the fifth section of that act, in which the canal commissioners were authorized to explore, examine and determine and fix upon the most proper and eligible route for a canal, and to cause maps, surveys, profiles, &c., to be made, and thereafter, when they deemed it expedient and funds could be secured, they were authorized to commence the work of constructing the canal. The sixth section of the same act had special reference to the selection of the land granted by the Congressional act of 1827.

The filing of a map with reference only to the act of 1827, specifying both the sections reserved to the United States and those granted to the State under that act, would not thereby fix and identify lands which had been mentioned but not identified, in a different and prior act, and which were not referred to in any way in the map filed under the act of 1827. No lines showing the boundary of a strip ninety feet wide on each side of the canal were ever placed on the map which was filed in the Treasury Department in 1829, the only map which was ever filed there. That map showed the proposed route and also the sections granted to the State and those reserved to the United States, and the right of way along the route would be taken to be for a canal of the proposed width as stated in the acts of the general assembly, and which width was accepted and acquiesced in by Congress and the government.

It was not until 1848, eleven years after the work of construction was commenced and a year after the completion of the canal, as is stated by counsel for plaintiffs in error in his brief, that a survey was made of the ninety feet strip on each side of the canal from one end to the other, and the lines of that survey marked on maps under the directions of the canal commissioners, and the maps and profiles of the survey filed in the office of the State canal commissioners, but not with the Commissioner of the General Land Office or in the Treasury Department at Washington. This action of the canal commissioners was a mere ex parte assertion made by State officials upon their own maps, nearly twenty years after the filing of the map in the Treasury Department, indicating a possible claim of right on behalf of the State, but never laid down on any map filed in Washington.

The differences between the two acts in question and their inconsistent provisions are noticeable. That of 1822 provides for the use of land through the whole of the public domain ninety feet wide on each side of the canal. That of the act of 1827 grants a quantity of land equal to one-half of five sections in width on each side of such canal, and reserves each alternate section to the United States, &c. In the sections reserved, therefore, no title to or use of the ninety feet on each side of the canal is given, while in the alternate sections not reserved to the United States the whole title is granted to the State. The third section of the act of 1827 gives power to sell and give title in fee to the land granted, while the act of 1822 grants no title, and provides for resuming possession of the land if at any time the same is not used for a canal. The filing of a map under the act of 1827 would clearly not be a fulfilment of the provisions as to the filing made in the act of 1822.

The Congressional act of 1827, nevertheless, implies by its language and subject-matter the consent of Congress to a right of way through the public lands, and the subsequent State act of 1829, in the eleventh section, showed the width of the canal contemplated, which was the same as the prior and repealed act of 1825 provides for. Of course, a towpath would be added. These two acts show the intention of the parties to proceed thereafter with reference to the act of 1827 and not under that of 1822. Work was not in fact commenced until in 1837.

When Congress under the act of 1827 granted the alternate sections to the State throughout the whole length of the public domain, in aid of the construction of the canal, it also granted by a plain implication the right of way through the reserved sections, for it cannot be presumed the government was granting all these alternate sections to the State for the purpose avowed, and yet meant to withhold the right to pass through the sections reserved to the United States along the route of the proposed canal. But the implication would not extend to the ninety feet on each side. It would extend to the land necessary to be used for the canal of the width contemplated, and that had been asserted in an act of the general assembly in 1825 and was subsequently reiterated in another act of that body (1829).

Upon all the facts in the case it is plain that the act of 1822 was mutually abandoned by the parties so far as concerned the land grant after the passage of the act of 1827, and that the right of way through the reserved sections was treated and regarded as impliedly granted by the latter act, under which the larger grant was made, and that the map was filed under that act, and none was ever filed under the act of 1822. The State never took title to the strip of land ninety feet wide on each side of the route of the canal through the public lands, so far as related to the sections reserved to the United States by the act of 1827, of which section ten herein involved was one.

It is not a question of forfeiture of the grant under the act of 1822. There was no forfeiture; it was a mutual abandonment of that act for the act of 1827. Taking all the facts into consideration, the State never acquired an absolute title to the ninety feet strip, as by the language of the act of 1822 the use only was granted, and it required a subsequent filing of a map as provided for in that act before the right to the use was acquired and made definite and fixed as to any particular land, and before that time arrived the act of 1827 was passed, which was to a certain extent inconsistent with the former act, and the State in fact thenceforth proceeded under the later act and filed its map thereunder and constructed the canal with reference thereto.

We think the judgment of the Supreme Court of Illinois was right, and it is therefore Affirmed.

True copy.

Test:

Clerk Supreme Court, U. S.